1853. Magazines. 1853.
GRAHAM'S American Monthly Magazine.—This American favorite Magazine has been greatly enlarged, giving nearly as much reading as Harper's and is much more highly illustrated.
Godey's Lady's Book, vol. 46—commences in Jan. with immense increase of reading matter, without any reduction of its splendid Steel Engravings and Full Length Fashion Plates.
Peterson's Ladies' National Magazine. Edited by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens. Terms $2 per year. The best Ladies' Magazine in the world.
Harper's New Monthly Magazine. Containing over 1700 pages of interesting and useful reading with numerous illustrations.
The National Magazine, of Literature, Art and Religion. Edited by Abiel Stevens. Terms $2 per year.
Putnam's Monthly. A new Magazine. Intended to be one step above any American Magazine.—A sort of an aristocrat amongst all others. It combines the character of a Magazine and Review. To read a list of its promised contributors will not fail to give a magnificent idea of the Magazine.
Littell's Living Age. Weekly—$6 per year. This good Magazine needs but to be known to be appreciated.
The Ladies' Repository. A Literary and Religious Monthly. Terms $2.
The Family Circle and Parlor Annual. Devoted to fathers, mothers, sons and daughters. Terms one dollar.
The Christian Parlor Magazine. Two dollars.
The Farmer's Monthly Visitor. A New Hampshire Publication—devoted to Agriculture, Horticulture, Mechanic Arts and Education.—$1.
Merry's Museum—a Girl's and Boy's Magazine.—The best Christmas present you can make your children. One dollar per year.
Many other Magazines, and a large assortment of NEWSPAPERS, Cheap Books, Annuals, Toy Books, Fancy Goods and Stationery may be found at the subscriber's Periodical and Newspaper Store, No 29 Congress street.

WHAT-CHEER STOVE.
THE WHAT-CHEER COAL COOKING STOVE, now offered for sale by the subscribers, is acknowledged by all who have examined it to be the best and most economical Coal Stove ever offered to the public.
The castings are heavy, smooth, and very handsome. The Broiling apparatus is a great improvement over all other Stoves, being constructed in such a manner as to prevent the steam from escaping into the room when cooking.
All persons wishing to purchase a COAL COOKING STOVE, are respectfully requested to call and examine the same. Every Stove warranted to work well, or no sale.
We have also a large assortment of COOKING, PARLOR and STORE STOVES, &c.—for sale cheap for Cash at our Store,

LITERARY AND PERSONAL.—PARIS GOSSIP.—The Paris correspondent of the Courier des Etats Unis, states that the Countess D'Orsay, the widow of the celebrated English lion, is about to marry Mr. Cooper, the second son, by a first marriage, of Lady Palmerston—an English marriage loaded with honors and guineas. The Russian Count Trubetskoi has married the daughter of Madame Taglioni. This is not a sudden arrangement, the parties have known each other for a long time, and lastly, the Emperor of Austria, who, according to the gazettes, has been travelling for reasons of state, has really been to Dresden to engage himself to the Princess Sidonia, of Saxony.

Alexander Dumas, who has been residing at Brussels, is about settling his affairs at Paris, and expects to return there. It is bitter to think, says the French writer, that this intellectual person should fall into the common place so much as to pay up his debts like a common tradesman. Dumas will, however, find his place empty, notwithstanding the pretensions of M. Maquet, who claims to be the author of the works of Dumas. It is a striking fact that Maquet has not been inspired since Dumas left Paris. The son of Dumas said the other day, "Maquet pretends to have written the Guardsmen and Monte Christo: there is nothing left but for him to say that he is my father."

THE WILL OF THE LATE AMOS LAWRENCE.—The Will of the late Amos Lawrence has been probated. It is of great length, says the Traveller, and was made years ago, but a codicil added, states that he sees no reason to alter its conditions. His large property is left to his direct heirs, male and female, and their descendants. The document exhibits evidence of the peculiar business sagacity of the testator. His sons are named in the Will as the executors. In the codicil, after returning thanks to God for prolonging his life, he says, "I have been my own executor for many years, of the surplus property I have received, and intend to be while my powers of mind will allow it."

ANOTHER PRESENT TO GEN. PIERCE.—We saw in the bar-room at the Eagle, the other day, a rustic chair, which came from Indianapolis, Indiana, a present to the President elect. It is made from hickory branches, with the bark on, and although strongly and ingeniously put together, and of symmetrical form, appears to have been made with no other tools than an axe and a jacknife. Some of the bystanders enquired if that was "the chair of State."—State Capital Reporter.

A new church has just been completed in Easthampton, Mass., costing, including the furnishing, from $16,000 to $17,000, all but $3500 of which was paid by Hon. Samuel Williston. A fine organ costing $1700 was presented to the society by H. G. Knight, Esq. The bell, which cost $450, was presented by Seth Warner, Esq.

COAL IN IOWA.—The Burlington Telegraph speaks of a specimen of the coal recently discovered on Long Creek, near Columbus City. It is avouched by those who used it as equal to anthracite, and although bituminous in quality, it is said to be free from the unpleasant smell arising from coal of that description.

THE IMPROVED
EMPIRE STATE STOVE.
THIS justly celebrated COOKING STOVE having been improved in every way it could be to make its operations more complete, and its plates beautifully ornamented—no expense, time or trouble having been spared to make this the most complete Cooking Stove ever brought before the public—the subscriber feels assured in warranting the IMPROVED EMPIRE STATE superior to any stove in the market, as hundreds can testify who have used them for the past year.
This Stove has a very LARGE OVEN, which makes it desirable on account of doing more cooking with the same amount of fuel than can be done in any other stove. The flues are large, which ensures a good draft in all cases. The castings are very heavy and smooth, and those parts that come next the fire are extra thick, making it very durable. It is adapted to the use of either coal or wood, and we warrant them to operate as well with one as the other. We furnish them with the very best apparatus; and, altogether, it is the MOST DURABLE, ECONOMICAL and CONVENIENT COOKING STOVE ever made—complete in every respect. We ask the attention of all persons intending to purchase a new, or exchange their old stove, to an examination of the Improved Empire State.
We have also on hand a variety of other Cooking Stoves, called the "Banner," "Belle of the States," "King of the States," "Bay State," "Anglo Saxon," "Pearl of Troy," &c.; with a large lot of PARLOR STOVES, such as the Revere Air-Tight, Star, Revere Parlor Cook, Lady Franklin, for Wood or Coal; Shop, Office and Air-Tight Stoves, of different sizes and prices for either wood or coal.
Also an extensive assortment of HOUSEKEEPING GOODS; Wooden, Willow, Glass, Britannia, Japan, Tin, Hard, Enamel, and Brass Ware; Copper, Cast Iron, and Chain Pump; Window-Shades, Table Oil-cloths, &c.
All the above goods will be sold lower than can be bought elsewhere in this vicinity.
HIRAM JONES, 61 Market street,

THE ROGER WILLIAMS
COOKING STOVE.
FOR COAL OR WOOD.
THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the merits of this most beautifully modeled pattern; originally adapted for coal or wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the
Most Complete and Efficient
Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity. It is an elegant model, with fine smooth Providence castings, fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven, (by far the most important part of a cooking stove,) in point of capacity, and in regard to its operation, is unsurpassed by that of any other stove now in the market, it being lined with fire-brick to retain and equalize the heat, and provided with valves for the escape of steam, &c. arising from the roasting of meats—rendering it in this respect superior to the old fashioned but universally admired Tin Kitchen.
The broiling apparatus is constructed on an entirely new and original plan, and will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room. The sliding hearth is an improvement not to be found in any other stove.
The popularity of this over all other stoves now in the market, may be inferred from the fact that since its first introduction the last season, over THREE THOUSAND have been put into successful operation in New England and New York City.
Every stove is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser or the money refunded.
Each stove is warranted not to crack for twelve months from date of purchase. It is believed that this stove combines all the requirements that skill can invent, and is by far the most perfect cooking stove ever sold in Portsmouth. And though its price is higher than any other stove offered in this market of late, it is without question the cheapest in the end. All intending to purchase are respectfully invited to give this an examination before purchasing elsewhere.
Also, a variety of cheap Cook, Parlor, and Office Stoves, which are offered low.
J. E. CHAPMAN,

AN IRON MASTER'S WIFE.

We yesterday briefly noticed the death of Sir Josiah John Guest, Bt., the leading member of the firm which owned the large iron works at Dowlais, Glamorganshire, England. The grandfather of the deceased was the owner of the works at Dowlais, from his hands they passed to his son's, the father of the Baronet just deceased, and it was chiefly under his management that the Dowlais works have attained the important position they now occupy—the largest and most profitable iron works in the Kingdom. This is probably owing to the fact that Sir Josiah Guest practically understood every branch of the business carried on at Dowlais, and although born to the possession of considerable wealth, he did not hesitate to apply himself, during a long term of apprenticeship, to all the details of the mine and the forge. Sir Josiah was twice married, and by his last wife, who survives him, he leaves a large family. It is of this last wife that we wish to relate the following anecdote. She was a daughter of the Earl of Lindsay, and evidently took full as much interest in the success of the Dowlais works, as did her husband:

"The enormous advance which was made in the price of iron during the early history of the railway system, has very materially affected the outlay involved, either in making or repairing the permanent ways. The fortunes that have been made in consequence by many of the iron-masters, have been immense; and hence it is not surprising that Lady Charlotte Guest should have piqued herself more on being the wife of the great iron-master, than the daughter of the Scotch Earl. An amusing story is told of her ladyship, which so well illustrates the statement above made of the profit which accrued to those connected with the trade—a result mainly attributable to the increased demands made by the establishment of the railways of our country, and the continent of Europe—that we cannot refrain from quoting it.

It seems that her ladyship was generally observed to be in a state of excitement about the time the balance-sheets of the works was being made up; and as soon as it was completed, so eager was she to see the amount of profits, that she had a copy dispatched to her wherever she might be.

On one occasion, she had a grand party at her London residence, and when the festivity was at its height, a courier arrived from Dowlais with a tin box containing the expected document. Lady Charlotte ordered it to be brought to her in the brilliantly lighted saloon where she was surrounded by a circle of her aristocratic friends and relatives, who probably occasionally, like her mother, enjoyed a sneer at the cinder-hole. "What's that, Lady Charlotte?" exclaimed they, all crowding round the apparition of the tin-box. "'Tis our balance-sheet," answered her ladyship.—"Balance-sheet!" exclaimed the fair aristocrats; "what's a balance-sheet?" "It is an account made up, and showing the profit down at the works for the last twelve months."

The company laughed, for they thought, with Lady Lindsay of the cinder-hole; but the Welch iron-master's wife bided her time, for she knew the laugh would be with her as she opened the tin case, and drew out the document. "And so that's a balance-sheet," exclaimed her friends, crowding round the paper with the double entries and the red lines, and they looked on it as on a phenomenon—they had never seen one before; and if they had heard of one, they thought it was something belonging to a ship. "But what are the profits?" cried they, as Lady Charlotte scanned her eye over the paper. Lady Charlotte not seeming to heed them, and as though she spoke to herself, said, "Three hundred thousand pounds—a very fair year," and she re-committed the balance-sheet to its tin case, while peeresses looked as Lot's wife might have done as she was being changed into salt.—"Three hundred thousand pounds profit! What! you don't mean that in one year! "In one year," was the reply, as if there was nothing at all remarkable in the matter. "I'd be a Cinderella myself, said a Border Countess, to a husband with such business. Three hundred thousand pounds, only think! and all from that nasty iron—it beats the glass slipper!"—Albany Register.

A FOOL.—An exchange says the biggest fool of the present day is probably dead, for we read that one Mr. William Glover, joiner, Newcastle, England, fixed a pistol in his room so that any person entering would be shot.—This he did because the room had been entered in his absence, and contrary to his wish. Knowing the trick himself, he could so open the door as to occasion no discharge. It so happened, that he one day was unsuccessful in his attempt, and shot himself in the legs.—Still, however, he persisted in his folly, to call it by no harsher name, and last week he again discharged the pistol, and was killed.

The Earl of Aberdeen is the first prime minister who has not been a member of the Church of England, since the expulsion of James II. from the throne, and the restoration of Protestant ascendancy by the revolution of 1688. His lordship professes the faith of his forefathers, and is a regular member of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland.

RELIEF FOR MADEIRA.—The bark Nautilus, from Boston will carry out supplies to the starving inhabitants of Madeira. The public are invited to send any articles of food or of light clothing, to the vessel, lying at India wharf. Notice of the articles thus sent, may be left at 36 India wharf. The whole grape crop of the island has been cut off this season, and the people have been left in a state of abject poverty.—Courier.

Booth, the tragedian, had the misfortune to have his nose broken by Tom Flynn, some years since. A lady once said to him, "I like your acting and beautiful reading, Mr. Booth, but I cannot get over your nose." "No wonder, madam," replied he, "the bridge is gone.

By the recent lamented demise of his father, the Hon. Charles G. Atherton of New Hampshire, will come into possession of a fortune of about $200,000.

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH:
MONDAY, JANUARY 24, 1853.

With the present month closes the First (half-yearly) Volume of the Daily Morning Chronicle. On Tuesday next we commence a new Volume.—Our terms, as published in imprint under the outside head, are $4 per year, payable semi-annually; or $3 strictly in advance—50 cts. being deducted from the $4, if payment be made for a year within six months of the time of subscribing—which time, for those who commenced with No. 1, expires with January.

THE PILOT.

In answer to a brief notice of M'Gee's new book on Ireland, the editor of the Pilot sent us his paper, and also the book, which we will read carefully, and then notice according to the impressions made by it. We mean to make a good use of the paper, in the mean time, and hope the exchange may be continued. Not one in twenty of our readers, as we suppose, ever sees the Pilot, which is the Catholic newspaper of New England, published at Boston—nor do most of them have any proper idea of its contents, or of the influence it is calculated to exert on the reading portion of our foreign catholic population, and through them on those who cannot read. We design to make a few choice extracts from editorials of the Pilot, which will show our citizens what sort of opinions are taught to the men and women whom they employ daily, not only in laborious, but in confidential occupations.

The paper before us contains an article of two columns in length, commenting on and criticizing Mr. Meagher's speech, and condemning both it and him in pretty strong terms, for having "cast in his lot with the world of Mazzini, Kossuth and the other enemies of the Church of God."

It contains, besides, seven columns on what it terms "the Madiai Farce,"—and it is from this article we make some extracts. The drift of the article is, to show that the Madiai family are justly and legally punished for a political offence, viz. distributing condemned versions of the bible, and tracts, and trying to make proselytes—against the laws of a Catholic country.

CHOICE EXTRACTS FROM THE PILOT.

Under the head of the Madiai Farce, the Pilot says:

"Our readers have been somewhat amused, no doubt, by the conduct of certain persons, some of them knaves, others fools, others simply misinformed, who have been latterly raising a great cry against the Tuscan government, because it found it necessary to imprison a few individuals who have been convicted, after a fair trial, of breaking the laws of the land.

The Italian governments, Sardinia excepted, are Christian, that is to say, Catholic governments. Sardinia professes to be a liberal, —a godless nation. The people are not,—the rulers and demagogues are, an infidel set."

Then, condemning the fanatics, for building Protestant chapels in Turin, &c., it says, in regard to their converts:

"So Protestantism is to them, as accommodating as Atheism. Why should it not be, seeing that it is Atheism, dressed up in Christian tatters?

We would not believe a sane Italian on his oath, who would declare himself to be a sincere Protestant.

Every one, Catholic or Protestant, knows that the attempts, on the part of Protestant societies to introduce heresy into Italy, do not come from the love of souls, but from an insane hatred against Popery. Most, if not all Protestants, profess to believe that salvation is attainable in the Catholic Church. Their motive for sending missionaries into Italy is therefore totally different from that which urges them to send missionaries into heathen countries.

Moreover, history shows that the introduction of Protestantism into a Catholic nation was always followed by long and most bloody wars, it being a historical axiom that heretics, who rebel against God, will certainly rebel against the State."

All the preceding extracts are mere scraps, and of course do not fully give the ideas of the Pilot. But the following remarks on Church and State are too closely connected to be divided; and they would suffer by abridgment.

"Whatever may be the character of Protestantism in America, it is certain that, like republicanism, it does not work at all well in certain countries. Either it is not fit for them or they are not fit for it. That public distress and cruel wars followed wherever it has been introduced into a Catholic country is a notorious fact. That these would follow its introduction into Italy is no less certain. The Italian governments know this, and therefore prohibit its entrance. For this reason, if for no other, foreign Protestants should let Italy alone.

People may cry against this as a union of Church and State. It is no such thing. The union of Church and State is a thing which the Church has never ceased to condemn.—That union exists when the Church is under the control of the State,—is its tool,—is one of its departments. Such is the case in England, Prussia, Sweden, Norway, and other Protestant countries, where a religion is established by law,—that is, receives its existence,—its character from the State. In Catholic countries such a state of things is regarded as monstrous, impious. The government finds the Church in possession,—finds that itself and the whole people are Catholic, finds that Catholicity is inseparably interwoven with the very life of the people,—knows that incalculable misery, and the shedding of rivers of blood would follow any attempt to subvert it, and so the government formally recognises this Church, which it could neither build up nor destroy, and aids her, in its own way, in and according to its disposition and power, maintaining Catholicity as the law of the land. It aids her in keeping the sheep in good pastures, and in driving away the wolves. All this does not imply union of Church and State."

Now, if we understand this, it means that Catholic governments ought to drive away Protestant propagandists,—but that Protestant or godless governments ought not to drive away the propagandists of Catholicity. The union of Church and State in England is a very wicked thing—but in Spain and Portugal, in France and Italy, the recognition of the church by the government is a righteous thing. If we are wrong, we hope the Pilot will correct the error. The Pilot's conclusion of this argument is worthy of being copied.

"In fact, Catholicity alone makes the union of Church and State impossible. Protestantism naturally favors it."

One or two scraps more, and we close.

"Now, even according to the Protestant rule of faith,—they call it the Bible, but they have no faith, and therefore no rule,—heresy is a mortal sin. A mortal sin kills the soul and damns the whole man to hell fire.

Some Protestants may object to this, and say that heresy is no sin. We do not intend to argue the point. The Scriptures are plain enough on the subject, and, what is more to the purpose, Christ, His Apostles, the Church, have settled the question. Others may deny that Protestantism is a heresy, and call upon us to prove it. We shall take no such pains, just now. The Church is in possession, she has cut them off, and it is their part to prove, if they can, that they are not heretics."

We offer no comments. Our design is chiefly to show our readers what kind of matter is distributed among our Catholic fellow citizens every week, in almost the only religious paper they read. They may perhaps, from these extracts, make up their minds as to the kind of influence it exerts. But it would be far better if more of our people bought and read the Pilot for themselves, and thus learnt what Catholicity really is, as it exists among us.

Maine Law in New York.—Albany, Jan. 21.—In the Assembly, this morning, Mr. Burroughs had asked permission to present in person a memorial of 28,000 ladies in favor of the Maine Law, and gave their reasons for a compliance with the petition. The rules were suspended, and Mrs. McKnight presented their address and the memorial, which was sent up to the Clerk's table and read.

What farce will be next enacted? The legislators of New York, we doubt not, will yield to the charms of Mrs. McKnight, if they are not entirely overwhelmed by the 28,000 other ladies who petition for the Maine law. As matters go, our halls of legislation will soon become little better than the tumultuous assemblages of the Athenians, in the worst days of the republic.—Boston Chronicle.

Fie, fie! Mr. Chronicle.—You seem to have no sympathy with the progressive ladies of the day. We thought you were a ladies' man; but if you call their petition a farce, and their presentation a tumult,—there's no hope of you. If you get all the ladies against your cause, it 's gone.

Hurrah for the Breeches of Blue.—Breeches are all the go in Paris—and pantaloons are getting to be vulgar.

The accounts by the last steamer, state that all the costumes now making by the Court tailors, are small clothes, this style of pantaloons being obligatory at Court. It is also expected that in private circles the short garment will also replace the long loose trowsers which have been the vogue for many years.

The Lawrence Courier speaks in the following terms of the accident to the Manchester and Lawrence train, by which Gen. Pierce's son was killed and two other passengers have since died:

"The accident was caused by a defect in the axle, which the machinists who were present think, must have been plainly in sight for many days! The axle is three inches in diameter; the thickness of an inch and a quarter in the centre was broken at the time of the accident; but the remainder, comprising much the greater portion of the iron, has the appearance of having been cracking around deeper and deeper for some time, so that while in any position the upper sides of the fracture came together and the bottom spread apart, thus straining the central portion until it gave way."

A grizzly bear sometime ago escaped from the freight train of the Stonington Railroad. The bear gnawed through his cage, and breaking out of the cars, made his escape, and took to the woods where he was afterwards shot. The owners of the bear claim damages of the railroad, and have given notice that they shall institute legal proceedings.

They will lose the cost if they do; for no jury would give them a copper's damages, unless the railway company guaranteed the bear's arrival safe.

Scene on Boston Common a Hundred Years ago.—Bradford, in his History of Massachusetts, states that on the Anniversary of the Society for Promoting Industry, three hundred females of Boston assembled on the Common with their spinning wheels. They were neatly attired in cloth of their own manufacture, and a great crowd of spectators collected to witness the scene. This was in 1753, just one hundred years ago.—Boston Transcript.

LOCAL.

Almost an Accident.—As the first down train on the Concord railroad on Saturday morning, was nearing the depot, the engine was accidentally switched on to the wrong track. Before the engine could be stopped it came in contact with a number of freight cars loaded with timber, which arrested its career, destroyed the cow-catcher and made shipwreck of the lantern, but did not otherwise injure the locomotive. A number of workmen, who were on the freight train, engaged in unloading the timber, were surprised at finding themselves suddenly and simultaneously reduced to a sitting posture without their knowledge or consent,—but no one was hurt.

☞ We are happy to learn, from the Dover Gazette, that Thomas H. Cushing, Esq., of that place, whose injury by a fall we mentioned several days ago, is less hurt than he appeared to be when he was taken up insensible. It is now hoped he will speedily recover from the effects of the fall.

Ecclesiastical.—Rev. B. F. Parsons was installed over First Congregational Church and Society, in Dover, N. H., 12th inst.

THE BURNING SHIP.

Dangers of the Seas.—By the arrival of the Europa, we have some particulars of a terrible catastrophe, reported by the ship Orlando, Capt. White, at Havre from Mobile. On the 24th Nov., the ship St. Georges sailed from Liverpool for New York, with 127 passengers, mostly Irish, 25 crew, and a valuable cargo. On the morning of the 24th December, lat. 46 11 N, lon. 25 30 W. the ship was discovered to be on fire. Notwithstanding strenous efforts, in which 7 or 8 persons were suffocated by the smoke, the flames burnt out from the deck, and being unable to do more, Capt. Brainson mustered the women and children on the poop to save them as long as possible from the horrible death that started them in the face; fortunately at this moment the Orlando hove in sight, and bore down to render assistance. The sea ran so high that the ship's boats were speedily swamped, and none floated but the life boat which carried only five at a time; but by means of which, after 64 hours incessant labor, 78 of the passengers and crew were placed on board the Orlando. The stotm had by this time increased into a tempest, and the Orlando had just got clear of the burning ship, when the latter sunk: about 15 men were drowned in trying to reach the Orlando—8 were suffocated by smoke—and 28 were burned or sunk with the ship. Some hours afterwards the Orlando had most of her sails blown away; it was however determined to bear up for port, and after eleven days of anxiety, being short of water and provisions, she succeeded in reaching Havre. A subscription was commenced in behalf of the survivors. The conduct of Capt. White and crew of the Orlando is above all praise.

The ship Lady of the West, from Bristol December, 23d for New Orleans, is also reported lost: she was abandoned, master and fourteen men picked up in the long boat and carried to Falmouth—four others in the pinnace were taken to Brest. An unusual number of minor casualties are reported—mostly damaged in heavy gales along the coast.

A man named Scott, hid, as he supposed safely, $2012 in gold dust on the banks of Deer Creek, near Nevada. When he went to look for it, it was not to be found.—San Francisco Alta-California.

The banks of California are very unsafe for deposite. A gentleman, recently from California, tells us that the great difficulty in that country is not to get money, but to keep it! A workman is paid off in silver. It is too heavy, as well as unsafe, to carry about the person; if left at his stopping place—for few men have homes in California—it is almost sure to be stolen; and there are no banks where it can be safely deposited. Thus the very wealth which the man has undergone so much to acquire, becomes a burden and a plague—as is not unfrequently the case on this side of the continent. —Portland Transcript.

Fearful Leap.—The Louisville Courier states that at the recent burning of the paper mill in that city, Edward Johnson, a member of the Mechanic Fire Company No. 1, saved his life in a most miraculous manner. He was standing upon a platform, playing a stream upon the fire, from the Mechanic engine, and seeing a wall about to tumble in, began to look about for some way to retreat. The flames had closed in behind him, and were rapidly surrounding him on all sides—the wall had already commenced to crack and totter: there was but one way to escape, and that was a leap from where he was standing into a cellar, which was filled with burning timber about 35 feet below. He threw down the pipe, and taking a space at the crowd of anxious spectators around, jumped from the platform, and landed in the cellar, uninjured. He managed to scramble out of the place he had jumped into without being burned.

Massacre of Nuns at Paris.—A community of nuns, with their abbess, were all condemned to the guillotine while the fury of the French revolution was at its height.—Many of these victims were young and beautiful, and most of them possessed angelic voices, and as they passed to execution, attired in their monastic habits, through the stormy streets of Paris, they raised the hymn of Veni Creator. They had never been heard to sing it so divinely, and the celestial chorus ceased not for a moment, not when they ascended the steps of the scaffold, nor while the work of death was going on, though it became feeble as one after the other fell under the guillotine; and at last it was sustained but by one voice; which was that of the abbess; but that at length ceased also, when she in turn submitted to the fatal stroke.—Jameson.

Antrim, N. H.—We extract the following from the early history of Antrim. In 1785 the first meeting house was erected, and so pleased were the people, that the Sabbath after the raising of the frame they met in it for worship, having laid down a loose flooring. It may amuse the present generation to learn that in 1793 the town chose three persons, (men who sat in the meeting house near the doors) to be dog-pelters, their office being to cane dogs which presumed to enter the house. The records of a few subsequent years exhibit the votes "continuing the dog-pelters." It is questionable whether they did not create more disturbance than they prevented.

CANADIAN RECIPROCITY.— Washington, Jan. 22.—The Committee on Commerce have decided on the main principles of the Canadian reciprocity bill. The articles to be mutually exchanged free of duty are—agricultural products, lumber and fish.

One half of the Maine delegation is favorable to the bill, and the other half opposes it on account of its probable effect on the lumber interest. The friends of the measure are confident of their ability to carry it through this session.

EXPORTATION OF BREADSTUFFS.—Philadelphia, Jan. 21. The ship John C. Calhoun, for Liverpool, sailed last evening with a cargo consisting of 30,000 bushels of grain, and over 9000 barrels of flour. The ships John Cummings, and Tonwawanda, are loading for the same destination, with flour and wheat.

ANOTHER SUPPOSED MURDER IN NEW YORK.—We learn from the New York Mirror, that a man named Hines was found dead in his room in Cherry street New York, on Tuesday, with a cut on his lip, and several contused wounds on his head, as is alleged, being the result of violence inflicted upon his person quite recently. Whether his death was actually caused by violence still remains to be seen. It is said that on Saturday night the deceased, while beating his wife, was himself attacked by three men who came up stairs from the street and severely beat him. Charles Miller, a Swedish sailor, was arrested on suspicion of knowing some facts in relation to the deceased's death. In the house where he lived there are 124 families, some of whom bear anything but a fair character.

NEWS FROM EUROPE.

By steamship Europa, we have seven days later dates from Liverpool.

ENGLAND.—Monday evening a superb banquet was given at Liverpool, to Hon. J. R. Ingersoll, by the American Chamber of Commerce; 60 gentlemen were present, among them Earls of Derby and Sefton. The Chair was occupied by Mr. Eyre Evans; Mr. Malcolmson, Vice President. Mr. Ingersoll's speech was much applauded. Earl Derby made a long speech conciliatory to United States. Last night, 7th, a similar banquet was given in Manchester, presided over by R. Barnes, Esq., Mayor of that city, supported by the Bishop of the diocese and a large number of influential gentlemen. Space precludes more than a reference to the Manchester banquet.

FRANCE.—The Emperor of Russia remained firm in his refusal to use the term Brother, and compromised, by writing Monsieur Amie. The representatives of the United States have received their credentials, and the Germanic diet have formally decided to recognize Napoleon. The Pope, Portugal, Sweden and Greece, have already done so. The Emperor said to the Pope's nuncio, "I trust, under Divine Providence, to be able to develope the prosperity of France, and to secure the peace of Europe." The church Geneive, late Pantheon, has been opened to divine worship.

Prince Murat demanded twelve millions francs for the Crown property of King Murat, with compound interest. Napoleon offers to pay the amount without the interest, but no answer has yet been returned. The Patric denies the occupation of Samana by the French.

BELGIUM.—The ratifications of the commercial treaty between France and Belgium were exchanged at Belgium on the 31st of December. The force of the Belgian army is fixed for the year at 700,000 men. The police of Brussels ordered that the funeral of Madame Kossuth should take place during the night, to prevent a political demonstration.

DANGEROUS EXPERIMENT.—A day or two since, a young lad residing in Newton Place, Boston, for the purpose, as he states, of trying an experiment, put a quantity of powder into a glass bottle, and then placing it in the fireplace of his chamber, covered it over with ashes. He then placed one end of a long wisp of paper in the nose of the bottle, and set fire to the other end. Instantly the flame was communicated to the powder, causing a most severe explosion. The boy, who was watching the result of the experiment, had his face considerably burnt and otherwise injured by the pieces of glass which flew in every direction.—Traveller.

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS
AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.

PATENT METALLIC
LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.

THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.
The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.
☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.
Specimens of the article may be seen at the office of the subscriber.

THE ART OF BEING BEAUTIFUL.

IT has long been a desideratum that some scientific man should apply himself to the study of the human scalp. Dr. JACOBY, the great Pathologist, from Berlin, has done this, and in this new field has attained the most brilliant results.—Satisfied by an analysis of the red colored alcohols and other washes, of their deleterious effects, he compounded his celebrated Berliner Haar Wasche, to the efficacy of which thousands of witnesses might be summoned, of the accompanying character:—

BOSTON, Jan 1, 1848.
This is to certify that I have had an article called the Berliner Haar Wasche applied during the past five or six weeks to my head, for the purpose of renewing and strengthening the hair. It has been very effective in producing such a result; and I can cheerfully recommend the same to those afflicted with baldness or diseases connected therewith. JONAS CHICKERING.

It frequently happens that ladies suffer from hair eaters, and apply some of the nostrums prepared by apothecaries, who think, because they can make poor soda water, they can prepare good hair wash. The effect of these is often highly injurious. Ladies, use none of them,—consult Dr. Jacoby, who will eradicate the nuisance and guarantee a beatiful head of hair. His motto is, no cure, no pay.
* To those at a distance, the Champoo Washer Nos. 1 and 2, and Haar Wasche, are recommended.—There is, however, no substitute for a specific, and all persons troubled, should if possible see Dr. Jacoby.
In the course of his scientific research, Dr. Jacoby has discovered a Hair Dye that does not stain the skin, will give any shade of color, and will stand exposure in all weathers. The accompanying certificate, from a highly scientific source, must satisfy the most incredulous.

BOSTON, NOV. 18, 1851.
I have seen Mr. Moses Jacoby's Hair Dye, used in coloring hair of a dress brownish black, of a beautiful natural color, and can certify that it is perfectly efficient and permanent.
CHARLES T. JACKSON, M D.,
Assayer to the State of Mass.
Dr. Jacoby's rooms are at No. 9 Franklin street, Boston, where he may be consulted at all hours.—There are always in attendance in both ladies' and gentlemen's rooms the most skilful hair dressers.

PATENTS.
American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed Agent of the United States Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th section of the Act of 1837.
Having relinquished the agency for the transmission of models, and adopting a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent can be procured several weeks earlier, he continues to forward them, as before, free of expense, and to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe.
The subscriber aims to present to inventors superior facilities for obtaining patents; and is now prepared to make Specifications at rates cheaper by ten to twenty per cent. than those of other agencies. They can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.
R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"PATENT OFFICE, ——
"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.
"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent I am very respectfully,
Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,
Commissioner of Patents."

THE TEAR OF PITY.

God smiled—and all the angels bowed—
As through the bright celestial crowd
Sweet mercy's mandate ran;
That Pity with her pearly tear,
Should dwell within the earthly sphere
To soothe the mourner, man.
Although her birth-place was above,
Her radiant home a heaven of love.

And Pity is our immortal guest—
Her temple is the human breast,
Where soft compassion 's given;
Her tear 's the essence of the soul,
That pure emotion prompts to roll,
Like falling dew from heaven.
For fellow-man it sweetly flows,
The rain drop to the weeping rose.

It trembles in the brightest eye,
It gushes in the burthen'd sigh,
And dews the damask cheek:
In sympathy it seems to start
From the full fountain of the heart,
Some suffering heart to seek;
It flows, too, with the fleeting breath—
Grief's agent at the house of death.

When round the wretched wails the wind,
Where man in misery has pined
Within the dungeon's walls,
Or where the hovel's tenants show
The bare retreat of want and woe,
When the rude tempest falls—
There Pity doth her vigils keep,
As sent o'er human ills to weep.

But O! her sweetest tear is shed,
Like sacred incense to the dead!
Poured forth to memory's shrine:
For there from nature's purest source,
The silent tear pursues its course,
And man looks half divine,
As he bedews in gleam or gloom,
The child of sorrow's lonely tomb!

THE "UNCLE SIMON" ASSAULT.—The persons who were indicted for riot and assault in breaking into the Democratic General Committee Room, at Tammany Hall, New York, on the 2d of December, and assaulting the members of the Committee, injuring Augustus Schell, Esq., so severely that his life was endangered, were tried in the Court of Sessions on Wednesday, and convicted.

The Lantern says "fancy stocks" being all the "go" in the "street," a decided preference should be given to those roalroads on which most accidents happen, as they evidently do, in mercantile parlance, "a smashing business."

Something New.
THE subscribers have been appointed Sole Agents in this City for the sale of W. B. Ross's PORTABLE BED CHAIR (Patent applied for.)—A new and desirable article for Invalids suffering from Rheumatism, Dislocations, Hydrocheses, and other complaints to which the human frame is subject. By means of this Chair being attached to footsteds of any kind, the patient may be raised or inclined at any desired angle or comfortable position, with perfect ease and without any handling of the patient. It is truly an article which should be in every house, as its trifling cost places it within the means of all.
The public are requested to call and examine it.

THE IMPROVED
EMPIRE STATE STOVE.
THIS justly celebrated COOKING STOVE having been improved in every way it could be to make its operations more complete, and its plates beautifully ornamented—no expense, time or trouble having been spared to make this the most complete Cooking Stove ever brought before the public—the subscriber feels assured in warranting the IMPROVED EMPIRE STATE superior to any stove in the market, as hundreds can testify who have used them for the past year.
This Stove has a very LARGE OVEN, which makes it desirable on account of doing more cooking with the same amount of fuel than can be done in any other stove. The flues are large, which ensures a good draft in all cases. The castings are very heavy and smooth, and those parts that come next the fire are extra thick, making it very durable. It is adapted to the use of either coal or wood, and we warrant them to operate as well with one as the other. We furnish them with the very best apparatus; and, altogether, it is the MOST DURABLE, ECONOMICAL and CONVENIENT COOKING STOVE ever made—complete in every respect. We ask the attention of all persons intending to purchase a new, or exchange their old stove, to an examination of the Improved Empire State.
We have also on hand a variety of other Cooking Stoves, called the "Banner," "Belle of the States," "King of the States," "Bay State," "Anglo Saxon," "Pearl of Troy," &c.; with a large lot of PARLOR STOVES, such as the Revere Air-Tight, Star, Revere Parlor Cook, Lady Franklin, for Wood or Coal; Shop, Office and Air-Tight Stoves, of different sizes and prices for either wood or coal.
Also an extensive assortment of HOUSEKEEPING GOODS; Wooden, Willow, Glass, Britannia, Japan, Tin, Hard, Enamel, and Brass Ware; Copper, Cast Iron, and Chain Pump; Window-Shades, Table Oil-cloths, &c.
All the above goods will be sold lower than can be bought elsewhere in this vicinity.

THE ROGER WILLIAMS
COOKING STOVE.
FOR COAL OR WOOD.
THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the merits of this most beautifully modeled pattern; equally adapted for coal or wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the
Most Complete and Efficient
Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity. It is an elegant model, with fine smooth Providence castings, fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven, (by far the most important part of a cooking stove,) in point of capacity, and in regard to its operation, is unsurpassed by that of any other stove now in the market, it being lined with fire-brick to retain and equalize the heat, and provided with valves for the escape of steam, &c. arising from the roasting of meats—rendering it in this respect superior to the old fashioned but universally admired Tin Kitchen.
The broiling apparatus is constructed on an entirely new and original plan, and will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from the fat in broiling process can escape into the room. The sliding hearth is an improvement not to be found in any other stove.
The popularity of this over all other stoves now in the market, may be inferred from the fact that since its first introduction the last season, over THREE THOUSAND have been put into successful operation in New England and New York City.
Every stove is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser or the money refunded.
Each stove is warranted not to crack for twelve months from date of purchase. It is believed that this stove combines all the improvements that skill can invent, and is by far the most perfect cooking stove ever sold in Portsmouth, and for the price is higher than any other stove offered in this market of late, it is without question the cheapest in the end. All intending to purchase are respectfully invited to give this an examination before purchasing elsewhere.
Also, a variety of cheap Cook, Parlor, and Office Stoves, which are offered low.

IN FASHION.

From a spicy paper under the caption of "Fashion," in Putnam's Monthly for January, we make the following readable extracts:—

"'Tis fashion that makes cowards of us all. A belle's face in the bonnet of a score of years since, was like a rose at the bottom of a coal scuttle. Now it stands forth from her bonnet like that rose bursting from the bud. I consider that we are the gainers. But I am not very turbulent in my joy, for I wonder whether the next freak will not be to cover the face with the oriental Yashmak, leaving one eye only to beam soft splendor through that terrible eclipse. It is fashion that rules us, not taste, not beauty, not the becoming, nor the picturesque.

Not many years ago our mothers all wore leg-of-mutton sleeves,—stiff, starched, clumsy wings, opposed to every feeling of propriety and sense of beauty. Then came the sleeves puffed about the shoulder and upper part of the arm. Aunt Jane, I remember, used to wear under-sleeves, or circular cushions, stuffed with down, or feathers, or something else, to make the puff of the outer sleeve sufficiently prominent; they used to sit in these deformed dresses, and laugh by the hour over Queen Anne's hoops and heels, and the Chinese coiffure of Louis XIV's ladies.

And to-day at dinner, as cousin Maude held her plate for a cut of roast turkey, and dipped her falling-lace under-sleeve into a dish of gravy, and then dragged it over the table cloth, she was shouting with laughter at the idea of my mother in those other sleeves.—Maude hates the Bloomers, because they are contemporary, but merely derides the high heels and short skirts of earlier days. This she did vehemently one day last week, as I escorted her up the Fifth Avenue, and, at the same moment, her skirts were sweeping the mud and offal of the street, to the great saving of the scavenger's salary, but, unhappily, to the great disgust of every decent person.

"My dear coz," Maude says to me, "one must be in the fashion."

"But who makes it?" inquire I desperately.

"Don't be a fool, John," she replies, and from this pious devotee, I can get no other account of the goddess.

Flamingo, the philosophical, indulges in one startling theory. Personal modesty, he says, as distinguished from the genuine instinct, is altogether a matter of fashion. Thus our grandmothers shuddered more at the idea of showing their ears, than our sisters their ankles. In the East a woman shields her face from observation, at all hazards, whatever other part of her person may be exposed.—Ladies and gentlemen in Queen Anne's time, talked, read and wrote with a luscious breadth of style that is altogether too cloying for modern taste (says Flamingo); and they listened to plays which no decent woman would now care to read. "And to bring the matter a little closer," said Flamingo to Claude Fay at Mrs. Bounce's ball, "why should any girl here complain of any habit at any time, when even your friend, Miss Maude is draped around the neck with such generous parsimony?"

Fashion is but a whim of form, then.—There is the universal instinct of modesty, but its expression varies. There is the universal necessity of clothing, but its material and its arrangement differ with countries and times.

The difference is a change of fashion—nothing more. The instinct was the same in the first of the Mochians and in the last girl "out." We all laugh at fashion, but we take care not to sin against it. "What an intolerable vanity," says Uncle Sol, of the balls to which Maude drags him. But Uncle Sol squeezes his feet into patent leather boots, his hands into kid gloves, puts on a black suit and a white shirt, and proceeds to Martyrdom. Uncle Sol is wise. It is better to submit. No man will wisely try to wear woollen clothes in the fervors of the Dog-star, nor to saunter up Niagara. It is a mortifying thing if you please, that the master is mastered; that man, who is the head of nature, must submit to such dumb forces as the sun and Niagara.

Muse to the last upon the mortification, but while you muse you submit.

We are all in the same ship."

RACE OF A MADMAN.—John Madden, an Irishman, living in Warren, while in a state of delirium tremens, last week Thursday morning, left his family of children, whom the mother had intrusted to his charge for a few days, and taking off his boots and stockings, and coat, which he left by the way side, ran from Warren to Spencer, a distance of twelve miles, before he was overtaken, although immediately after he left, he was hotly pursued with horses and carriages. The race occurred during the severe storm of that morning, and when Madden was overtaken, his feet and legs were badly frozen, and his feet much lacerated by contact with the frozen earth. His flight through West Brookfield, Brookfield, and East Brookfield, in the face of the storm, and almost in a state of nudity, is described as frightful, while his speed was almost that of a deer. He was taken back to Warren, and upon being asked where he was going he said he "guessed he was going to sign the pledge."—Barre Gazette.

FEMALE WHALERS.—At one time there have been enumerated in Honolulu the wives of twenty-five sea captains. From such information as can be obtained, it is supposed that one in six of all whaling captains is accompanied by his wife. This practice is annually increasing. This is a new feature in the prosecution of the whaling business. Probably a score of American ladies have visited the Arctic Ocean during the past summer.—Honolulu Friend, Nov. 17.

"My dear," enquired a gay young wife of her calculating husband, as she reached her rosy little mouth to be kissed, on his return from business, "have you seen that magnificent set of parlor furniture which the Jenkinses have just bought?" "Hum, no, my love! but I have seen the upholster's bill for it." She made up a mouth at him, but wouldn't be kissed.

DAILY Morning Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH:
TUESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1853.

With the present month closes the First (half-yearly) Volume of the Daily Morning Chronicle. On Tuesday next we commence a new Volume.—Our terms, as published in imprint under the outside head, are $4 per year, payable semi-annually; or $3 strictly in advance—50 cts. being deducted from the $4, if payment be made for a year within six months of the time of subscribing—which time, for those who commenced with No. 1, expires with January.

DEMOCRATIC EXTRACTS.

The N. H. Patriot of Jan. 12th, says:

"Some of the doings of this Legislature have been as objectionable as those of any Democratic Legislature ever assembled in this State."

A fall Democratic Senatorial Convention for District No. 1, held on the 8th of January, in Portsmouth, passed the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That we have looked upon a large part of the legislation of this State for several years past with regret and mortification as being unsound in principle, and corrupt in operation and tendency," &c.

Resolved, That reform of these serious abuses is demanded by justice, honor and every consideration of regard for our principles and our cause."

From the above extracts we must infer that some great changes are designed, by the men or parties who use such language,—but we are ignorant of their nature. We have looked over the papers in vain to see what is complained of, and what is desired. We shall watch the movements of all the parties, and endeavored to keep our readers apprised of every change worth mentioning.

Ericsson's Caloric Ship.—Dr. Nichols, Haverhill, Mass., in a recent lecture on "Caloric," illustrated the principle of Ericsson's heat saving apparatus, attached to his wonderful engine, by a familiar example. He could think of nothing which would illustrate the office of the wire gauze disc's in this new motive power so well, as by referring to what is known as a respirometer, an instrument made by placing together three or four thicknesses of wire gauze properly secured in cloth, and worn over the mouth by persons of sensitive lungs. In this instrument the warm breath in passing out at each expiration is obliged to traverse the gauze, and in doing so it leaves upon it its warmth, so that when the inspiration is made, the cold air in passing in takes up the heat and is warmed. The cold air from without, thus enters the lungs at nearly the same temperature of the expired breath, and prevents irritability from cold. Here then, is a caloric engine upon a small scale, the air cells of the lungs occupy and subserve the same purpose as the cylinder and piston in Mr. Ericsson's engine. This instrument has been in use many years, and is an excellent article in some cases. Thousands have been using the same principle for the purpose of warming air upon a small scale, but for a different object.

He is said, by a correspondent of the Boston Journal, to have used a diagram, whereby he made the motive power of the new ship quite plain. If so, we hope to have his lecture in our City Lyceum—or in the Portsmouth, if the course is not full, or if some lecturer fails.

Doings in New York.—The two wings of the New York Democratic party, which united to vote for President and Governor, have separated again and are quite hostile now, and at open war. At Albany, on Friday, the Ladies' Temperance Association, in session, were allowed permission to present their petition by delegation, to the legislature. Upon which—

Four ladies, very handsomely and fashionably attired in the costume of their sex, presented themselves in the middle aisle—Mr. Burroughs accompanying them, bearing a carpet bag big with petitions—and halting under the great chandelier, addressed the Chair, through Miss Emily Clarke of Le Roy, who read in a very clear and firm voice, from a manuscript in her gloved hand, an address.

The address of Miss Emily, among other things, asked "protection, that our hearthstones may not be desolated—that the little ones around our firesides may not be more than fatherless; that our sons may be saved from the drunkard's doom." It was received with applause, when the ladies retired.

Ship St. George.—The Boston Courier states that the St. George, whose burning at sea we mentioned yesterday, was a fine ship of 845 tons, built at Newburyport by Donald McKay in Nov. 1843, and owned by several parties in New York. She was insured for $40,000 in various offices in that city. Her cargo is partly, if not all insured, also in New York.

The cost of lighting the large and splendid new Music Hall, in Boston, is $14 a night for all the gas burners. The hall is let for a series of concerts or lectures, for $50 a night, one half the burners lighted, or $57 with all the burners lighted. The hall is very well lighted with half the burners.

Home-made Scripture.—There is a plenty of this article in the market, but the quality of it is very poor. The Boston Mail closes a lively article on sleigh-riding, as follows:

"Eat, drink and be merry to day, for tomorrow ye may die."—Scripture.

To careful readers we need not say there is no such Scripture—but to the careless we may add, that the nearest approach to it is found in Isaiah 22: 13. I. Cor. 15: 32,—where part of the words are used as the language of desperation.

In another part of the same paper we read,

"With the exception of the Hottentots, we are acquainted with no people whose connection with dirt is so intimate as those to whom St. Paul wrote his celebrated epistle."

Did he write but one?—or is there only one that is celebrated? or what is meant?

Fourteen epistles in the New Testament are attributed to Paul. Ten of them are written to collective bodies of christians, and the remaining four to individuals.

Sensation in Washington on Etiquette.—In Washington, recently, the wealthy banker, Mr. Riggs, recently dined a large party. The Russian Minister, Mr. Bodisco, was honored with the next seat to Mr. Riggs. M. Sartiges, the French Minister, complained with warmth, because no lady was assigned to him, saying that if the host was not ignorant of European etiquette, the Minister of France should have been better treated. Mr. Riggs replied that he knew nothing of foreign customs, but deemed that he had a right, in his own house, to do as he pleased. The affair produced a sensation.

The sensation produced on our minds by reading the account, is that of wonder, that our sensible, well educated men who go abroad as ambassadors, to reside at foreign courts, should deem it needful to ape the manners and customs of such apes or monkeys as sometimes come among us in the capacity of foreign ministers. In the case before us, Mr. Riggs' answer appears natural and manly, but might have been improved by the friendly suggestion, that the gentleman's room would be better than his company, for the remainder of the evening.

The Madiai Family.—The following resolutions offered in the New York Assembly by Mr. Beekman of New York city, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Legislature of the state of New York have regarded with deep solicitude and regret the recent persecutions to which Francisco Madiai and his wife, Rosa Madiai, have been subjected in the kingdom Tuscany, for the alleged crime of reading the Holy Scriptures.

Resolved, That the congratulations with which the State of New York formally and by public act hailed in 1847 the efforts of Pius the IXth to ameliorate the condition of the Italian people, and to bestow upon them the incalculable blessings of national independence and constitutional freedom, make eminently proper at this time a formal and public remonstrance against cruel and flagrant oppression in the same land.

Resolved, That the President of the United States is respectfully requested to exert his best influence with the Government of Tuscany to obtain, as a favor asked by a people who welcome all strangers, and protects all religions, permission for the Madiai and their fellow prisoners, for the same offence, to emigrate to this country.

Surmounting High Grades.—In his speech delivered at the railroad celebration at Wheeling, the President of the Baltimore and Ohio road said: "As to the power of overcoming high grades, Mr. Mayor, we claim to have taught a lesson to the world. During the whole of the past summer, this company carried the United States mail over a grade of 530 feet to the mile, without the aid of assistant power, and every bar of iron which was laid upon the track between the Kingswood Tunnel and Fairmont, was passed over the same summit."

This is up-hill work, and certainly could not be accomplished on New England roads in winter, unless, as is perhaps the case on the Baltimore and Ohio road, an additional wheel with cogs is added. We believe there is no grade on any of our New England roads equal to one hundred feet to a mile.

A Fact for the New Edition of "Uncle Tom."—The New Orleans Picayune says:

A gentleman travelling down the Mississippi not long since, became acquainted on the boat with a lady, who, with her six children, was on her way to California. She had only one servant, a negro man, who had gone to California alone, worked hard, and sent one thousand dollars to his mistress to enable her and her little ones to come out to the far distant golden region. The fact speaks volumes.

Affecting Bereavement.—An industrious Irishman, residing in Boston, had accumulated and saved money enough from his earnings, to secure and furnish a snug little tenement, and to send for his family to come over and occupy it. They took passage in the ship Moses Wheeler, which arrived last week after a stormy and tedious voyage, having been long and anxiously expected. Day after day he had watched for their coming, until hope deferred had made his heart sick, when the welcome announcement that the ship had arrived reached his ears. He immediately proceeded to meet and greet his loved ones, and convey them home; but was met with the terrible announcement that his wife and six children had died during the passage over, and he was left alone! It is seldom that we are called upon to chronicle a sadder bereavement. Alas!

When sorrows come, they come not single spies,
But in battalions! —Salem Reg.

LOCAL.

☞ A correspondent who signs himself "North End," complains of the practice of arranging freight trains on the Eastern Railroad between the Depot and Portsmouth Bridge, as an interruption of the travel on Vaughan st., particularly when it happens at noon, or between 12 and 1 o'clock, detaining school-boys, ship carpenters, drays, ox-teams, and all sorts of vehicles for a considerable time.

He suggests that the trains should be made up on the company's own land, so as not to remain across the street more than a few minutes at any one time.

ANNEXATION OF NEW CASTLE.

We understand that a public meeting was held at New Castle last week, to see what measures can be taken to annex New Castle to Portsmouth as a fourth ward of the city; and as a preparatory step, to bring the matter before the people for their legal action. The meeting was adjourned to meet to-morrow [Wednesday] evening, at the Town Hall in New Castle, when all friends of the movement are requested to be present.

STOREBREAKING.

Burglary in Dover.—On Saturday night the jewelry store of George Gray, in Dover, was broken into by boring through the outside shutter, and turning the bar. After raising the window, the robber was obliged to bore an entrance, about a foot square, through an inside shutter. Before entering, he very carefully pushed away from the bench, under the window, several boxes containing broken gold, to the value of 20 or $25, which he did not take. Then, leisurely examining the stock, to make a good selection, he took what he probably thought, in the dark, the most valuable goods in the cases, but he must be a green hand at the business; for he carried off brass jewelry, German silver spectacles, knives, razors, soap, &c., to the value of about $50, omitting a drawer containing some silver spoons and a dollar bill. The iron safe was not forced, nor injured, showing the burglar not to be an adept in his art, but a mere novice or bungler.

On the same night the shoe store of N. Vickery & Co. was entered by boring out a panel in the door. Nothing was missed but 200 cents.

THE S. BERWICK INCENDIARIES.

We learn from S. B. Allen, Esq., that Benjamin Stillings, who has been in jail in Alfred, upon an indictment found against him last summer for maliciously burning the Academy, a Meeting House and several other buildings in South Berwick, Me., was tried last week at the bar of the Supreme Judicial Court, at Alfred. The Jury could not agree and the case was continued to next term.

John S. Wilkinson, indicted at the same time, for aiding in the same crime, and who was to have been "State's Evidence" in Stillings' trial, died at the County house during the trial. He would have been an important witness for the Government.

The whole affair originated, we understand, in some offence taken at the enforcement of the Maine Liquor Law.

☞ We understand that Albert H. Hoyt, Esq., the School Commissioner of this County, has been appointed Clerk of the Courts in Rockingham County, vice Ira B. Hoyt, Esq., resigned.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate on Thursday, Mr. Davis of Massachusetts said: Mr. President, I have been requested to present a petition, signed by Grinnell, Minturn & Co., and a number of ship owners, ship masters, and insurance companies, praying Congress for some measure of legislation to bestow assistance on Selnia C. Sumner, wife of Captain Sumner, for the discovery he had made, by which the position of a ship can be ascertained at sea. They represent, sir, that this discovery is one of great practical importance, and has saved many lives and a large amount of property, and they request Congress to take it into their consideration. I move that, without reading, the petition be referred to the Committee on Commerce. It was referred.

The House has adjourned over to Monday, in order to escape business. To stave off every thing but the appropriation bills, is now the policy. Between the appropriation bills and the struggles for precedence in the order of business, the French spoliation bill will fail. Twenty-six members may, if need be, by calling the yeas and nays on different motions, consume the time of the House, and prevent the majority from taking up the spoliation bill.

The New York members are pressing the mint bill for Buncombe, but without the least chance of success, as every one knows.

The late Mark H. Newman, Esq., book seller, of New York, left by his will twenty-five thousand dollars to the American Home Missionary Society, to be invested by his executor, and the interest, so much as needed, applied to the support of his children, until the youngest becomes of age—the whole to be then paid to the Society. After specific legacies to the children and other family friends, he gave also ten thousand dollars to the American Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and then made the American Home Missionary Society his residuary legatee.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

NEW COUNTERFEIT $3 BILLS ON THE CARROLL COUNTY BANK, NEW HAMPSHIRE —ARREST OF A PEDLAR. There has recently been put in circulation in this city, well executed $3 notes of Counterfeit issues, on the Carroll County Bank, of Sandwich, New Hampshire, which are handsomely engraved, and the signature of Stephen Bebee, Cashier, and Daniel Hart, President, most adroitly forged. Two of the bills were passed during yesterday which were traced to a pedlar named Kimball Kidder, who was subsequently arrested by officer Paterson of the Tombs, and committed by Justice Osborn for a further hearing.—N. Y. Times.

MR. WALKER'S HEALTH—INCREASE OF THE NAVY—SMALL POX.—Washington, Jan. 23.—The Hon. Robert J. Walker seems to be rapidly failing. He is extremely emaciated, having changed much during the last fortnight. Dr. Cheeseman of New York, will probably be sent for.

Commodore Stockton intends shortly to propose an increase in the Navy by the addition of ten steam vessels with side wheels, and ten others with steam propellers, and to be built of the largest dimensions of steam frigates.

It is reported that the small pox is raging to an extent so alarming at Marshallsville, Ga., that the railroad communication with the place has been suspended.

LATER FROM PERNAMBUCO.—New York, Jan. 24.—Advices from Pernambuco of Dec. 12th, state that the place is quite healthy, and trade is in good condition. Sugar had improved 1-2 per cent, and Cotton maintained itself with much firmness. The former article was arriving in great abundance, but prices were too high for European markets. The quality was superior to any before produced. The stock of Cotton was small and all engaged on French account. The sales of hides were large, 40,000 having been taken during the week, on English account, at $1 12 1-2. The slave trade was effectually abolished in the empire, and Government was acting in good faith with the Governments of France, England and the United States in that behalf.

THE EXPRESS TO NEW YORK.—New York, Jan. 24.—The express train on the New Haven Railroad, in charge of Mr. George Lovis, with the Europa's mails, arrived here last evening, at 45 minutes past 9, having left Boston at 4 o'clock. The whole distance, including nine stoppages, was run in 5 hours and 45 minutes, and the actual running time was 5 hours and 5 minutes. In some portions of the distance the speed attained exceeded a mile a minute. The average running speed was nearly forty-seven miles an hour, the highest ever reached in this country for so long a distance.

IMPORTANT FROM FLORIDA.—The Savannah Courier has a letter from Florida which states that the Indians have formally declared war against the United States, and a painful rumor prevailed that General Hopkins and his force had been massacred. Major A. G. Johnson has been chosen General of the force raised by the State to remove the Indians.

INFANT FROZEN.—A woman named Mrs. Mary Jane McGorlick, living on 84th street, New York, lost a child on the 16th. It was buried on Sunday in the Roman Catholic Burying Ground at Astoria, Long Island, at which time the mother intrusted her infant and only remaining child aged 14 months to be carried by a stupid acquaintance named Mrs. Margaret Gallon. The child was wrapped in a shawl, but it was of little use on such a day. The infant on the return of the mourners was found to be frozen and dead!

The New York Sunday Atlas, in the course of an article, referring to the retirement of "Honest John Davis" from the Senate, remarks—"One of the most remarkable papers Mr. Webster ever read to the Senate, and for the authorship of which he had the credit, was written by Mr. Davis. We allude to the protest of the Massachusetts delegation in the Senate against the passage of Mr. Benton's famous expunging resolutions. We know this to be a historical fact, for we had it from Mr. Davis himself, immediately after the protest was read. The protest was read at the request of Mr. Davis, as he was hoarse at the time; and besides this, it was supposed that the paper would have a greater effect by being read by the Marshfield statesman."

The N. Y. Courier, in an article discussing the political position of General Pierce, says: "The Presidential canvass settled nothing whatever, except that Franklin Pierce should occupy the White House for the next four years. He was not selected to go there as the representative of any particular policy, or the agent of any particular party or section. He was supported with equal zeal by men of the most opposite and extreme political opinions and aims. His immense success was owing to the disadvantageous position of his competitor far more than to his own personal strength. He made no pledges; he gave no promises; he entered into no secret understandings. He had long been out of public life, and his antecedents furnished few or no data for determining his future course. He was taken on trust by all sections of his party, each hoping to be benefitted by him in the end. The disunionists of South Carolina voted with the Coalitionists of Massachusetts; the Compromise men of Georgia with the Free Soilers of Ohio; the Free Traders of Mississippi with the Tariff men of Pennsylvania; the strict constructionists of Virginia with the Internal Improvement people of Illinois; Hunkers with Barnburners, hard shells with soft shells, fillibusters with old fogies, thorough-going Radicals with thorough-bred Federalists, and all took common satisfaction in the result.

George Averill, a workman in the iron foundry at Fitchburg, disappeared on Wednesday night, 12th inst., and is supposed to have perished in the snow storm of that night. His friends are very anxious about him.

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS

AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.

PATENT METALLIC

LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.

THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.

The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co., of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.

☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.

Also, the Eulogy of Geo. S. Hillard, Esq. j8

THE ART OF BEING BEAUTIFUL.

IT has long been a desideratum that some scientific man should apply himself to the study of the human scalp. Dr. JACOBY, the great Pathologist, from Berlin, has done this, and in this new field has attained the most brilliant results.—Satisfied by an analysis of the red colored alcohols and other washes, of their deleterious effects, he compounded his celebrated Berliner Haar Wasche, to the efficacy of which thousands of witnesses might be summoned, of the accompanying character:—

BOSTON, Jan 1, 1848.

This is to certify that I have had an article called the Berliner Haar Wasche applied during the past five or six weeks to my head, for the purpose of renewing and strengthening the hair. It has been very effective in producing such a result; and I can cheerfully recommend the same to those affected with baldness or diseases connected therewith. JONAS CHICKERING.

It frequently happens that ladies suffer from hair eaters, and apply some of the nostrums prepared by apothecaries, who think, because they can make poor soda water, they can prepare good hair wash. The effect of these is often highly injurious. Ladies, use none of them,—consult Dr. Jacoby, who will eradicate the nuisance and guarantee a beautiful head of hair. His motto is, no cure, no pay.

To those at a distance, the Champoo Washes Nos. 1 and 2, and Haar Wasche, are recommended.—There is, however, no universal specific, and all persons troubled, should consult Dr. Jacoby.

In the course of his scientific research, Dr. Jacoby has discovered a Hair Dye that does not stain the skin, will give any shade of color, and will stand exposure in all weather. The accompanying certificate, from a highly scientific source, must satisfy the most incredulous.

BOSTON, Nov. 18, 1851.

I have seen Mr. Moses Jacoby's Hair Dye, used in coloring hair of a deep brownish black, of a beautiful natural color, and can certify that it is perfectly efficient and permanent.

CHARLES T. JACKSON, M.D.,
Assayer to the State of Mass.

Dr. Jacoby's rooms are at No. 9 Franklin street, Boston, where he may be consulted at all hours.—There are always in attendance in both ladies' and gentlemen's rooms the most skilful hair dressers.

From Punch's Pocket Book.

I'M A FLAT! I'M A FLAT!

I'm a flat! I'm a flat! to have come out to sea,
When I knew very well how unwell I should be!
Up! up! goes the boat with the waves as they swell—
I'm a flat! I'm a flat! I acknowledge the fell!
For the boatman assured me that "all was serene,"
And the day seemed so fine, and the sea looked so green.
But if ever they catch me at sea any more,
May they paint me and make me the buoy at the Nore!
Quick! quick! my strength fails, and my eyesight grows dim,
And the roll of the sea sets my head in a swim.
All's up with me now, so I pray let me be—
I'm a flat! I'm a flat! to have come out to sea.

WHO IS FANNY FERN?—Various paragraphs purporting to be correct answers to this question, are going the rounds of the press. One says Fanny Fern is N. P. Willis; another, that Eppes Sargent is the "critter;" a third, that Park Benjamin is the veritable Fanny; a fourth, that she is the maiden sister of Richard Storrs Willis of the New York Musical World & Times; a fifth announces, with a great flourish, that the mystery is at last solved, and that Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, the authoress of Uncle Tom's Cabin, is the real Fanny Fern; Mrs. Ellett suffers herself to be announced by a Cincinnati publisher as Fanny Fern, or else said publisher has taken a most unwarrantable liberty with Mrs. E., Fanny and the public; sundry papers insist that Fanny is a sister of Oliver Dyer of the New York Musical World & Times; others, that she is a Southern lady, and the wife of a distinguished politician; and the last and most popular rumor is that Fanny Fern is the Rev. Thomas F. Norris now editor of the Boston Olive Branch. We dislike to spoil so many good stories, nor do we like to deprive our contemporaries of so much excellent capital; but, the fact is, none of these rumors is true. They are all false. Fanny Fern is not yet discovered.—New York Musical World & Times.

WHAT-CHEER STOVE.
THE WHAT-CHEER COAL COOKING STOVE, now offered for sale by the subscribers, is acknowledged by all who have examined it to be the best and most economical Coal Stove ever offered to the public.
The castings are heavy, smooth, and very handsome. The Broiling apparatus is a great improvement over all other Stoves, being constructed in such a manner as to prevent the steam from escaping into the room when cooking.
All persons wishing to purchase a COAL COOKING STOVE, are respectfully requested to call and examine the same. Every Stove warranted to work well, or no sale.
We have also a large assortment of COOKING, PARLOR and STORE STOVES, &c.—for sale cheap for Cash at our Store.

THE IMPROVED
EMPIRE STATE STOVE.
THIS justly celebrated COOKING STOVE having been improved in every way it could be to make its operations more complete, and its plates beautifully ornamented—no expense, time or trouble having been spared to make this the most complete Cooking Stove ever brought before the public—the subscriber feels assured in warranting the IMPROVED EMPIRE STATE superior to any stove in the market, as hundreds can testify who have used them for the past year.
The Stove has a very LARGE OVEN, which makes it desirable on account of doing more cooking with the same amount of fuel than can be done in any other stove. The flues are large, which ensures a good draft in all cases. The castings are very heavy and smooth, and those parts that come next the fire are extra thick, making it very durable. It is adapted to the use of either coal or wood, and we warrant them to operate as well with one as the other. We furnish them with the very best apparatus, and, altogether it is the MOST DURABLE, ECONOMICAL and CONVENIENT COOKING STOVE ever made—complete in every respect. We ask the attention of all persons intending to purchase a new, or exchange their old stove, to an examination of the Improved Empire State.
We have also on hand a variety of other Cooking Stoves, called the "Banner," "Belle of the States," "King of the States," "Bay State," "Anglo Saxon," "Pearl of Troy," &c.; with a large lot of PARLOR STOVES, such as the Revere Air-Tight, Star, Revere Parlor Cook, Lady Franklin, for Wood or Coal; Shop, Office and Air-Tight Stoves, of different sizes and prices for either wood or coal.
Also an extensive assortment of HOUSEKEEPING GOODS; Wooden, Willow, Glass, Britannia, Japan, Tin, Hard, Enamel, and Brass Ware; Copper, Cast Iron, and Tin Tain Pump; Window-Shades, Table Oil-cloths, &c.
All the above goods will be sold lower than can be bought elsewhere in this vicinity.

THE ROGER WILLIAMS
COOKING STOVE.
FOR COAL OR WOOD.
THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the merits of this most beautifully modeled pattern; equally adapted for coal or wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the
Most Complete and Efficient
Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity. It is an elegant model, with fine smooth Providence castings, fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven, (by far the most important part of a cooking stove,) in point of capacity, and in regard to its operation, is unsurpassed by that of any other stove now in the market, it being lined with fire-brick to retain and equalize the heat, and provided with valves for the escape of steam, &c. arising from the roasting of meats—rendering it in this respect superior to the old fashioned but universally admired Tin Kitchen.
The broiling apparatus is connected on an entirely new and original plan, and will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room. The sliding hearth is an improvement not to be found in any other stove.
The popularity of this over all other stoves now in the market, may be inferred from the fact that since its first introduction the last season, over THREE THOUSAND have been put into successful operation in New England and New York City.
Every stove is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser or the money refunded.
Each stove is warranted not to crack for twelve months from date of purchase. It is believed that this stove combines all the improvements that skill can invent, and is by far the most perfect cooking stove ever sold in Portsmouth. And though its price is higher than any other stove offered in this market of late, it is without question the cheapest in the end. All intending to purchase are respectfully invited to give this an examination before purchasing elsewhere.
Also, a variety of Cheap Cook, Parlor, and Office Stoves, which are offered low.
J. E. CHAPMAN,
n23 Daniel st, Sign of the big Coffee Pot.

REMINISCENCES OF THE POET MOORE.

A lady who had the good fortune to be present at a party in Dublin, the evening of the day when the first volume of "Moore's Melodies" was given to the world, was recalling the circumstance in so graphic a manner, that we think her story may interest others as much as it did us. At that time our now age friend must have been of remarkable beauty—an enthusiastic girl brought up in deep seclusion, married in her seventeenth year to an officer with whom she was about to leave her native land. Of little poems, the avant courier of Moore's fame, she had never heard; and though the "Melodies" of her country were familiar to her ear and lip, she did not think that they were known except by those who had learned them from the peasantry.

"The Pretty Bride," was so new to the world, that her husband almost tutored her as our granddame tutored us—"Now, my dear, hold your head, hold your tongue, and remember your courtesy." He begged of her, whatever occurred, "to ask no question." It was that great event of the country lady's life, "her first town party," and she was of course perpetually charmed, confused and blushing.

Presently she heard various whispers—"Is he come?" "Is he certain to come?" vague ideas of the Lord Lieutenant, the cynosure of Irish eyes—of the commander of the garrison—floated before her eyes; then the lady of the house asked her daughter if the book was on the piano—"where he could see it at once?" And a dozen sweet faces pressed forward to inquire "if he was sure to come?" and the reply called forth all the little bewitching "Oh dears!" and "mys!" and "Oh thems!" which rendered the "brogue" the language of Cupid. The obedient wife a very Griselda—would ask no questions, but she tried to reach the piano, and ascertain what "the book" was. However, one page of music is too much like another to have yielded information. As the evening melted away, the anxiety of the hostess and friends increased to fever heat. At last a double knock, and the hero of that and many other evenings entered. "I saw," continued our friend, "a very little man without star or ribbon—not the Lord Lieutenant! I was so disappointed, I even thought him ugly. I looked at all the radiant officers, and wondered who the little man was. Then came fine speeches from the hostess; and then gathered around all the old and young. I was provoked; all this fuss for a tiny little man in black who was neither the Lord Lieutenant nor an officer! I sat down sulkily at the end of the grand piano, and resolved not even to look at him.

"Presently the hostess manœuvered him to the piano, and then showing him the first number of his own Melodies, asked him to sing. He said something—I did not hear exactly what—about not being prepared, but sat down, and with his small delicate hand preluded a moment, and then sung 'Rich and Rare.' Before he got to the 'bright gold ring' I was spell bound. The head, slightly upturned, the white, full, high brow, over which his silken hair lay in rich folds, the brightest, tenderest, most loving eyes, were eloquent of expression, the smiling mouth gave forth the most bird-like gushing music, every word was heard, and not only heard but felt; and every eye was fixed upon the 'poet of all circles.' When he finished, the burst of enthusiasm was electric, and his thanking smile, as he glanced round, emboldened his audience to exclaim as with one voice 'Another, another?' He sat down; the brilliance of his expression faded, the sparkling light of love in his eyes deepened into the intense fire of patriotism, his form dilated, and he gave the 'Go where glory waits thee?' as if it were a command from heaven. I had been but a short time married; my husband expected every day to be ordered off to the war; my hopes for him were so mingled with terrors, that I felt a shudder when I heard the words of the song. They were followed by others,

"But when fame elates thee
Oh, then remember me,"

In tones so plaintive, so tender, overwhelming that, ashamed of my emotion, I covered my face with my hands, and pressed it on the piano. I tried to endure it, but every line winged by such bewildering melody, entered into my heart. I had said words with the same meaning to my husband twenty times. And as the poet finished I was completely overpowered: the burst of tears would come, and my husband carried his foolish child-wife out of the room. I afterwards heard that the poet had said, 'those tears were the most eloquent thanks he could receive.'"

IN AND OUT OF COURT.—"Whom do you mean by Betty Leary?" inquired one of our Justices of an Irish washer-woman who was elucidating a difficult point in her own peculiar manner. "Why! Betty Leary sitting there sir," responded the witness. The counsel for the defence here interposed, saying the witness meant Eliza Leary, before mentioned in evidence. "Yes, your honor," interrupted the loquacious witness, "Eliza Leary—we call her Betty Leary at home, but she's Eliza Leary here.—Boston Journal.

INTERESTING TO CALIFORNIA EMIGRANTS.—A case was recently tried before the Court of Common Pleas in New York, of some interest to California emigrants. The suit was instituted to recover back money paid for a ticket in May, 1850, from Panama to San Francisco, in the steamboat Isthmus. She not being there, the plaintiff had to go in another vessel. In defence it was alleged that Marshall O. Roberts, the defendant, contracted not for himself, but as agent of the U. S. Mail Steamship Co., and the action should have been against them, and also that the ticket as marked, was for the third voyage of the Isthmus, which was commenced within a reasonable time. The verdict was for plaintiff, subject to the opinion of the Court at general term.

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH:
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1853.

With the present month closes the First (half-yearly) Volume of the Daily Morning Chronicle. On Tuesday next we commence a new Volume.—Our terms, as published in imprint under the outside head, are $4 per year, payable semi-annually; or $3 strictly in advance—50 cts. being deducted from the $4, if payment be made for a year within six months of the time of subscribing—which time, for those who commenced with No. 1, expires with January.

SANDWICH ISLANDS.

A friend has put into our hands a pamphlet of 18 pages, entitled, "The Sandwich Islands as they are, not as they should be,—by Mrs. E. M. Willis Parker." The pamphlet was printed last February, and purports to give a view of the islands, especially of their social and moral condition, obtained by actual inspection, in a visit to them the previous Autumn.

The lady writer condemns the missionaries on the islands, as a set of people who cheat their supporters at home by false accounts of reformations which had not occurred, and of improvements never made—and who keep the natives, government and all, in complete subserviency to their own interests. And she represents Mr. Judd, the minister of finance, (who is well known to have been a former employee of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions,) as a crafty, designing man, who is making his own fortune, and ruling the King as he pleases.

She represents the natives as poor, feeble, diseased and diminishing—as ignorant, vicious and priest-ridden. "These people, (says she,) are absolutely unable to perform hard labor; and under no change or form of government, would they become valuable subjects. Whether, eventually, these Islands should be annexed to the United States, or become an independent republic, the introduction of slavery is indispensable to their value."

She represents the native population as decreasing rapidly, and the foreign from America, China, and elsewhere, as rapidly increasing. "Few except the Missionaries are wealthy"—and Mr. Judd, and all connected with the government, including the missionaries, are rich enough to wish to keep things as they are. She exonerates the Board of Missions at home—supposing them to be deceived by the resident missionaries—but considers that "the present state of the Sandwich Islands is that of an unchristianized despotism, covered with a thick but transparent veil of hypocrisy, which should long ere this have been torn off."

We were aware, long ago, that the native population of the Islands was diminishing in consequence of vices introduced by navigators in those seas; and that they would probably become extinct,—but we never supposed the missionaries were any way responsible for this, directly or indirectly. We have also had excellent opportunities to learn something of Mr. Judd, and believe him to be a shrewd, sensible manager—and are ready to believe, on Mrs. Parker's testimony, that he is making a fortune. Of the present missionaries, personally we know nothing. We can believe, without difficulty, that they may have overrated the importance of their revivals, and thought better of their converts than they deserved—but we do not believe that they deliberately and systematically commit a double fraud on their mission fields abroad, and on the churches at home. While therefore, we give the lady credit for honesty of purpose, and represent her views plainly, we doubt the correctness of her information on several points. But a thorough sifting of the matter is desirable, and can hurt no one.

We have therefore given the above brief, but intelligible notice of her book, and hold it open for correction or confirmation by any persons who have resided for a considerable time on the islands, or who have other means of making up a correct judgment on the matter.

Free Democratic Convention.—The Senatorial Convention of the Free Democratic delegates of District No. 1, met in this city on Monday. We understand they made no nomination, on account of the limited notice which had been given; but adjourned to meet on Tuesday, Feb. 8, at 12 o'clock, M., at the Free Democratic Head Quarters, (Exchange Buildings) in the city of Portsmouth.

Death of Rev. Edward Turner.—Died, at the house of his son-in-law, Charles Brewer, Esq., at Jamaica Plains, Mass., on Monday last, Rev. Edward Turner, aged 76. He was some years ago pastor of the Universalist church in Charlestown, Mass., and then of the Universalist church in this place. Afterwards, on leaving Portsmouth, he became pastor of the Unitarian church in Charlton, Mass. He is remembered here with respect and affection, by all who were acquainted with his modest, unobtrusive worth.

PORTSMOUTH & DOVER RAILROAD.

A correspondent of the Dover Enquirer gives the following views of the proposed Railroad, which are offered for the consideration of our readers.

"Among the bills of importance passed at the last session of the Legislature, was the bill extending the charter of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad from Dover to Great Falls, thus uniting in one common bond the interests of three of the most important places in this section of the State. It cannot fail to be perceived that the business which will flow over this road when built, will make it highly remunerative to its stockholders. It appears by the published statement at the last annual meeting of the stockholders of the Boston and Maine Railroad, that the receipts of the Dover and Great Falls stations amounted to nearly seventy thousand dollars. The business to and from these stations, paid at other stations, must amount to as much more, making the railway value of these two places about one hundred and forty thousand dollars per annum. With the natural increase of business on the Cochecho and the Great Falls & Conway Railroads, the value of these stations must become much enhanced, even under circumstances considered to be illiberal and unjust. On the completion of this road, the great bulk of the business of Dover and Great Falls will go over it, for the very obvious reason that it will be cheaper, from the fact that the heavier goods for manufacturing and other purposes can be transported by water from Portsmouth or by railroad, as may be elected. If by water, they can be brought to Portsmouth as cheap and readily as to Boston, thereby saving the Dover and Great Falls Manufacturing Companies some sixty miles railroad transportation, besides the expense of trucking many of their goods in Boston.

With proper wharf accommodations at Portsmouth, and a liberal management, this road will change the business very materially in this part of the State, and prove of incalculable value to the only sea-port in New Hampshire. Dover and Great Falls alone can furnish it with business enough to make it remunerative, and with suitable connection and arrangements at Dover and Great Falls with connecting railroads, how can its ultimate prosperity be doubted? A new impetus will be given to the already increasing business of the Cochecho and Great Falls & Conway Railroads, and old Dover and Portsmouth, now nearly lifeless, will feel the impulse and start forward with renewed vigor in the race of commercial prosperity.

Ultimately the Cochecho Railroad will be extended to the Weirs, connecting with the Boston, Concord and Montreal Railroad, this last road connecting at Wells River with the Passumpsic and other Northern Roads. The stock for the road from Wells River to Montpelier is being subscribed, which when completed will make a continuous line of Railroad from the Great West to Portsmouth, much nearer than to Boston. The Great Falls and Conway Railroad will ultimately be extended to Conway, which will change the business of that part of the country from Portland to Portsmouth. Indeed the effect which the building of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad will have on the business and prosperity of Portsmouth and the interests connected with Portsmouth, can hardly be foreseen. It is, perhaps, the only thing which can raise Portsmouth, with one of the best harbors in the world, from its lethargic state of years, to take the rank nature designed it to have.

We truly and sincerely hope this project will be commenced and prosecuted without delay. It is almost "as easy for a camel to go through the eye of a needle," as for passengers to go between Portsmouth and Dover, by any arrangement that now is. This should not be. When everything induces the opening of a short and rapid communication between those places, every man should put his shoulder to the wheel and "it is done." Before another season rolls over, we hope to see it accomplished."

NEW HAMPSHIRE NEWS.

We copy the following from the special correspondence of the New York Herald:

Concord, Jan. 22 1853.

General Pierce returned to Andover this forenoon, where he will spend the Sabbath. Both of the New York committees left by the same train.

While here, the "softs" and "hards" took a social game of whist together, at the Eagle. The "hards" were beaten, and paid for oysters—stewed, fried, roasted, scolloped, raw and in the shell, besides the fixings.

Although rumor for a while had it that a cabinet member for New York had been agreed on between them, it is now pretty certain that they only arrived at a conclusion as to the superior quality of Gibson's oysters and the et ceteras. Though willing to sup together, they positively refused to talk with each other concerning cabinet making.

Gen. Pierce, it is said, declined to see either of the delegations separately—consequently, in order to procure an audience, they were compelled to unite. The mission is understood to have effected nothing, and New York must therefore stand back a while longer.

Hon. Daniel Dana, of Syracuse, arrived this forenoon. He was too late—both for the oysters, and to meet the other New York brethren.

More delegations from the State of New York are expected next week.

The New York Herald learns, "from Albany that the 'soft shells' returned there on Saturday evening, apparently highly pleased with their trip. In the meantime, some of the democrats in Washington are represented as being in a state of great uneasiness, owing to the rumors that the President elect contemplates compromising matters with the Southern secessionists and Northern barburners, by selecting one from each section for a post in the cabinet. Keep cool, gentlemen (says the Herald) the 4th of March is near at hand, and then we shall know as to whether there be cause for complaint."

An exchange paper, speaking of the fact that segars and pipes were now prohibited in the churches of Milwaukie, curiously heads the article, "excessive refinement."

LOCAL.

Portsmouth Lyceum.—Mr. Bunn's lecture at the Cameneum, on Tuesday evening, was on Shakespeare's personal history, fortunes and plays, interwoven with many amusing anecdotes of critics, playwrights and players. Mr. Bunn was for many years a manager of the London Theatres, and makes no effort to throw off the manager's airs. His person, figure and manner, are those of the English comic actor and humorist,—and if he gave us no very profound lessons, he certainly put us all in a good humor.

The lecturer announced for next Tuesday evening is Epes Sargent Esq., of Boston.

Catholicity—by a Catholic.—Our advertising columns this morning contain a notice of two lectures in this city, on the faith of the Catholic Church, by Prof. Gerard, whom we take to be himself a Catholic, and a man capable of exhibiting the views and usages of that church in a manner satisfactory to its own members, and intelligibly to others. For particulars see advertisement.

☞ The Rt. Rev. Bishop Chase, of the Diocese of New Hampshire, made his annual visitation to St. John's Church in this city, yesterday, and administered the holy rite of confirmation to 21 persons.

PUBLIC RECEPTIONS.

Gen. Pierce, in a letter to Mayor Seaver, of Boston, declines the public reception tendered to him by the city authorities. He says: "After the event which has recently fallen upon me with such crushing weight, it will, of course, be expected that I will proceed to the post of duty as quietly and privately as the modes of public travel will permit."

This is the proper course for the president elect under his present affliction—and besides, it will save him a vast deal of toil and trouble. With his present feelings, as we suppose they are, nothing could be much more grating and discordant, than a grand public show and parade. His natural turn would be to enjoy a "good time" public or private, with a better zest than most men;—but the circumstances which now embitter his cup, will cause him to move mechanically through the duties of inauguration or receptions, where otherwise he would have been all life.

Speaking of public receptions, reminds us of Governor Langdon, who had seen a world of such things, and had seen enough to be tired of them. He had been the Republican Governor of New Hampshire for many years, interchangeably with Gov. Gilman, who was a Federalist. The two parties were nearly equal; and, very naturally, each was fond of its own success, and of its own men who ran best. Governor Langdon was now getting old, and it was understood, one June, in General Court time, that he would run no more as Governor,—but when he went home from that session, the public would see him no more. The session was about closing, and on Saturday night would be finished. Some of his friends from the then town of Portsmouth, were to come home, and did so, on Friday and Saturday—and as they were about leaving, enquired of the Governor at what time he would be at home. With his usual graceful bow he replied, I expect to be at home on Monday. With this knowledge, they sped on their way home, and spread the news that Gov. Langdon was coming home on Monday from General Court for the last time; and at the same time they made arrangements for a grand cavalcade to go out on Monday and escort our distinguished fellow citizen into town. It took well, and they were looking for the "good time coming." But on Sunday morning, as punctual as the town-clock, and as devout as the parson, Governor Langdon walked quietly up the broad aisle of the Old North Meeting House in Portsmouth, and took his usual seat in the well-known pew next the pulpit, facing, not the preacher, but the congregation, as he sat the preacher's first right hand man. The knowledge that he was here, and had slipped home somehow, on Saturday night, was soon whispered round, and the cavalcade was nowhere—and when the Governor was questioned why he came home thus, he answered, too blandly to give offence, "On purpose to avoid the public parade and show which now have no charms for me."

Repartee.—The Boston Commonwealth says:—"To serve the Devil—and to uphold his favorite institution—cannot be done long, if for no better reason than because he proves such a bad paymaster."

"The Courier remarks, "from these grumblings we infer that the Commonwealth is about to strike work."

The Cleveland correspondent of the Ohio State Journal says of the Rev. Mr. Giles, the lecturer, that "he is a dashy (—) writer, and elaborates an idea to death. He cooks it one side, and then turns it over and browns it on the other, and then forks it and roasts it through. He dresses up a single idea in as many colors as Joseph of old had in his coat.

A great philosopher says there are three things which are very difficult—to keep a secret, to forget an injury, and to make good use of leisure.

PRIVATEER GENERAL ARMSTRONG.

Well do we remember the excitement which prevailed in all our news circles, and especially among privateersmen and politicians, when the privateer General Armstrong was taken by the British. Her owners, through our government, made a claim on the Portuguese, for damages, because they, being a friendly power with both the belligerents, did not keep the peace between us, in their own harbor. And now, after a delay of well nigh forty years, the matter is settled, against us. It was referred to the President of France, as arbiter; and on Monday last, in the two Houses of Congress, President Fillmore, by message, communicated the award of Louis Napoleon in the case of the brig Gen. Armstrong. The Prince President, after reciting the circumstances that succeeded and followed the attack on the Gen. Armstrong in the harbor of Fayal, under the guns of Portugal, by a British fleet, proceeds to state that Capt. Reid, not having applied in the beginning to the neutral power for protection, but having repelled aggression on his vessel by force, had himself violated the laws of neutrality and consequently released the sovereign of Portugal from his obligations to afford protection; from which follows—That Her Faithful Majesty's government cannot be held responsible for the result that followed, and therefore he decided that the claim had no foundation and that no indemnity is due from Portugal.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

WASHINGTON, JAN. 24.

SENATE.—Mr. Stockton moved to take up the bill for the reorganization of the navy—made the special order for Wednesday next.

Mr. Hale submitted a resolution directing the Committee on Lands to enquire whether any tax, levy or contribution has been made upon seamen's wages.

Mr. Sebastian, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the President's Message relating to the refusal of the Florida Indians to emigrate, made a report, the substance of which is, that the Indians have refused to emigrate, and that the government is bound, by the relations to Florida, to take prompt and decisive measures to drive them from her borders and take possession of and appropriate the lands now occupied by them; and to this end he reported that an amendment be offered to the Indian Appropriation bill.

Mr. Cass presented petitions in favor of the Homestead bill.

HOUSE.—Mr. Houston of Alabama offered a resolution, that until otherwise ordered, the hour of meeting be 11 o'clock, and the bills making appropriations for supplying deficiencies, and for the support of the army and navy, post offices, mail steamers, and payment of the civil and diplomatic expenses of the government, be made the special order after one o'clock each day until all shall be disposed of.

WHALING FROM GLOUCESTER.—The Gloucester people have resolved to enter into the whale fishery, and are to commence with a company having a capital of $8000, who are to take the new schooner Flying Arrow, of 110 tons, and send her to the western islands to cruise for sperm whales, under the command of Capt. Cornell of Provincetown. She is to be manned by young men of that place. Another company is talked of.

THE GARDINER MINES.—The Washington Union says that Dr. Gardiner's party are willing to swear to the existence of the alleged mines. They also assert that they offered to show the Commissioners the mines, but the latter refused to follow their directions.

Hon. Robert J. Walker, at Washington, seems to be rapidly failing. His disease is an affection of the thigh bone. He is extremely emaciated, having changed very much during the last fortnight.

William P. Tufts has been appointed Postmaster at Raymond, in this County, vice Joseph Blake, Esq., resigned. Mr. Blake was appointed in November, 1815, by R. J. Meigs, Postmaster General, under Mr. Munroe's administration. He was the first and has been the only Postmaster in town to this time. In all the changes of the time, he has remained unchanged, to the satisfaction of the Department and the public, an honest man and a faithful officer.—Exeter News Letter.

A change has taken place in England and throughout Europe in the fashion of men's garments. Overcoats and frock coats are made to reach the knees, and the pantaloons are full and long. The bob-tails now sported by "Young America," reaching down nowhere, and the tight trowsers, (such a saving in cloth to tailors,) must yeild to common sense and ordinary decorum.—Boston Chronicle.

FRENCH FEELING.—The Paris correspondent of the National Intelligencer, in a late letter says: "I think there is a party here—that represented by the Gazette de France, for instance—which would not be sorry to precipitate a quarrel between the new French Empire and the United States. They see in a foreign war, of which the course and the results nobody can pretend to predict, the only hope for the restoration in France of the old order of things. They would like to see the new French Empire in difficulty, in order that they may have the pleasure of saying, 'I told you so; I knew how it would be.' They would be loth to see France great and prosperous under the Empire or under the Republic, because France being great and prosperous without the Bourbons, their return would be perpetually becoming less and less probable. But I have too much confidence in the sagacity of Napoleon III. to believe that he will wilfully jostle the United States either in the West Indies or Mexico.

A very kind and liberal act, was that of the Mayor of Portsmouth; but we can match it in our local history. When the Hon. Stephen C. Phillips withdrew from the office of Mayor of Salem, he presented the whole sum of his salary, for three years, amounting to two thousand four hundred dollars, for the alteration and improvement of the schoolhouses occupied by our two highest schools.

We are not of the class, who are prone to depreciate the virtue of such beneficience as consists in money-giving. It is valuable for its rarity, if for nothing else; and acts of munificence should not be lightly forgotten—especially by recipients.—Salem Mercury.

A MICHIGAN GENTLEMAN.—We cannot resist copying the following from a volume lately reprinted in New York, called "Atlantic and Transatlantic," by Capt. Mackinnon, of the British Navy. He is on a steamboat from Buffalo to Michigan: Among the numerous stalwart rifle-bearers, I was much struck with the appearance of one who, eighteen years ago, had shouldered his rifle, taking his young wife by the hand, and gone into the woods of Michigan. "I have a nice farm now," said he, "but we still live in the settler's log house. You will, however, have a hearty welcome when you come, and the sooner the better." In the course of conversation, I found he was returning from the East, with some beautiful Merino Sheep. For four of these animals, which he had imported from France, he had paid $1000. This gentleman (for gentleman he was "both in manner and education") is a favorable specimen of the rising class of American Farmers. Mr. Gale of Ypsilanti, may therefore be taken as a type of what a great statesman calls "the ballast of the United States;" or the educated and intelligent small land owners.—New England Cultivator.

THE ROGER WILLIAMS COOKING STOVE.

FOR COAL OR WOOD.

THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the merits of this most beautifully modeled pattern; equally adapted for coal or wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the

Most Complete and Efficient

Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity. It is an elegant model, with fine smooth Providence castings, fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven, (by far the most important part of a cooking stove,) in point of capacity, and in regard to its operation, is unsurpassed by that of any other stove now in the market, it being lined with fire-brick to retain and equalize the heat, and provided with valves for the escape of steam, &c. arising from the roasting of meats—rendering it in this respect superior to the old fashioned but universally admired Tin Kitchen.

The broiling apparatus is constructed on an entirely new and original plan, and will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room. The sliding hearth is an improvement not to be found in any other stove.

The popularity of this over all other stoves now in the market, may be inferred from the fact that since its first introduction the last season, over THREE THOUSAND have been put into successful operation in New England and New York City.

Every stove is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser or the money refunded.

Each stove is warranted not to crack for twelve months from date of purchase. It is believed that this stove combines all the improvements that skill can invent, and is by far the most perfect cooking stove ever sold in Portsmouth. And though its price is higher than any other stove offered in this market of late, it is without question the cheapest in the end. All intending to purchase are respectfully invited to give this an examination before purchasing elsewhere.

Also, a variety of cheap Cook, Parlor, and Office Stoves, which are offered low.

WHAT-CHEER STOVE.

THE WHAT-CHEER COAL COOKING STOVE, now offered for sale by the subscribers, is acknowledged by all who have examined it to be the best and most economical Coal Stove ever offered to the public.

The castings are heavy, smooth, and very handsome. The Broiling apparatus is a great improvement over all other Stoves, being constructed in such a manner as to prevent the steam from escaping into the room when cooking.

All persons wishing to purchase a COAL COOKING STOVE, are respectfully requested to call and examine the same. Every Stove warranted to work well, or no sale.

We have also a large assortment of COOKING, PARLOR and STORE STOVES, &c.—for sale cheap for Cash at our Store,

It appears by a statement in the Norfolk News, that last year about eighteen hundred barrels of eggs, each containing about one hundred dozen, were shipped from that port. The return, including the high price of the oats in which they were packed, is estimated at $20 per barrel, making a total of thirty six thousand dollars received for eggs. A vast amount of oysters vegetables and poultry, is also annually sent away, for which the sum of three hundred thousand dollars is a moderate calculation, averaging one thousand dollars per day throughout the year. One gentleman, who has devoted himself to the business for some years, has realized a profit of about $30,000.

The latest folly among the Parisan ladies is powdering hair with gold dust and filings of silver; silver for blondes, and gold for brunettes. M'dlle. de Montigro, the Emperor's reputed chere amie, introduced the practice.

A number of the more delicate females in one of the Dublin work-houses, to whom an extra allowance of milk was granted, have been detected churning it in bottles, and selling the butter!

THE IMPROVED
EMPIRE STATE STOVE.
THIS justly celebrated COOKING STOVE having been improved in every way it could be to make its operations more complete, and its plates beautifully ornamented—the expense, time or trouble having been spared to make this the most complete Cooking Stove ever brought before the public—the subscriber feels assured in warranting the IMPROVED EMPIRE STATE superior to any stove in the market, as hundreds can testify who have used them for the past year.
This Stove has a very LARGE OVEN, which makes it desirable on account of doing more cooking with the same amount of fuel than can be done in any other stove, as the heat ascends which ensures a good draft in all cases. The castings are very heavy and smooth, and those parts that come next the fire are extra thick, making it very durable. It is adapted to the use of either coal or wood, and we warrant them to operate as well with one as the other. We furnish them with the very best apparatus; and, altogether, it is the MOST DURABLE, ECONOMICAL and CONVENIENT COOKING STOVE ever made—recommended to every respect. We ask the attention of all persons intending to purchase a new, or exchange their old store, to an examination of the Improved Empire State.
We have also on hand a variety of other Cooking Stoves, called the "Banner," "Belle of the States," "King of the States," "Bay State," "Anglo Saxon," "Pearl of Troy," &c.; with a large lot of PARLOR STOVES, such as the Revere, Air-Tight, Sea Coal, Franklin, Lady Franklin, for Wood or Coal; Shop, Office and Air-Tight Stoves, of different sizes and prices for either wood or coal.
Also an extensive assortment of HOUSEKEEPING GOODS; Wooden, Willow, Glass, Britannia, Japan, Tin, Hard, Enamel, and Brass Ware; Copper, Cast Iron, and Chain Pump; Window-Shades, Table Oil-cloths, &c.
All the above goods will be sold lower than can be bought elsewhere in this vicinity.

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.
IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed Agent of the United States Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th section of the Act of 1837.
Having relinquished the agency for the transmission of models, and adopting a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent can be procured several weeks earlier, he continues to forward them, as before, free of expense, and to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe.
The subscriber aims to present to inventors superior facilities for obtaining patents; and is now prepared to make Specifications at rates cheaper by ten to twenty per cent. than those of other agencies. They can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.
R. H. EDDY.
Solicitor of Patents.
"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skillful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent, more worthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

A BIRD TWENTY FEET HIGH.

Not many years ago, a sailor presented at the British Museum a huge marrow-bone, which he desired to sell, and which he had brought from New Zealand. The officers of that institution referred him to the College of Surgeons, where they said, he would find a gentleman—one Professor Owen—who had a remarkable predilection for old bones. Accordingly, he took his treasure to the Professor, who, finding it unlike any bone even he had any knowledge of, sent the man away rejoicing with a full pocket—rejoicing himself in the acquisition of a new subject for scientific inquiry. Although the bone had manifestly contained marrow, and was therefore unlike the bones of birds in general, Mr. Owen concluded that this bone had belonged to a bird, and a bird of a species hitherto unknown. It was immediately figured and lithographed, and copies, with certain instructions for finding other such bones, were sent out to New Zealand, to be distributed wherever Europeans had trod among the ferns of that colony. Years passed. By-and-by a very big box arrived at Lincoln's-inn-fields, London, containing congeners of the sailor's marrow-bone, some of them upwards a yard long. Professor Owen set to work, and built up from these bones, not one, but five (ultimately eleven) distinct species of an extinct animal hitherto utterly unknown to natural history. It must have been unable to fly, (hence the marrow instead of air, in the bones), and must have had uncommon pedestrian powers, (hence the necessity for marrow.) The structure of the beak and neck indicates that its power of wrenching and grubbing up roots must have been tremendous. Its food was fern roots, which, in New Zealand, are so farinaceous, that the natives make bread of them to this day.

It has been named the dinornis, because it is the most stupendous of birds (deinos, fearfully great, ornis, bird.) The disappearance of the dinornis is easily accounted for. When the progenitors of the present native tribes first landed from the South Seas, the dinornis must have been their only animal food; for in New Zealand no quadrupeds are indigenous. As it took no less than a century for the Dutch to extirpate the dodo from Mauritius, a couple of centuries would have sufficed to kill and cook the dinornis off the face of New Zealand. When these birds had all been eaten up, the Maoris took to killing and cooking one another. The next great zoological excitement to be looked for is a real, live dinornis. If one of these gigantic birds be ever found and brought to Regent's Park, the hippopotamus may accept the Chiltern Hundreds, and retire from the representation of the Nile, disgusted at the lead that will be taken by the honorable member from New Zealand.—Household Words.

LITTLE MARY'S STORY.

"Mary!" said the younger of two little girls, as they nestled under a coarse coverlid, one cold night in December, "tell me about Thanksgiving-day before papa went to heaven, I'm cold and hungry and I can't go to sleep—I want something nice to think about."

"Hush!" said the elder child, "don't let dear mamma hear you; come nearer to me;" and they laid their cheeks together.

"I fancy papa was rich. We lived in a very nice house. I know there were pretty pictures on the wall; and there were nice velvet chairs, and the carpet was thick and soft, like the green moss patches in the wood; and we had pretty gold fish on the side table, and Tony, my black nurse, used to feed them. And papa! (you can't remember papa, Letty,) he was tall and grand, like a prince, and when he smiled he made me think of angels. He bought me toys and sweetmeats, and carried me out to the stable, and set me on Romeo's live back, and laughed because I was afraid! And I used to see him come up the street, and then run to the door and jump in his arms; he was a dear kind papa," said the child in a faltering voice.

"Don't cry," said the little one, "please tell me more"

"Well thanksgiving day we were so happy; we sat around such a large table with so many people, aunts and uncles and cousins, (I can't think why they never come to see us now, Letty,) and Betty made such sweet pies, and we had such a big big turkey; and papa would have me sit next to him, and give me the wish-bone and all the plums out of his pudding; and after dinner he would take me in his lap and tell me Red Riding Hood, and call me pet, and bird, and fairy. Oh! Letty, I can't tell any more; I believe I am going to cry."

"I'm very cold," said Letty. "Does papa know up in Heaven, that we are poor and hungry now?"

"Yes—no—I can't tell," answered Mary, wiping away her tears, unable to reconcile her ideas of Heaven with such a thought. "Hush! mamma will hear!"

Mamma had heard. The coarse garment upon which she had toiled since sunrise, dropped from her hands, and tears were forcing themselves thick and fast through her closed eyelids. The simple recital found but too sad an echo in that widowed heart.

Dear reader! as you sit at your luxurious Thanksgiving table, and see no vacant chair or number, no missing one from your flock; as you lean still on the dear arm to which you trust, remember those who with chilled limbs and bleeding hearts know of no treasure on earth, save in the church-yard.

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH:
THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1853.

With the present month closes the First (half-yearly) Volume of the Daily Morning Chronicle. On Tuesday next we commence a new Volume.—Our terms, as published in imprint under the cut-side head, are $4 per year, payable semi-annually; or $3 strictly in advance—50 cts. being deducted from the $4, if payment be made for a year within six months of the time of subscribing—which time, for those who commenced with No. 1, expires with January.

CLAIMS OF CUSTOM HOUSE OFFICERS.

The 3d section of the act of Congress "for the support of the Military Academy for the year 1838," passed July 7th 1838, provides "That the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay to collectors, deputy collectors, naval officers, surveyors, and their respective clerks, together with the weighers, gangers, measurers and markers such sums as will give to said officers, respectively, the same compensation in the year 1838, according to the importations in that year, as they would have been entitled to receive, if the act of 14th July, 1832, had gone into effect; provided that no officer of the customs shall receive, under this act, a greater annual compensation than was paid to such officer in 1832; and that the annual compensation of no such officer, except collectors, naval officers, surveyors and clerks, should exceed $1500. This section was revised and continued in force "until otherwise directed by law" by the 7th section of the act for the relief of Chastelain and Ponvert, passed July 21, 1840.

The claims of officers of the customs recently referred to in newspapers and in Congress, arise under the foregoing sections. The Commissioner of Customs intimated to the Secretary of the Treasury, February 18, 1850, that those sections had been repealed as early as 1842. This intimation has since been affirmed by the separate opinions of the Attorney Generals Johnson and Crittenden. Since February 18, 1850, the Commissioner has decided practically that those sections were only half repealed—that they were repealed as to collectors, naval officers and surveyors, and in force as to weighers, gangers and measurers. If those sections have not been repealed, as the collectors, naval officers and surveyors contend, a small amount of the annual compensation legally due to those officers has been withheld by the department since 1849, and, on the contrary, if they have been repealed, an amount of fees little, if any, short of $1,000,000 has been withheld from the weighers, measurers and gangers. The legal rights of the parties are fixed by the law, and it is not easy to see how they can be altered by the action of Congress.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 24, 1853.

Messrs. Editors:—It is not because the mails travel slowly, but because leisure comes at long intervals, that so many weeks have elapsed since I took up my pen. You may judge what surprise possessed me at the sight of the sparkling sheet which the new year has given birth to, and which is to be, for your goodly city, the swift messenger and Chronicler of truth. You seem to have sprung forth, like Minerva, full-armed; and you certainly appear to rejoice as a strong man to run your race.

The sketches which I promised to give of Rhode Island history, must, for the day, give place to a passing notice of some matters of present interest in this city of multiform industry. You need not expect, however, the latest news—a thing so anxiously looked for by this feverish nation; for my tortoise is always inclined to "make haste slowly," and bears away the fixed and rigid impressions made in the past, rather than the characters newly imprinted on the yielding wax.

The stranger is not particularly impressed with the magnificence of the public buildings of Providence, nor does he look with much greater admiration on the temples which the thrifty citizens have dedicated to commerce and trade. Yet the good people reason about it soundly. They make it plain that the proportions and beauty of their legislative halls should correspond to the required amount of legislation, and to the area of the State; now this area being about 1200 square miles, who can blame them because their public edifices rise no nearer the clouds? who can refrain from praising them rather that they have so nice a sense of justness of proportion? The great temple in Lilliput, which was, you know, seven feet high, might appear small to the dwellers in Brobdignag, but it was just the thing for them. With some noble exceptions, and these rapidly increasing, our merchants seem willing to transact their various business under the lowliest roofs, and many an unsightly frame building of one or two stories, stands along our most thronged thoroughfares. But the gains collected at humble counters are freely spent in adorning private residences that might satisfy princes, in providing facilities for the most liberal mental culture, and in diffusing the dews of Christian charity over parched and desolate hearts.

In zealous imitation of the great centres of corruption, Providence has a theatre where the frivolous and the dissolute may have their appetites satisfied. It is only occasionally that some noble tragedy of the old masters appears on the stage; some trifling comedy pleases most the idle multitudes, and Lola Montes' dancing draws greater crowds than either! Just now "Uncle Tom" is performed to crowded houses. Such is the unprecedented popularity of this humble hero, when a gifted pen sketches his holy lineaments for an admiring world! The mention of this play leads me to remark on the developements, often mortifying, which are in such a case made, of the weaknesses and follies of mankind. The public, especially the American public, is very fond at times of running wild. It is afflicted with intermittent fever. It must have some idol to exalt above every other.—We hope Mrs. Harriet B. Stowe will not be disappointed when her worshippers withdraw and leave her shrine desolate—for that time must come; and, noble woman as she is, she must give place to the next favorite whom the multitude will intoxicate with their flatteries.

SPECTATOR.

THOMAS FRANCIS MEAGHER.

This Irish orator and patriot, as we style him in this country, or Irish rebel, as he is deemed in England, arrived in Boston on Tuesday by the Providence train, and at the depot he met with an enthusiastic reception from a large gathering of his countrymen. Mr. Meagher was received by a portion of the Committee of Arrangements, and escorted to a Barouche, in which he proceeded to the Revere House. In one of the reception rooms he was introduced to other members of the committee, and to a great number of persons who were present to pay their respects to the distinguished stranger. His reception was about as extravagant as our people gave Kossuth.

Mr. J. B. Harvey, on behalf of the Committee of Arrangements, delivered an address to Mr. Meagher, which was quite revolutionary in its tone, and which contained the following remarkable sentence:

"Sir, we recognize you through your deeds and words, as one desiring Liberty and Justice—not for yourself and your own nation only—but for all—of whatever 'clime or country, creed or color;' as one opposed with all his strength to robbery, murder, tyranny; although the perpetrators may veil their crime with other names; as one who would use the sword only in the last resort, and to establish Justice; and finally, would break it in pieces at the inauguration of her reign."

In the evening, Mr. Meagher lectured in the New Music Hall, which was crowded full, Mayor Seaver presiding. As the Mayor introduced him, he stated that many persons could not get tickets, and therefore Meagher would lecture again, (delivering, of course, the same lecture.) The subject was Australia.

Within twenty years past, he said there had been many changes, and New South Wales had had very much to struggle with, from the insolent and tyrannical interference of the mother country. But they had a spirit, something like that which animated Daniel Boone and David Crocket. And though some of them, who have been successful since the recent discoveries of gold, in acquiring wealth, had aped the manners of the aristocracy, by putting a strange animal on the panels of their coaches, and doubling the capes of their coachmen, yet he believed it was only because of the accident of a woman and a gentle mother being the occupant of the throne that they did not throw off their allegiance. They had already, he said, combined to prevent the landing of convicts, and adopted a seditious flag with five stars and the Union Jack in one corner; but the time would come, when the stars would occupy the whole field and float over their ships in every quarter of the globe. He alluded pathetically to the ignorant natives, who, like our own aborigines, were driven far inland, among the haunts of the Kangaroo, and far from the abodes of civilization.

He eloquently described the effects of the gold discoveries, and said that in case of a rebellion, the British armies would meet an untried enemy in the gold mines—they would scarcely sing "God save the Queen" for a shilling a day, when they could, by a single spadefull of that rich loam, acquire wealth sufficient to purchase a colonel's commission.

His description of the power of gold, and the uses to which it has been and is applied, and his peroration, were surpassingly eloquent.

A supper at the Merchant's Exchange Hotel closed the day, with toasts, songs and speeches, which lasted beyond midnight.

Gen. Pierce sent his carriage for Meagher, and received a call from him at the Tremont House.

SENTENCES.—In the Court of Common Pleas for Strafford County, in session at Dover, Jacob Dennett, charged with the larceny of a gold chain and silver coin from Mrs. Ann Wrisley, of the Dover Hotel, retracted his plea of "not guilty," made on Wednesday, and on Thursday plead guilty. He was sentenced by the Court to imprisonment in the County Jail for 90 days, and to pay a fine of $50. Isaac Merrill, charged with aiding and abetting the escape of Dennett from Jail, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to 30 days imprisonment, and a fine of $25. He was defended by Chas. W. Woodman, Esq., who made some feeling and touching remarks, urging mitigation of sentence.

LOCAL.

THE HUTCHINSONS.—These well known and deservedly popular singers will give a musical entertainment at the Cameneum, this evening, as will be seen by their advertisement. Their selections are excellent, being music which any audience would understand and be gratified with. At their concert in this city a few weeks since, they had a crowded house, and gave universal satisfaction. Judson's opera was sung in fine style, and his imitations of foreign singing were perfect.—The song entitled "The Ship on Fire!" was sung with such effect that many of the audience thought an alarm of fire had really been given. The echo song, by John, was executed in the finest possible manner—the echo surpassing, if possible, Jenny Lind's echo in her celebrated song.

FREE DEMOCRACY.—The Free Democratic Convention for Rockingham Councillor District, will meet this day at ten o'clock, in Exeter, at the Town Hall. And the Rockingham Convention for the nomination of Register, Treasurer and Road Commissioners, will take place at 11.

☞ The wind-mill controversy has died out for want of wind.

SHIP NAMED.—One of the new clipper ships now building by Messrs. Fernald & Petigrew, on this river, is named the Water-Witch. She is owned by a Boston House.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The Democratic Convention for the nomination of a candidate for Congress, in District No. 1, was holden at Rochester on Tuesday, Jan. 26.

The Officers of the Convention were,

Dr. J. V. C. Hanson, of Somersworth, President.

Hon. Thos. J. Parsons of Rye,
" Job Otis of Strafford,
" Zenes Clement of Sanbornton,
" Nathan F. Barnes, Esq. of Conway, Vice Presidents.

Albert R. Hatch of Portsmouth,
Levi W. Folsom of Tamworth, Secretaries.

At the first ballot Dr. GEO. W. KITTREDGE of Newmarket, received 63 of the 110 votes cast, and he was subsequently declared unanimously nominated.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Jan. 25.

SENATE.—Long before the hour of meeting the galleries, aisles, and every available piece of room, was crowded by ladies and gentlemen, who had come to hear Mr. Soule speak on Mr. Cass' resolution.

The House bills for the suppression of frauds in the prosecution of claims, by members and others, was taken up, amended, and finally passed.

The following resolution of Mr. Cass was then taken up—

Resolved, That the committee on foreign Relations be instructed to enquire and report whether any measures, and, if any, what, should be taken by the Senate, in relation to the declaration annexed to the ratification, on the part of Great Britain, of the treaty concluded between that country and the United States on the 29th of April, 1850; and to the letter of the Secretary of State to the British Minister on the exchange of the ratification.

Mr. Soule then addressed the Senate. He expressed his regret at being obliged to disagree with the two Senators who had opened the debate, Messrs. Cass and Mason, in what had been said respecting the course of the administration, with respect to the difficulties with the officials of Cuba. Be their opinions what they may, there could be no doubt about the verdict of the people of the country rendered on that conduct. Mr. S. continued—What could have been the object of the call on which this debate originated? It was not to remonstrate against the interference of England and France, for that would be inconsistent with the position assumed by the Senator from Virginia, that the doctrine announced in 1823 did not extend beyond the circumstances of the day and occasion. It was not his purpose to condemn the President for his refusal to unite in the proposed tripartite treaty, for that refusal was most proper, and was sustained by the Senator. Whatever had been the object it had resulted in the triumph of the distinguished Minister of State, and, perhaps, thrown obstacles in the way of the incoming administration.

After the conclusion of Mr. Soule's speech, the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—A bill was passed granting the right of way to the St. Louis Railroad Co.

The New York Mint bill was taken up, and Mr. Seymour at the conclusion of his speech, moved the previous question, which was sustained—yeas 76, nays 42.

Mr. Brooks, of New York, having reported the bill, proceeded under the rules, to make the closing speech, occupying the time up to the closing of the morning hour, replying to the remarks of Mr. Chandler, of Pa.

The House then went into Committee on the Deficiency bill. Among the amendments was one adding $25,000, to the previous appropriation for the repairs of the Congressional Library.

An ineffectual effort was made to give Clark Mills $20,000, in consideration of his erecting the Jackson Statue.

Without disposing of the bill, the Committee rose.

FATAL TERMINATION.—We learn from the Portland papers, that Mr. Lyman Hatch, of Wells, (whose terrible wound by a hay hook, we noticed last week,) died on the 19th, after great suffering.

WASHINGTON ITEMS.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Gen. Pierce has written a cordial letter to Mr. Buchanan, soliciting his nomination of a member of the Cabinet, from Pennsylvania, and stating that Mr. Marcy would be his preference for the New York representative in the Cabinet.

We have the probable line of remarks to be pursued by Mr. Seward in his speech to-day. He regards Mr. Cass's resolution as unwise and impolitic, but will vote for them if they come to a vote.

The C[illegible]n question is not ripe. The European powers must be looked for in the Pacific isl[illegible], in Japan and China, and in Central Am[illegible]ca.

The individual referred to by Senator Hale in his charges that an agent had collected large sums from sailors, under the plea of procuring the passage of a law giving them extra pay, is Mr. J. Knox Walker, who was private secretary to President Polk.

Mr. Secretary Kennedy says it Walker had received all the fees which were demanded to be wrung from the sailors it would have amounted [illegible]

FIRE.—On Sunday, [illegible] the dwelling house of Mr. Samuel Hills in Strafford, N. H., was consumed, with its contents. All of his corn, wheat &c., was lost, and the larger portion of the contents of the cellar. The origin of the fire is not known. Insured in the Gilmanton Farmers' Fire Insurance Co.

NEWS FROM MEXICO—THE PRESIDENT RESIGNED—REVOLUTIONISTS TRIUMPHANT. New Orleans, Jan. 25.—We have received late and important intelligence from Mexico.

President Arista resigned office, and left the city of Mexico on the 6th inst.

Senor Clevellas, Judge of the Supreme Court, becomes President ad interim.

Gen. Monon, with the government troops, had been beaten in a regular battle. The revolutionists were triumphant everywhere, and all were looking for the return of Santa Anna.

NAVAL.—Norfolk, Jan. 25.—The United State ship Raritan, Commander M'Auley, 98 days from Callao, has arrived.

Lieut. Penham died on the passage; his remains were preserved and brought home.

Owing to the prevalence of the yellow fever the Raritan stopped but one day at St. Thomas. The disease was subsiding.

The United States Consul at St. Thomas had died.

SUICIDE OF SLAVES BY DROWNING.—The Nashville (Tenn.) Gazette states that a negro woman, with a child in each arm, jumped from one of the steamboats at the upper wharf in that place last week, and all three were drowned. The woman's husband endeavored to end his existence in the same way, but was prevented from accomplishing his purpose by the interference of bystanders. The woman and children had been sold by a citizen of the county to a man going South, and she prefered death to a removal from her old home.

A despatch from Trenton, N. J., to the Worcester Spy says:

"Great excitement has been created here in consequence of the sudden disappearance of Wm. J. Idel, known as a highly respectable merchant. Unpaid notes and other debts amounting to $20,000 have been left behind. many of the signatures and endorsements are pronounced forgeries."

Small notes of the denomination of five, twenty-five and fifty cents, are about to be issued by several of the brokers in Cincinnati.

A stampede of slaves, took place from Cumberland, Md. There were 9 of them, and were pursued and overtaken about twenty-four miles from the place, in Bedford county, Pa., and eight of them taken back. Five of them have their feet so badly frozen as to be unable to walk.

EXTRAORDINARY WEALTH.—The New York Tribune translates the following from a German paper:

"A rich planter, a Mr. Delabitzcher, descended from an ancient French family, recently died in New Orleans. He was a young man at the time of the first French Revolution, and fled from the guillotine to become a merchant's clerk in the Crescent City. After a time he married the daughter of a rich planter, and carried on the plantation so skilfully, as in a comparatively short time to acquire the reputation of one of the richest men in Louisiana. Since his death the division of his property has shown its aggregate to be an amount, which, from a European point of view, is almost fabulous.

It consisted of 31 plantations, upon branches of the Mississippi, affording an annual profit from the cultivation of coffee and sugar of $50,000; 12 steamboats upon the Mississippi, 3 on the ocean, and 34 merchant vessels, the aggregate income of which, from the lowest calculation is $150,000; shares to the amount $5,000,000 in R. R. stocks, producing $250,000; seven limited partnerships in Europe, one in each of the cities of London, Paris, Bordeaux, Lisbon, Cadiz, Naples and Constantinople, each producing an annual profit of $80,000, and in all $560,000; cash to the amount of 7,000,000 in the Bank of England, drawing 2 per cent, producing $140,000, making in all an annual income of $2,350,000, or about 14,000,000 francs. His property in houses, furniture, collection of works of art, books, &c., was in proportion. The property falls to three heirs."

A BAD PENNY RETURNED.—Emma Snodgrass has again returned to Boston, dressed in male attire. At 11 o'clock, Tuesday forenoon, she walked down Washington street, wearing a cloth cap, clay over sack, dark pants, white stockings, and patent leather bootees.—Boston Journal.

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE

IN FRAMINGHAM, MASS.

THE house heretofore known as the FRAMINGHAM HOTEL, situated in Framingham Centre, Mass., having been put in complete and thorough repair throughout, is now offered for sale. The main house is 100 feet on the street, 60 feet of which has a piazza, and contains 30 rooms, including a large hall; has a large and dry cellar, Ice House, and the best of water. The whole premises have been occupied the past year as a private residence, during which time many improvements have been made in and about the house and grounds, the front yard having been enclosed, set with large trees, and grassed. The house is well adapted for a genteel Boarding House or Hotel, for which it is much wanted; and the Board of Education have decided to remove the State Normal School, now located at West Newton, to Framingham, the site for which is only a few minutes' walk from the premises, makes this property particularly desirable for this purpose, as it will secure, in connection with boarders from the city, a profitable business the year round.
It is also desirable as a private residence, having every convenience as such, and being situated in close proximity to the Common, several Churches, High School, (free,) and only a few minutes' walk from the depot. The size of the House, to any one having a large family, would not be objectionable, as the hall and other parts could be fitted up in a manner which would add much to the convenience and comfort of a residence in the country; or a part of it could be so used, and the remainder let, without inconvenience. To persons, therefore, in pursuit of property for either of the above purposes, or for investment, an opportunity offers rarely to be met with. Terms of sale will be liberal, and possession given at any time.
For further information, apply by letter or otherwise, to L. WIGHT, Framingham, or in Boston to J. K. PORTER & CO., 27 Water st.

THREE BOYS DROWNED.—On Saturday afternoon three boys about twelve years of age were drowned at Rahway, N. Y. A large number were skating on a pond near the town, and the three venturing too near an open place, broke through the ice. It is stated that several men were standing near, and no effort was made to rescue the boys until too late, although the water was not over four feet deep.

A CAT NURSING THREE RATS AND TWO KITTENS.—There is now exhibiting at Wolverhampton, (says a correspondent of Kidd's Own Journal,) a curious sex'cette, namely, a cat, three young rats, and two kittens. They are all sweetly affectionate. The cat, a fine animal, was in stables of the Shrewsbury and Birmingham Railway Station, Strafford-road, where, in May last, she gave birth to five kittens. Three of these were drowned. The disconsolate mother, finding her family reduced, discovered a rat's nest, killed the parent and five of her young ones, appropriating to herself the three that were left. These she conveyed to her own bed, suckled them and brought them up. All this curious lot is to be seen in one cage, happy and glorious.

THE IMPROVED
EMPIRE STATE STOVE.
THIS justly celebrated COOKING STOVE having been improved in every way it could be to make its operations more complete, and its plates beautifully ornamented—no expense, time or trouble having been spared to make this the most complete Cooking Stove ever brought before the public—the subscriber feels assured in warranting the IMPROVED EMPIRE STATE superior to any stove in the market, as hundreds can testify who have used them for the past year.
This Stove has a very LARGE OVEN, which makes it desirable on account of doing more cooking with the same amount of fuel than can be done in any other stove. The flues are large, which ensures a good draft in all cases. The castings are very heavy and smooth, and those parts that come next the fire are extra thick, making it very durable. It is adapted to the use of either coal or wood, and we warrant them to operate as well with one as the other. We furnish them with the very best apparatus; and, altogether, it is the MOST DURABLE, ECONOMICAL and CONVENIENT COOKING STOVE ever made—complete in every respect. We ask the attention of all persons intending to purchase a new, or exchange their old stove, to an examination of the Improved Empire State.
We have also on hand a variety of other Cooking Stoves, called the "Banner," "Belle of the States," "King of the States," "Independence," "Anglo Saxon," "Pearl of Troy," &c.; with a large lot of PARLOR STOVES, such as the Revere Air-Tight, Star, Revere Parlor Cook, Lady Franklin, for Wood or Coal; Shop, Office and Air-Tight Stoves, of different sizes and prices for either wood or coal.
Also an extensive assortment of HOUSEKEEPING GOODS; Wooden, Willow, Glass, Britannia, Japan, Tin, Hard, Enamel, and Brass Ware; Copper, Cast Iron, and Chain Pumps; Window-Shades, Table Oil-cloths, &c.
All the above goods will be sold lower than can be bought elsewhere in this vicinity.

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS
AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.
PATENT METALLIC
LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.
THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.
The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.
☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.

THE ROGER WILLIAMS
COOKING STOVE.
FOR COAL OR WOOD.
THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the merits of this most beautifully modeled pattern; equally adapted for coal or wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the
Most Complete and Efficient
Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity. It is an elegant model, with fine smooth Providence castings, lifted together in the most substantial manner. The oven, (by far the most important part of a cooking stove,) in point of capacity, and in regard to its operation, is unsurpassed by that of any other stove now in the market, it being lined with fire-brick to retain and equalize the heat, and provided with valves for the escape of steam, &c. arising from the roasting of meats—rendering it in this respect superior to the old fashioned but universally admired Tink kitchen.
The broiling apparatus is constructed on an entirely new and original plan, and will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room. The sliding hearth is an improvement not to be found in any other stove.
The popularity of this over all other stoves now in the market, may be inferred from the fact that since its first introduction the last season, over THREE THOUSAND have been put into successful operation in New England and New York City.
Every stove is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser or the money refunded.
Each stove is warranted not to crack for twelve months from date of purchase. It is believed that this stove combines all improvements that skill can invent, and is by far the most perfect cooking stove ever sold in Portsmouth. And though its price is higher than any other stove offered in this market of late, it is without question the cheapest in the end. All intending to purchase are respectfully invited to give this an examination before purchasing elsewhere.
Also, a variety of cheap Cook, Parlor, and Office Stoves, which are offered low.

BE NEAT.

In a recent conversation with a wealthy merchant, he remarked that whatever property he had acquired was owing in a great measure to the fact that his mother had brought him up to be neat when a boy.

His story, as nearly as I can recollect it, was as follows:

"When I was six years old, my father died, leaving nothing to my mother but the charge of myself and two younger sisters. After selling the greater part of the little household furniture she had owned, she took two small upper rooms in W——street, and there by her needle contrived, in some way—how I cannot conceive, when I recollect the bare pittance for which she worked—to support us in comfort. Frequently, however, I remember that our supper consisted simply of a slice of bread, seasoned by hunger and rendered inviting by the neat manner in which our repast was served—our table being always spread with a cloth, which, like my mother's heart, seemed ever to preserve a snow-white purity."

"Speaking of those days reminds me of the time when we sat down to the table, one evening: and after my mother had asked a blessing of our Heavenly Father upon her little defenceless ones, in terms of tender pathos that I remember yet—and which, if possible, I think must have made angels weep—she divided the little remnant of her only loaf into three pieces, placing one on each of our plates, but preserving none for herself. I stole round to her side and placed my portion before her, and was about to tell her that I was not hungry, when a flood of tears burst from her eyes, and she clasped me to her bosom.—Our meal was left untouched; we sat up late that night, but what we said I cannot tell. I know that my mother talked to me more like a companion than a child, and that when we knelt down to pray, I consecrated myself to be the Lord's and to serve my mother."

"But," said he, "this is not telling you how neatness made my fortune. It was some time after this that my mother found an advertisement in the newspaper for an errand boy in a commission store in B——street. Without being necessitated to wait to have my clothes mended, for my mother always kept them in perfect order, and although on minute inspection bore traces of more than one patch, yet, on the whole, they had a very respectable air; without being obliged to wait even to polish my shoes, for my mother always kept a box of blacking with which my cowhides must be set off before I took my breakfast; without waiting to arrange my hair, for I was obliged to observe from my earliest youth the most perfect neatness in every respect, my mother sent me to see if I could obtain the situation. With a light step I started, as I had a long time wished my mother to allow me to do something to assist her.

My heart beat fast, I assure you, as I turned out of W—— into B—— street, and made my way along to the number my mother had given me. I summoned all the courage I could muster, stepped briskly into the store, found my way to the counting-room, and made known the reason of my calling. The merchant smiled, and told me that there was another boy who had come in a little before me that he thought he should hire. However, he asked me some questions, and then went and conversed with the other boy, who stood in the back part of the office. The result was that the lad who first entered for employment was dismissed, and I entered his employ, first as an errand boy, then clerk, and afterwards was his partner, and then he left me the whole business, stock, &c. After I had been in his service some years, he told me that the reason he chose me in preference to the other boy was because of the general neatness of my person, while with reference to the other lad, he noticed that he had neglected properly to turn down his vest collar. To this simple circumstance has probably been owing the greater part of my subsequent success in business."

Will not all of my young friends who read this narrative of the successful merchant, like him form in their youth habits of neatness.—Remember that no one will love a slovenly boy or girl, and that if you would secure the respect of your acquaintances, you must be very careful and respect your own personal appearance. Purity and cleanliness of person are indispensable to the highest purity of character.—Advocate and Guardian.

PROFITABLE FICTION.—No kind of literature is so generally attractive as fiction. Pictures of life and manners, and stories of adventures, are more eagerly received by the many than graver productions, however important these letter may be. When we consider how many hours of languor and anxiety, of deserted age and solitary celibacy, of pain even, and poverty, are beguiled by the perusal of this fascinating department of literature, we cannot austerely condemn the source whence is drawn the alleviation of such a portion of human misery.—Quarterly Review.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON.—This distinguished statesman is justly characterized by Daniel Webster, in the following language: "The discerning eye of Washington immediately called him to that post which was infinitely the most important in the administration of the new system. Hamilton was made Secretary of the Treasury, and how he fulfilled the duties of such a place at such a time, the whole country saw with admiration. He smote the rock of the national resources, and the abundant streams of revenue gushed forth. He touched the dead corpse of the public credit, and it sprang upon its feet."

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH:
ERIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1853.

With the present month closes the First (half-yearly) Volume of the Daily Morning Chronicle. On Tuesday next we commence a new Volume.—Our terms, as published in imprint under the outside head, are $4 per year, payable semi-annually; or $3 strictly in advance—50 cts. being deducted from the $4, if payment be made for a year within six months of the time of subscribing—which time, for those who commenced with No. 1, expires with January.

DEBATE NO CUBA.

The most interesting thing reported from Congress on Wednesday, is a speech of Senator Seward of New York, in reply, mainly, to a speech of Mr. Cass on Cuba and the Monroe Doctrine. Mr. Seward said that Mr Cass, in a late speech, had vindicated the memory of John Quincy Adams from aspersions which he says Mr. Cass cast upon him in 1850, shortly after his death, in regard to some action on slavery.

Mr. Seward then proceeded to prove, which he did by documentary evidence, that Mr. Adams was the author of the Monroe doctrine. He afterwards read an extract from Mr. Adams' instructions in 1823 to Mr. Forsyth, then American Minister in Spain, and afterwards to Mr. Nelson, Mr. F.'s successor, going to show that Mr. Adams was also the author of those measures of manifest destiny which Mr. Cass' resolution seeks to reaffirm.

In relation to the Cuban resolution, Mr. S. spoke as follows:—

And what does France or Britain want of Cuba? It is a slave colony, and they have abolished slavery in all their possessions.—Should either of them obtain that Island, the first act of the government there must be the abolition of slavery. The abolition of slavery, too, must be made with compensation, and the compensation must be drawn from the home treasury. Will either of them take Cuba at such a cost? And what would Cuba without slavery be worth to either of those powers? Let their experience in the West Indies answer. Cuba without slavery would be worthless to any power but the United States, and John Quincy Adams was right. Cuba either with or without slavery gravitates towards, and will ultimately fall into the American Union.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27th.

SENATOR SEWARD.—The following appears to be a continuation of Senator Seward's speech:

What then, has France ceased to be ambitious? and has Great Britain adopted the policy that Augustus Cæsar bequeathed to Rome, to forbear from extending the bounds of empire? Not at all. France and England are unchanged. I do not know that they have learned that their power cannot be renewed or restored in America. But I do know that they will find it out when they try to renew or restore it again; and all alarms raised by the Senator from Michigan, pass by me like the idle winds. The Monroe doctrine was a right one, not because it would require to be enforced, but because it was well timed. It was the result of a sagacious discovery of the tendency of the age.

It will prevail if you affirm it; it will equally prevail if you neglect to affirm it, as you have have heretofore. As a practical question therefore, it has ceased to be. It is obsolete. You are already the great continental power of America; but does that content you? I trust it does not. You want the commerce of the world, which is the empire of the world.

Open a highway through your country from New York to San Francisco; put your domain under cultivation, and your ten thousand wheels of manufacture in motion; multiply your ships and send them forth to the East; the nation that draws most material and productions from the earth and fabricates the greatest amount for the supply of foreign nations, must and will be the greatest power on earth.

DEATH OF MR. JUDD.—We learn that Rev. SYLVESTER JUDD died in Augusta, Me. on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock. He was pastor of the Unitarian Church in Augusta, has been chaplain of Maine Legislature, and enjoyed a very high reputation for literary attainments, a christian spirit, and a fearless openness of speech. He was announced in this paper only a short time since, to deliver the eighth lecture before the Portsmouth Lyceum, but was prevented by sickness, in the form of bilious fever, the consequence of which was extreme prostration of body and mind, ending in his death, after a confinement of about three weeks. His age was 39.

MADIAI DEAD.—Everybody lately has heard of the Madiai case. The latest news from Italy, per last steamer, informs us that Francis Madiai, whose case has excited so much attention in the religious world, lies dead in prison at Florence. Mr. Wilbraham Taylor, writing in the London Times, expresses his conviction that Madiai was poisoned, and says that the unfortunate man himself complained that some slow poison was mixed with his food. It will be remembered that Madiai and his wife were imprisoned about 18 months since, on the charge of reading the scriptures, distributing tracts, &c.

For some time past Madiai has been in a state of impaired intellect, but the newspapers say had been treated without severity, owing to the interference of the King of Prussia on his behalf.

LOOK OUT FOR FIRES.

We have wondered that so few fires have occurred in this city of late, but find that that fact is not attributable to any foresight or caution of some of our citizens. A couple of the Board of Engineers were appointed to examine the condition of the stores and houses in a part of this city, in reference to their condition as to fires, and have made the following statement:

"Agreeable to the direction of the Chief Engineer, we have examined all the stoves in most part of the houses east of Elm street and north of Hanover street, in the immediate vicinity of the city proper, and find some one hundred and twenty-five stoves in a dangerous condition as it regards fire, and some instances where ashes are kept in wooden boxes and barrels—a very dangerous practice. We find that stoves are not properly cared for, for the most part, in tenements that are rented. We have called the attention of most of the landlords to the facts, and are happy to say that our suggestions have met with their prompt attention."

When our citizens, and especially our City Fathers, have read thus far, it may be well, perhaps, to tell them that the Elm and Hanover streets above mentioned, are not the streets in Portsmouth which bear those names, but in our sister city of Manchester; and that the stories about dangerous stoves and barrels of ashes are told in the Daily Mirror, which is held up every morning to show the Manchesterians their faces.

But after saying thus much to guard against mistakes, we deem it proper to add, that a similar committee, if appointed here, could find some wooden fireboards, leaky stoves, tumble-down funnels, and fire traps of other sorts, on a careful investigation among the poor and careless.

Not being of the City Council, we will make no further suggestion in that direction—but recommend to every thrifty citizen who reads the Chronicle, an early examination of his own domestic fireworks, for his own benefit and that of his neighbors.

TIT FOR TAT.

Another offset has been made for the Duchess of Sutherland's manifesto against slavery, addressed to American Ladies. It purports to come from a meeting of American ladies, of Anglo Saxon origin, held at Milan, Lombardy, on the 30th day of December, 1852, who addressed a sort of protest to the English ladies, admitting the evils of slavery, and promising to "use all just and honorable means to ameliorate, and finally to abolish it, wherever, and under whatever form it may now exist;" but seeing such appalling dangers to the federal constitution and union, from any motion of the subject, say that "just at this time," "American ladies should recoil with affright from the mischief which any hasty zeal might occasion, and that they should deem it their present duty to remain submissive in the position allotted to them by the Almighty, until time and occasion shall render their agency useful."

After thanking the English ladies for their love of liberty, they "entreat them to look at home, and examine the condition of Christian freedom in the United Kingdom, and then employ their leisure, and use their amiable and powerful influence, where it can be successfully exercised—in gently removing those antiquated monopolies and time worn restrictions, which now so heavily press upon and impoverish their people. In correcting the errors and simony of their exclusive church—in relieving the lands from burdens of a complex hierarchy,—in individually adopting the liberal principles of the Christian Liturgy of the Church of America, and by such efforts, while they may gain for themselves a well earned reputation, &c."

The document is signed "Catherine Howard, in the Chair; Jane Gray, Secretary." The coincidence between these names, and some noble names in England's history, struck us as being remarkable, if it were accidental.—But upon a second reading of the most unfeminine effort, we think it looks a little like a trick played off upon Mr. Hume, the reform member of Parliament, to whom it was forwarded, and who would be somewhat puzzled, we think, to tell what is meant by "the Church of America." But if ladies did not write the document, they might have done so;—and if there is no Church of America, there might be.

THE EASTERN RAILROAD CASE.—The Salem Register learns that the remarks of Mr. Nayson, in the legislature of Massachusetts, in reference to the running of a certain locomotive on the Eastern Railroad, in a dangerous condition, evince an entire misapprehension of the facts in the case, notwithstanding the confidence with which he challenges denial. Such statements should not be hazarded rashly, or on insufficient grounds, and we trust therefore, says the Register, that Mr. Nayson's charges will be authoritatively met and disproved.

It has been our lot to travel over every line of railroad passing out of Boston; but in no one have we seen more constant care and attention than on the Eastern. We would favor every law for the strictest inspection and watch of every Railroad and its furniture—and we are pretty certain that inspectors would find as little fault with this road as with any other.

LOCAL.

City Council—Jan. 27.

In Board of Aldermen, several bills were presented and passed for payment.

A communication was received from the High School Committe, advising the purchase of Colton's Maps for certain schools, amounting to about $50. The subject was laid on the table till the next meeting of the Board, and the several male teachers were requested to examine the Maps at the City Rooms, and state their opinions of them.

The committee on Claims, to whom was referred the Health Officers' bills, reported the same nearly as presented, which report was accepted, and the bill passed for payment.

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN.—Died at his farm house within the limits of this city, on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 26, ABEDNEGO ROBINSON, Esq., aged 86. He was sitting in his chair, and died instantaneously. Mr. Robinson was one of the most active, energetic and efficient men who ever lived among us in the occupation of husbandmen. He had lived in different parts of the country, and was always, and to the very last, a close observer of soils, climates, modes of culture, and the habits of plants and vegetables. For the last thirty or forty years of his life, he has resided on and cultivated the farm whereon he died. And by constant and thorough experiment, by being ready to communicate results, and by occasional writing on agricultural subjects, he has contributed much aid to the art and science of agriculture, which was his favorite study and pursuit. He died in a good old age, honored and respected.

His funeral will take place on Sunday next, at 2 o'clock.

☞ The Hutchinsons gave another of their fine concerts, on Thursday evening, at the Cameneum, which was filled with a gratified audience. In singing the Ship on Fire, their imitation of the varied and stifled sounds of a fire alarm on shipboard, swelling into affright and uproar, was shown to be perfect, by an actual alarm in the audience. Two or three worthy citizens seized their hats, and one, more prompt than the rest, was making his escape, but was withheld and undeceived amid shouts of laughter, in which he joined as heartily as any, when he saw through the deception.

☞ The dead body of a new born infant was found on Thursday, in a vault in Hunking street, by some farmers who were emptying the same. The body, which had apparently laid there two or three months, and was much decayed, was found wrapped in a piece of cloth; and was buried by direction of the City Marshal.

PROF. ERNI'S LECTURES.—The first lecture of the course of Chemical Lectures, is advertised for this evening, at Hanover street Chapel. We are pleased to learn that subscriptions have been secured, sufficient to warrant the delivery of the eight lectures; and would now suggest the desirableness of a general attendance on the course, by all our scientific people, and by all who wish to become so, especially by the younger portion of them. We have no personal knowledge of his eloquence or tact as a lecturer, but his recommendations as a chemist and a teacher of the science, are numerous, and from the very highest sources.

☞ Lecture on Catholicity—at the Cameneum this evening. See advertisement.

SAMARITAN SOCIETY, SALEM.—The annual Address in behalf of this charitable association will be given, (as we learn from the Register,) on Sunday evening next, in the church in Rust st., by REV. LEMUEL WILLIS, of this city, who was formerly pastor of a church in Salem. The Register remarks that much good has been accomplished by this excellent Society, in years past, and it is gratifying to know that its efforts for the alleviation of suffering and want have been generously sustained by a benevolent public. Its charities are distributed without reference to creed, sect, party, nation or color. The only question considered is whether the applicant for relief is actually needy; this fact ascertained, material assistance and Christian sympathy are most cordially bestowed, according to the necessities of the poor and its ability to supply them. Its deeds of mercy are limited only by its pecuniary means. There will of course be a full attendance on Sunday evening, and a liberal contribution made to the funds of the Society.

ANOTHER GIRL IN PANTS.—We have been informed that a young woman from a neighboring town appeared in our streets on Saturday—and was arrested and detained in one of the watch-houses that night. There being no law against her donning the breeches, she was suffered to depart, on the promise that she would leave the city. This, however, she had not done Monday forenoon.—Boston Times.

We supposed there was a law against such doings. But if there is not, by what right or on what pretext did the police arrest and detain her?

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

THREE DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

The steamship Arctic, which arrived at New York, Jan. 26, left Liverpool Jan. 12.

The British mail steamer Magdalina arrived at Southampton on the forenoon of the 8th, with dates from Vera Cruz to Dec. 5th, and bringing freight to the amount of $1,971,000, of which $48,622 is on account of Mexican dividends. The M. lost seven of her crew from yellow fever.

Mr. John Scoble, known in America from his connection with the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society, has retired from office, and over £1000 has been subscribed to present him with a testimonial.

A series of festivities commences at the Tuilleries in Paris, on the 12th inst., to be continued during the remainder of the winter.

A Havre paper says that a passenger by the American packet ship Isaac Bell, has just been arrested by the Police at Havre, and a considerable number of Socialist pamphlets found in his possession were seized.

The corn and cotton markets at London and Liverpool are without material change.

Luther M. Brown, who was on his way to the state prison in charge of two officers, jumped from the cars near Schenectady, on Friday last, while they were going at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour, and while his feet were bound together by iron shackles. The train kept on until the next stopping place, when the officers took the back train to look after their prisoner, but could see only his tracks in the snow—proving that he had not been seriously injured.

SURGICAL OPERATION.—A tumor of immense size, was successfully removed by Dr. Walter Burnham, of Lowell, from the abdomen of Miss N. Gray, of Wilton, N. H., on the 13th inst. The weight of the tumor was twenty-four pounds, and a singular fact in the operation was, the patient did not lose more than three or four ounces of blood. It is now twelve days since the operation was performed, and the lady is doing well. The wound has nearly healed, and no inflammation has at any time given her any trouble.—Lowell Journal.

FATAL MISTAKE.—Patrick Roderick came to his death at Ward's Island, N. Y., a day or two since, by drinking the contents of a bottle which he was cleaning in an apothecary's shop, and which he supposed to be brandy.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 26.—The mail train on the Ohio and Pennsylvania Rail Road, ran off the track near Brighton, yesterday afternoon, in consequence of the breaking of an axle.—The middle car was precipitated down an embankment full forty feet, the others passing on. Several passengers were injured, some severely, but none were killed.

YORK AND CUMBERLAND RAIL ROAD.—On Saturday, a passenger car was run to Bar Mills, on the Saco River, about twenty miles from Portland. Arrangements are about being concluded for continuing the road to Alfred, as soon as the land damages shall be adjusted. The freight train will run regularly from Bar Mills in the course of a week, and as soon as the road is sufficiently ballasted, the passenger cars will connect with the depot at that place. Thus far the road is well and thoroughly built, and it is believed by those best acquainted with it, that it will do a large business.—Portland Argus.

Dr. Junius Smith, an enterprising and public spirited man, died in Astoria, N. Y., on Monday morning. His death was caused by injuries received in the assault of which he was the victim a year or two ago, on his tea plantation in South Carolina.

TRUTH AND BREVITY.—When one has no desire but to speak the plain truth, he may say a great deal in a very narrow compass.

WOMEN FOR CALIFORNIA.—Late advices from Valparaiso state that the French ship Sonanatta had just arrived there, bound for California, with a cargo of 200 women for that region. The women, according to the captain, had, so far on the voyage, conducted themselves most commendably, and he had no doubt but that when they got to the end of their long journey, he and they would both "make a good thing of it."

A letter from Valparaiso says: "The young dames quite enlivened our streets for a few days, and one or two of our soft-hearted estranjeros tried hard to induce some of them to remain, but it was no go."

A BOY-BABY FOUND.—The Manchester (N. H.) Mirror states that on Saturday morning at West Lebanon, when a brakeman made a fire in the car and looked round as usual to see that everything was right, he found a nice little baby wrapped up in a bundle, and laid near the stove so that it could keep warm.—It was alive and kicking, and seemed to be pleased as children generally are with new things. It is about a month old.

The New York Tribune gives an account of a girl of 18, in that city, who was induced, by a down town merchant, to go and live at his boarding house, under the guise of a sister. He promised to educate, and give her all the accomplishments of a "fine lady"—and then marry her. The mother and daughter assented. It has since been ascertained that he is a mere cheap clerk, and has a wife and family in Westchester county, and a mistress in the city. The friends of the lady, as the best thing they could do, kicked the rascal into the street. Such is a phase of life in New York.

The splended Bridal Chambers of the St. Nicholas hotel were first occupied by a Californian and his wife, who took possession of it on Friday, and sailed for Europe on Saturday—time of occupation 24 hours—bill $150.—New York Mirror.

Lady Lovelace, the daughter of Lord Byron, recently deceased, is said to have been the author of that much debated work, entitled "The Vestiges of Creation."

A TESTY LAWYER, lately, in one of our courts, found himself bothered with a knotty witness, who would not explain as he desired, the difference between the "thick" and "long" kinds of whalebone "Why, man" said the lawyer, "you don't seem to know the distinction between thick and long." "Yas'a I dew." "Explain it, then ?" "Wal, you're plaguey thick-headed, but you ain't long-headed, no how!" said Greeny.

COAL MINES ON FIRE.—The Broad Mountain Vein at Coal Castle, which took fire on the 13th of December, thirteen years since, still continues to pour forth its sulphurous gases, and in wet weather steam may be seen rising in volumes. For a distance of half a mile, this large vein has been entirely consumed above water-level—how far below is not known. It may be remembered that two miners lost their lives by suffocation in the attempt to quench the fire.—Harrisburg (Pa.) Union.

FASHIONS.—By the Paris fashion plates, gentlemen's full dress coats are now made in Paris with sleeves large at the wrist, like the sleeves of ladies' dresses, and are worn with undersleeves puffed at the wrist like those worn by ladies.

It would be worth the cost of a trip to Paris, almost, to see a fashionable Frenchman, in one of these coats, and the new Court dress of tight and short clothes.—Boston Chron.

THE IMPROVED
EMPIRE STATE STOVE.
THIS justly celebrated COOKING STOVE having been improved in every way it could be to make its operations more complete, and its plates beautifully ornamented in the finest manner, trouble having been spared to make this the most complete Cooking Stove ever brought before the public—the subscriber feels assured in warranting the IMPROVED EMPIRE STATE superior to any stove in the market, as hundreds can testify who have used them for the past year.
This Stove has a very LARGE OVEN, which makes it desirable on account of doing more cooking with the same amount of fuel than can be done in any other stove. The fires are large, which ensures a good draft in all cases. The castings are very heavy and smooth, and those parts that come next the fire are extra thick, making it very durable. It is adapted to the use of either coal or wood, and we have for sale the fixtures by which we can do the other. We furnish them with the very best apparatus; and, altogether, it is the MOST DURABLE, ECONOMICAL and CONVENIENT COOKING STOVE ever made—complete in every respect. We ask the attention of all persons intending to purchase a new, or exchange their old stove, to an examination of the Improved Empire State.
We have also on hand a variety of other Cooking Stoves, called the "Banner," "Belle of the States," "King of the States," "Bay State," "Anglo Saxon," "Pearl of Troy," &c.; with a large lot of PARLOR STOVES, such as the Revere Air-Tight, Star, Revere Parlor Cook, Lady Franklin, for Wood or Coal; Shop, Office and Air-Tight Stoves, of different sizes and prices for either wood or coal.
Also an extensive assortment of HOUSEKEEPING GOODS; Wooden, Willow, Glass, Britannia, Japan, Tin, Hard, Enamel, and Brass Ware; Copper, Cast Iron, and Chain Pump; Window-Shades, Table Oil-cloths, &c.
All the above goods will be sold lower than can be bought elsewhere in this vicinity.

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS
AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.
PATENT METALLIC
LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.
THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely secure the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.
The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co., of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.
☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.
Specimens of the article may be seen at the office of the subscriber.

PATENTS.
American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.
IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed Agent of the United States Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th section of the Act of 1837.
Having relinquished the agency for the transmission of models, and adopting a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent can be procured several weeks earlier, he continues to forward them, as before, free of expense, and to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe.
The subscriber aims to present to inventors superior facilities for obtaining patents; and is now prepared to make Specifications at rates cheaper by ten to twenty per cent, than any other office. They can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.
R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.
"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skillful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the merits of this most beautifully modeled pattern; equally adapted for coal or wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the
Most Complete and Efficient
Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity. It is an elegant model, with fine smooth Providence castings, fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven, (by far the most important part of a cooking stove,) in point of capacity, and in regard to its operation, is unsurpassed by that of any other stove now in the market, it being lined with fire-brick to retain and equalize the heat, and provided with valves for the escape of steam, &c. arising from the roasting of meats—rendering it in this respect superior to the old fashioned but universally admired tinkitchen.
The broiling apparatus is constructed on an entirely new and original plan, and will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room. The sliding hearth is an improvement not to be found in any other stove.
The popularity of this over all other stoves now in the market, may be inferred from the fact that since its first introduction the last season, over THREE THOUSAND have been put into successful operation in New England and New York City.
Every stove is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser or the money refunded.
Each stove is warranted not to crack for twelve months from date of purchase. It is believed that this stove combines all the improvements that skill can invent, and is by far the most perfect cooking stove ever sold in Portsmouth. And though its price is higher than any other stove offered in this market of late, it is without question the cheapest in the end. All intending to purchase are respectfully invited to give this an examination before purchasing elsewhere.
Also, a variety of cheap Cook, Parlor, and Office Stoves, which are offered low.

LAWS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE,

Passed, November Session, 1852.

AN ACT providing for the establishment of police courts and the appointment of police justices in certain cases.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened, There shall be in each town in this state, in which this act may be in force, a police court to consist of one able, learned and discreet person, to be appointed and commissioned by the Governor, pursuant to the constitution, to take cognizance of all crimes and offences and misdemeanors committed within said town, whereof justices of the peace now have or may hereafter have jurisdiction.

Sec. 2. And the said police court shall hear and determine all suits, complaints and prosecutions in like manner as is by law provided for the exercise of the powers and authority which are or may be vested in justices of the peace, and do all acts necessary to and consistent with such powers and authority.

Sec. 3. And the said police court shall also have original jurisdiction and cognizance of all suits and actions which may now or any time hereafter be heard, tried and determined before any justice of the peace in the county in which such town may be situated; and no writ in any suit or action shall be made returnable before any justice within such town, but to said police court only; and an appeal shall be allowed from all judgments of said police court, in like cases and to the same extent that appeals are allowed by law from judgments of justices of the peace; and the justice of said police court shall not be of counsel or attorney to any party in any matter or thing whatsoever which may be pending in said court.

Sec. 4. All warrants issued by said court, or by any justice of the peace within such town, shall be made returnable and shall be returned before said court; and if any warrant shall be issued by any justice of the peace, returnable before said court, the lawful fees payable therefor shall not be paid or allowed, unless on examination or hearing before said court, it shall appear to said court that there was just and reasonable cause for issuing said warrant, in which case such fees, costs and charges shall be allowed and taxed in like manner as though said warrant had been issued by a justice of the peace according to the law now in force.

Sec. 5. All fines and forfeitures, and all costs in criminal prosecutions, which shall be received by or paid into the hands of the justice of said court, shall be by him accounted for and paid over to such town, in the same manner and under the same penalties for neglect as are by law prescribed in the case of justices of the peace; and all costs in such prosecutions not thus received, shall be made up, taxed, certified and allowed, and shall be paid and satisfied in like manner as provided by law in cases of justices of the peace.

Sec. 6. A court shall be held by said justice at some suitable and convenient place, to be provided at the expense of such town, on one day of each month, and at such other times as may be necessary, and may be adjourned from day to day by the justice present; and the justice of said court shall from time to time establish all necessary rules for the orderly and uniform conducting of the business thereof.

Sec. 7. The said justice shall account for and pay over to such town all the fees by him received, which now accrue to justices of the peace in civil actions and criminal prosecutions, and such town shall pay annually to such justice of said court the sum of not less than one hundred dollars, to be fixed from time to time by such town, at a meeting thereof duly called for that purpose, in full compensation for all services assigned to him by the provisions of this act.

Sec. 8. The justice of said court shall keep a fair record of all proceedings in said court, and shall make return to the several courts of all legal process and of his doings therein, in the same manner as justices of the peace are now by law required to do, and may hold the office, exercise the powers and perform the duties of clerk of said court; and he shall also annually, in the month of February, render to the selectmen of such town an account, on oath or affirmation, of all money by him received as fines, forfeitures, penalties, fees, and costs.

Sec. 9. All suits, actions and prosecutions which shall be instituted and pending before any justice of the peace within such town, when this act shall take effect, shall be heard and determined as though this act had not been passed.

Sec. 10. An associate justice of said court shall be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Council, and whenever it shall happen that the principal justice of said court shall be interested in any prosecution cognizable in said court, or shall, from any cause, be unable to hear and determine any matter or thing pending therein, the court shall be holden by such associate justice. And said associate justice shall account and pay over all moneys received by him in the same manner as is required of the principal justice. And said associate justice shall be paid by such town for all services by him performed, two dollars for each day of actual service.

Sec. 11. An officer within any town in which this act shall be in force, arresting any offender against the police laws of such town, without warrant, shall forthwith carry said offender before the justice of the police court within such town, or some justice of the peace, that a complaint may be made therefor (except in the case mentioned in sec. 6, chap. 114 of the R. S.,) and any officer neglecting so to do shall forfeit therefor the sum of fifty dollars, to be recovered by an action of debt, one half to the use of the prosecutor and the other half to the use of such town.

Sec. 12. This act shall be in force in any town which shall, at any legal town meeting called for that purpose, by a majority of the voters present and voting thereon, determine to adopt the same. And it shall be the duty of the town clerk of such town, within thirty days thereafter, to file in the office of the Secretary of State an attest copy of such vote of such town, and the same shall be the proper evidence upon which the appointment of police justices as aforesaid may be made.

Sec. 13. This act shall go into operation from and after its passage.

GEO. W. KITTREDGE,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
JOHN S. WELLS,
President of the Senate.

Approved, Jan. 8, 1853.

Sec. 14. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 15. This act shall take effect from the passage thereof. Approved, Jan. 8, 1853.

AN ACT dividing the State into three Congressional Districts.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That this State be and the same is hereby divided into three districts for the purpose of choosing representatives of this State in the Congress of the United States, and each district shall be entitled to elect one representative.

Sec. 2. That said districts shall be formed and limited in the manner following, to wit:

The towns that now constitute the counties of Rockingham, Strafford, Belknap and Carroll shall constitute the first district;

The towns that now constitute the counties of Merrimack and Hillsborough shall constitute the second district.

The towns that now constitute the counties of Cheshire, Sullivan, Grafton and Coos shall constitute the third district.

Sec. 3. So much of chapter three hundred and forty-two and chapter nine hundred and sixty-six of the laws of this State as is inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 4. This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved, Jan. 7, 1853.

AN ACT to amend chapter seven hundred and twenty-nine of the Pamphlet Laws of this State.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That any school district at a legal meeting holden for that purpose, may, by two-thirds of the legal voters of such district, present at said meeting, vote to build, purchase, alter, repair or remove two or more school houses in and for such district, and other necessary buildings therefor, and to furnish the same with all necessary apparatus and furniture; may decide upon the location of such houses, and purchase land therefor, and may raise money for that purpose; Provided, That if each legal voter in said district has been served with a written or printed notice of the time, place and objects of said meeting at least seven days prior thereto, in such a case a majority of the voters present and voting shall have power to bind the district to the performance of the objects contemplated in this act.

Sec. 2. The first section of an act, entitled, "An act relating to school districts," approved Dec. 29, 1848, and all other acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act, so far as thus inconsistent, be and are hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved, Jan. 5, 1853.

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.
PORTSMOUTH:
SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1858.

With the present month closes the First (half-yearly) Volume of the Daily Morning Chronicle. On Tuesday next we commence a new Volume.—Our terms, as published in imprint under the outside head, are $4 per year, payable semi-annually; or $3 strictly in advance—50 cts. being deducted from the $4, if payment be made for a year within six months of the time of subscribing—which time, for those who commenced with No. 1, expires with January.

THE BATTLE.

The Boston Chronicle says "the battle progresses:" (that is, the liquor battle:) and that a petition was presented by Mr. Stevenson of Boston, signed by Hon. T. H. Perkins and 2,863 others, for the "speedy and unconditional repeal" of the liquor law: a motion was made to lay it on the table but was lost by a vote of 119 to 100. So the petition was referred.

But this is not regarded as a test vote.—The Chronicle says, after the election of the United States Senator, the liquor question will consume most of the session. Little can be told of the fate of this Law, from present appearance; to its friends the aspect it now wears is not very hopeful; and politicians wish it at the bottom of the Ded Sea.

The Commonwealth had made some statements of the large amounts of money vested in the traffic, and the large sums raised to break down the law. To which the Chronicle replies:

That men whose rights are invaded, should attempt to resist the invasion and defend their rights, is quite natural. It is as natural that the advocates of the law should be unable to allow any motive but the love of money, in attempts to have the law repealed. Almost all of them are in the receipt of their daily bread by that same advocacy of the Maine Law—how can they reason but from what they know? Themselves mercenary, how can they suppose that any class can act upon the noble motives of justice and right principles!

Among the thousand advocates of the Maine Law around us, we do not know of one who expects any direct or pecuniary reward either from their advocacy or its operation.

We have always had our doubts whether the law were constitutional or practicable; but we have never supposed for a moment that its movers and special working friends, were less "noble" than ourselves, or less so than their particular opponents, the Boston Chronicle, its editor and owners.

Ho! for Australia.—California, so difficult to reach, and so hazardous to approach, but two or three years ago,—now seems to be so near and common, as to take away more than half the romance of the trip. The rush is now for Australia—as the shipping lists show, both in Boston and New York. In Liverpool a similar state of things exists.

During the year just ended, 621 ships, conveying 217,459 passengers, left the port of Liverpool for America and Australia. In the year 1851 the number was 600 ships and 196,890 passengers, being an increase of 14 ships and 20,569 passengers. The departures from the port of London for the Australian Colonies during the past week, were two vessels for Sydney, one to Victoria and one to Lawrencetown, Van Dieman's Land.

No abatement is observable in the activity of exporters, and large entries of almost every species of produce and manufactured goods continue to be made. Among them are many heavy articles for the winter trade, and provisions continue to be sent in considerable quantities. Freights remain very high, but the amount of emigration is at present limited.

Large State Debt.—The State debt of Illinois is over $17,000 000, but Gov. Matteson hopes by a new revenue system which he is about to propose, to pay it off in eight years. It will require a heavy tax to raise two millions and an eighth every twelve months.

It would be most unjust and oppressive, as well as foolish, to lay such a tax. Yet we have seen something like it on a small scale, where a moderate sized school district in Mass. built a school-house costing $6000, and assessed the whole sum in one years' tax!

Mr. Judd's Last Sabbath.—The Augusta Age says the last Sabbath on which Mr. Judd occupied his pulpit, was the third of January. On that occasion, as was his wont at the season of the new year, he reviewed the progress of the year preceeding, in his society, —alluded to the mournful record of death's doings among them, since the former year had expired — and improved the occasion with suitable remarks upon the uncertainty of life. "Who of us," said he, "will be missed from these seats on another new year's day! which of you shall I next be called upon to lay in the grave! or will it be you that shall perform the last duties to the cold remains of your pastor?" Little did we think that his words were truly a premonition of the great loss we have now sustained. Although then in apparent health, that very night witnessed the onset of the fatal disease which terminated his earthly existence.

The prisoners Howlett and Saul, convicted of the murder of Baxter, on board the ship Thomas Watson, of New York, have fully confessed their guilt, and exculpated their companion, Johnson, from any participation in the deed. The execution of these miserable men is set down for Friday next. As effort is being made to induce Governor Seymour to pardon Johnson.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

Washington, Jan. 27.

Senate.—In the Senate, this day, the debate on the Monroe Doctrine was continued, and Mr. Cass' resolution on the Bay of Islands was passed. The debate will repay perusal.

Mr. Mangum was in favor of postponing the subject until after the 4th of March; no Senator would avow the purpose was war, as a party policy: why then continue longer this warlike debate, and discuss this Monroe doctrine concerning a little Island on which could not be cultivated a respectable potato patch?

Mr. Cass said he was not to be deterred, by any charge of not meaning to go to war, from following up any investigation of any subject involving the rights, interests, or honor of his country, slavish submission to wrong would produce, sooner than firm and timely resistance.

Mr. Bell thought the sentiment of the country on this subject was pretty well understood; thought some gentlemen in meddling with it, have burnt their fingers.

Mr. Mason had no objection to the resolution.

Mr. Gwin moved to lay the resolution on the table. Lost—yeas 9 nays 31.

Mr. Borland pronounced a glowing eulogy upon Mr. Cass.

Mr. Hale thought the theory of the Constitution, in respect to the organization of the Senate, was forgotten. It was intended that the Senate should be a grave and deliberative body, and for that reason no man was to be allowed to be a member of it till he had reached the age of 30 years. The House was set apart for those young men as an arena for making speeches, to have an effect on the country. He felt as kindly towards the Senator from Michigan as any one, but he would not express his feelings, because he thought the Senator had received as much from the Senator from Arkansas as he could conveniently digest in a day. The Senator from Arkansas prefaced his remarks by stating that he would not strike a vanquished man, nor dig a corpse from its grave, and then pitched pell mell into an attack on the Whig party. From this it was to be supposed the Whig party was neither dead nor vanquished. Three years ago certain statesmen asserted that the Union was in danger, and to preserve it made great personal sacrifices. It was now generally asserted that our peaceful relations with the world are to be disturbed; he candidly believed there was no more danger of a war than of a dissolution of the Union three years ago. He was opposed to all these resolutions, but consoled himself with the reflection that all the ferocious things which are intended entirely in a Pickwickian sense, though there was danger that the Senate would not act up with the dignity of Mr. Pickwick in the carrying out of alarms of a war with Great Britain. He saw by the last news from England that while we were gravely talking, with long faces, upon the probability of war, they have been in Liverpool giving a banquet to our Minister. At that banquet they toasted the Queen and the President, and with patriotic forecast they went further and complimented the President who is to be. They then took up the guest, our Minister, and put it on to him about as thick as did the Senator from Arkansas this morning on the Senator from Michigan.—[Great laughter.] This showed the way they felt over there, and among the people of this country there was no excitement, there was no fear of any war. There was a greater tempest in the bosom of the Senator from California at this moment regarding his railroad bill than there was regarding foreign affairs; in his anxiety that Senator did what few others did, listened to him with impatience, [laughter,] but there was something contagious in this debate. The grave and deliberate Senator from Massachusetts, yesterday spoke, and before he sat said something which sounded warlike. The Senator from Georgia rose to counsel peace, and declared war before he sat down. Fearing he might do something similar, he would say no more, but urge the Senate to go to business on some practical legislation.

Mr. Underwood said the Whig party were not in such a miserable condition as the Senator from Arkansas supposed. He read several statements of the votes at the recent election, to show that Mr. Pierce's vote was not, in the States north of the Potomac, a majority of the votes cast.

The question was taken on the motion to postpone the resolution till the 4th of March, and decided in the negative.

Yeas, 17—Bell, Davis, Dawson, Fish, Geyer, Hale, Mangum, Miller, Morton, Seward, Smith, Spruance, Wade and Weller.

Nays, 29.—The resolution was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Badger, the Senate took up and passed the bill amending the existing laws of the District of Columbia regulating arrests on mesne process.

Mr. Cass's joint resolution re-affirming the Monroe doctrine, was taken up, and Mr. Hale offered the following amendment.

And be it further resolved, That while the United States in like manner disclaim any designs upon Canada inconsistent with the laws of nations, and with their duties to Great Britain, they consider it due to the vast importance of the subject, to make known, in this solemn manner, that they should view all efforts on the part of any other power to procure possession, whether peacably or forcibly, of that province, which, as a naval or military position, must, under circumstances easy to be foreseen, become dangerous to their northern boundary and to the lakes, as unfriendly acts directed against them, to be resisted by all the means in their power.

The resolution was then postponed till Thursday.

Australia in the Ascendent.—The Boston Post of Friday, contains advertisements of seven ships for California, and of fourteen for Australia.

Accident.—A child, son of Mr. Wm. H. Sanders of Dover, aged about two years, fell into a pail of hot water on Monday last, and was severely scalded upon its side and bowels. The mother with a commendable presence of mind, immediately applied some flour, to the parts burned, which greatly ameliorated the condition of the little sufferer, until surgical aid could be procured.—Dover Gaz.

LOCAL.

"THERE GO THE SHIPS."

Capt. John S. Thompson, light-keeper at Boon Island, reports that 2860 sail of vessels were counted, which passed in sight from that island, between sunrise and sunset, during the months of October, November and December last, exclusive of fishermen. This report, of course, does nos include vessels which passed in foggy or stormy weather, when they could not be counted. A greater number undoubtedly passed during the nights, which were longer than the days; so that 6500 sail of vessels would not be an unreasonable estimate for the whole number of vessels which passed within a short distance of that island during the past three months.

FREE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTIONS.

The Councillor Convention for Rockingham District, met at Exeter on Friday, and nominated John Dow of Epping for Councillor.

The County Convention also met on the same day, at the same place, and made the following nominations:

W. W. Hills, Plaistow, County Register.

T. S. Robinson, Brentwood, Treasurer.

Rev. David Millard, formerly of this city, will preach at the Pleasant Street Church to-morrow.

Lectures on Palestine.—It will be perceived, on reference to our advertising columns, that Prof. Millard, who has travelled in the Holy Land, is to lecture in the Temple two evenings next week, on Palestine; and that he will exhibit Panoramic Views of scenery, illustrative of his lectures.

Gold Fish.—These pretty ornaments to the centre table, are very liable to freeze up this cold weather. Should any one find them in the morning motionless, imbedded in ice, it will only be necessary to carefully break the ice, put the fish in cold water, and they will soon shew signs of life, apparently experiencing no ill effects from their freezing.

Temperance Convention.—A State Temperance Convention, having special reference to the Maine Law, is notified for Thursday, Feb. 3, at 10 o'clock, at the Depot Hall in Concord.

Metallic Ladders.—We saw at the office of J. P. Bartlett, Esq. the other day, a most excellent and economical contrivance, combining all the advantages of a ladder and lightning conductor. It can be extended from the ridgepole of a building to the ground,—can be easily and safely ascended, and at the top has lightning points. Coming near the side of the building, it presents a much neater appearance than the wood ladder, besides being more durable. As the price is only twenty cents per foot, it is worth the attention of those in want of either ladders or lightning conductors.

THE RAZEE.

The old frigate Constitution, 33 guns, is now in dock at Gosport Navy Yard, being razeed and made a corvette of.

So says the Telegraph, and so say the papers. "But is it true? The Constitution used to be rated a 44 gun frigate, but actually mounted something more than 50. The vessel to be razeed must be the Constellation, of 38 guns.

The Portland Advertiser says:

"Old Ironsides" is not to be cut down or cut up, and I hope will yet do much good service. She has been recently put in commission at New York, and will carry the flag of Commodore Mayo to the coast of Africa.—The Constitution is a 50 gun frigate, though commonly styled a 44.

The frigate to be razeed is the "Constellation," known in our naval history for her successful combats with the French frigates Insurgent and Vengeance, and for which she was honored by the British government with the presentation of an entire battery of 18 pounders.

She is to be razeed like the Macedonian, and will mount twenty 84 pounders on her main or gun deck, and two circle guns of heavy calibre on her upper or spar deck.

Edward Everett is nominated by the whigs in the legislature of Massachusetts, as their candidate for Senator to Congress, vice "honest John Davis."

☞ At the close of a good article on Banks in Massachusetts, the Newburyport Herald says:

"Our hope is that the paper currency of the country will be kept down for a few years, until the community are able to perceive and understand what effect the great increase of gold will have upon the prices and the trade of the world."

This may be good advice; we think it is so; but it is a vain hope;—for the "fast" financiers are about as reckless in their driving as the fast politicians. We have much gold—we shall have much paper.

Fatal Railroad Accident.—Thursday morning, a man named Cotton, in the employ of the Eastern Railroad Co., while in the act of shackling two cars together at the depot in East Boston, was jammed between the buntters, and so seriously injured that he died the same night. The deceased leaves a wife and six children. Coroner Rice attended to the case.

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE
IN FRAMINGHAM, MASS.
THE house heretofore known as the FRAMINGHAM HOTEL, situated in Framingham Centre, Mass., having been put in complete and thorough repair throughout, is now offered for sale. The main house is 100 feet on the street, 60 feet of which has a piazza, and contains 30 rooms, including a large hall; has a large and dry cellar, Ice House, and the best of water. The whole premises have been occupied the past year as a private residence, during which time many improvements have been made in and about the house and grounds, the front yard having been enclosed, set with large trees, and grassed. The house is well calculated for a genteel Boarding House or Hotel, for which it is much wanted; and the Board of Education have decided to remove the State Normal School, now located at West Newton, to Framingham, the site for which is only a few minutes' walk from the premises, makes this property particularly desirable for this purpose, as it will secure, in connection with boarders from the city, a profitable business the year round.

It is also desirable as a private residence, having every convenience as such, and being situated in close proximity to the Common, several Churches, High School, (free,) and only a few minutes' walk from the depot. The size of the House, to any one having a large family, would not be objectionable, as the hall and other parts could be fitted up in a manner which would add much to the convenience and comfort of a residence in the country; or a part of it could be so used, and the remainder let, without inconvenience. To persons, therefore, in pursuit of property for either of the above purposes, or for investment, an opportunity offers rarely to be met with. Terms of sale will be liberal, and possession given at any time.

For further information, apply by letter or otherwise, to L. WIGHT, Framingham, or in Boston to J. K. PORTER & CO., 27 Water st.

Lectures on Palestine.
HIGHLY INTELLECTUAL AND INTERESTING.
PROFESSOR MILLARD,
Author of "Travels in Egypt," "Arabia Petræa and the Holy Land;" will lecture at the TEMPLE,
ON MONDAY & WEDNESDAY EVE'GS,
Jan. 31st, and Feb. 2d, on
PALESTINE, OR THE HOLY LAND.
HE will describe the face of the country, its climate, soil, productions, its present condition, inhabitants, government, manners, customs, mode of traveling, &c. He will also present
Splendid Panoramic Views
—Of the most interesting scenery in Palestine.—Among these will be views of Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Hebron, Joppa, Acco, Nazareth, Tiberias, Demascus, Ruins of Tyre, Ruins of Samaria, Mt. Carmel, Mt. Lebanon, with cities and villages on its sides, &c., &c.

These views are most perfect and beautiful, prepared expressly by his direction. Each View covers a space of 5 feet in diameter. Having visited the country and places he will describe, he is enabled to speak of things as they are, and present the most interesting facts from his own personal observation.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

TWO WEEKS LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

Great inundations, and Sufferings in the Mines.

San Francisco, Jan. 1.—The present winter is conceded to be the most severe one experienced in this country since it has been populated by Americans. During the last fortnight it has been raining and snowing continually in the mountains and valleys, and we are daily in the receipt of accounts of distress and suffering in all parts of the State. The waters have been unusually high, and communications through the mining regions have been almost entirely cut off, either by the snow or overflowing streams. The rivers have been swelled to such an extent as to inundate all the low lands, causing an immense damage, and destroying stock and agricultural products.

The whole country between Tehama and Sacramento City was entirely under water, whilst Marysville was partly inundated, and, though Sacramento was well protected by a levee, the lower portions were submerged.—The waters at the present time have subsided, although the rains still continue. On the mountain streams the loss of mining implements has been great, and all work for the present is suspended. Bridges have been swept away, and ferries destroyed, and some few lives lost. The southern portion of the mining district has suffered equally with the northern.

The great scarcity of provisions and the consequent high price has occasioned much suffering and distress, and it is feared that many will actually die from starvation.—Many miners subsist entirely on beef and potatoes, whilst in other portions of the mines there are hundreds who have nothing at all but barley and potatoes.

In portions of Yuba and Sierra counties, the snow was already ten feet deep, and still falling, and the miners actually reduced to absolute want. In one place the miners held a meeting and offered a trader to sell what flour he had on hand at 45 cents per pound, and all who were able to leave did so, thus leaving the provisions for those who were unable to find their way through the snow to the valleys. In some places cabins are entirely crushed, cutting off the last chance of protection.

The accounts received may be greatly exaggerated, nevertheless there is much suffering and distress, and it is not impossible that some may perish by starvation.

DIAMOND CUT DIAMOND.

We have not seen for a long time, a better way to abate one nuisance by creating another, than is described by a lively writer in the Lowell News, who dates his letter from Nashua, N. H., and mentions that a man from Lowell, whom we will call Mr. Hardcastle, has been to Nashua and contracted to move a building.

"He has thus far succeeded in getting the good people pretty generally by the ears. A building known as the "Pearson's block," was bought upon speculation by a Doctor who thought bleeding the people in the regular routine of his business, was rather too slow a way to live, and the aforesaid H. engaged to move it. Well, the house was too big or the street too narrow, or the trees were where they had no business to grow, so down came the trees, and up rose the anger of the people, and also that of the contractor. A beautiful row of trees were situated just in the path of the moving building. The contractor said they should come down, and the people said they shouldn't. Mobs assembled every night, and several incendiary attempts were made to fire the building. The upshot was, the selectmen declared it a nuisance, and it was sold at auction. That finished the first portion. A week or two since, the 2d portion of the building started and got as far as Cross street, the people of which, still smarting under the remembrance of their former affliction, declined having any more such company. An injunction was applied for to restrain the angry passions of Cross street people, but denied. So it was determined to go straight ahead at any rate, but just as the ascent of the street was fairly commenced, down started another house from the top of the street, the people crying out lustily, "keep to the right as the law directs." No. 1 couldn't run over No. 2, and neither would turn out; so they ran into one another, and brought all things "up a standing." Angry words followed, then come blows neither few nor light: police officers were in demand, and so was adhesive plaster. Small boys huzzaed, and big ones helped on the rumpus. The sheriff dispersed the crowd.—Squire Moore declared the whole thing a nuisance—ordered the selectmen to remove both buildings. Thus ended the scene. There is a smart chance for the lawyers to put a little money in their pockets in settling the affair.

FUGITIVE SLAVE CASE.—A hearing was had before Commissioner Ingraham, in Philadelphia, on Saturday, in the case of a young colored man named Charles Wesley, aged about 20, alleged to be a fugitive from labor in Delaware. He was arrested at the Inclined Plane, on the North side of the Schuylkill. Gideon E. Rothwell claims that he owes service to him until he is 28 years of age. After hearing the evidence on the side of the claimant, the Commissioner adjourned the case until next Friday, in order to give Wesley an opportunity to send for his friends in New Jersey.—Boston Daily Advertiser.

We see it stated that Eliza Greenfield, the "Black Swan," has had several offers to go to Europe. She is at present in Buffalo, and has improved her style of singing very much.

James Wade, proprietor of the "Queen Hotel," advertises "that there may be had at his bar all kinds of choice liquors," and that he "exchanges good cattle and horses for poor ones."

I have been exceedingly pleased with Mr. W. B. ROSS'S Portable Bed Chairs. The ease with which they can be put upon any bed, and raised or lowered when so placed, seemed to render them far superior to any article of the kind I have ever before seen. GILMAN DAVIES, M.D."

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS
AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.
PATENT METALLIC
LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.
THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.
The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co., of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.
☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.

THE ROGER WILLIAMS
COOKING STOVE.
FOR COAL OR WOOD.
THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the merits of this most beautifully modeled pattern; equally adapted for coal or wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the
Most Complete and Efficient
Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity. It is an elegant model, with fine smooth Providence castings, fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven, (by far the most important part of a cooking stove,) in point of capacity, and in regard to its operation, is unsurpassed by that of any other stove now in the market, it being lined with fire-brick to retain and equalize the heat, and provided with valves for the escape of steam, &c. arising from the roasting of meats—rendering it in this respect superior to the old fashioned but universally admired Tin Kitchen.
The broiling apparatus is constructed on an entirely new and original plan, and will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room. The sliding hearth is an improvement not to be found in any other stove.
The popularity of this over all other stoves now in the market, may be inferred from the fact that since its first introduction the last season, over THREE THOUSAND have been put into successful operation in New England and New York City.
Every stove is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser or the money refunded.
Each stove is warranted not to crack for twelve months from date of purchase. It is believed that this stove combines all the improvements that skill can invent, and is by far the most perfect cooking stove ever sold in Portsmouth. And though its price is higher than any other stove offered in this market of late, it is without question the cheapest in the end. All intending to purchase are respectfully invited to give this an examination before purchasing elsewhere.
Also, a variety of cheap Cook, Parlor, and Office Stoves, which are offered low.

PASSED NOVEMBER SESSION, 1852.

AN ACT to constitute the town of Madison.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That all that portion of the town of Eaton, in the county of Carroll lying westerly and southerly of a line commencing at the northwest corner of Samuel Stark's Location, so called, in the town of Conway, in said county, being also the northeast corner of McNeil's Location, so called, in said town of Eaton, and thence running southerly by the westerly line of said Samuel Stark's Location to the southwesterly corner of said Samuel Stark's Location, thence running easterly by the southerly line of said Samuel Stark's Location one hundred and sixty rods, to a stake and stones, thence running southerly over the summits of the Glines and Lyman mountains, so called, to the range line between lots No. 52 and 55 in the south division of lots in said town of Eaton, thence southerly on said range line to the southwest corner of lot No. 50, in the south division of lots in the said town of Eaton, thence easterly by the south line of said lot No. 50, to the southeast corner of said lot No. 50, thence southerly by the westerly lines of lots Nos. 21, 22, 23 and 24, in the south division of lots in said town of Eaton, to the division line between said town of Eaton and the town of Freedom, in said county, be and the same is hereby severed from the said town of Eaton, and make a body politic and corporate by the name of Madison.

Sec. 2. All real and personal property, including all debts, claims and demands of every kind now owned by and due to the town of Eaton, all school and other funds owned by said town, and the public money deposited with said town of Eaton, and the proportion of the literary fund which may be payable to said town, shall be divided between said towns in such proportions as said towns may agree; and if said towns cannot agree upon the division of any such property, Jonathan T. Chase of Conway, Elias Rice of Freedom, and Eliphalet Cloutman of Conway, upon the request of either town, may make division of the same. When in their opinion any of said property cannot be divided without loss or detriment, they may assign the whole or any part thereof to the town wherein it lies, and may order said town to pay over such sums of money as in their opinion is equitable, to the other town, and may fix the time of payment.

Sec. 3. All the taxes assessed since March last upon the polls and estates of those residing within the limits of Madison, and all non-resident taxes assessed within any school district within said Madison, and upon all corporate property within said limits, shall be collected by the collector to whom the same has been committed for that purpose, and after deducting therefrom the State and county taxes and such sums as have been expended for schools and the repair of roads within the limits of said Madison, shall be paid by him over to the town of Madison in the same manner in which he is directed to pay over the same to said Eaton. And the Treasurer of said Madison, when chosen and qualified, shall have the same power to issue an extent against such collector for neglect to comply with the provisions of this act that he would have if such collector had been chosen by said town of Madison.

Sec. 4. All debts and liabilities heretofore incurred by said town of Eaton, and all sums which may be recovered on any process against said town, or to which said town is a party in any court, and the municipal expenses of said town since the 9th of March last, shall be paid by said town in the same proportions in which the property is divided.

Sec. 5. All paupers who have a settlement in and are now supported by said Eaton, shall be supported by said towns of Eaton and Madison in such way and manner, and such of said towns shall contribute thereto in such proportions as said towns may agree. And when either of said towns shall request, said paupers shall be divided between said towns as said towns may agree; or in case they cannot agree, as the referees hereinbefore mentioned shall determine.

Sec. 6. In all assessments of State and county taxes, until the legislature shall otherwise order, the said towns shall pay that portion of every thousand dollars which may be ordered against the town of Eaton as is now is, in such proportions as may be determined, in the same way and manner as is hereinbefore provided for the division of property and funds between said towns, and the State and county treasurers shall issue their respective warrants accordingly.

Sec. 7. George Merrow, James Mooney, and Mark P. Blaisdell, or any two of them, may call the first meeting of said town of Madison, by posting up a warrant for that purpose, as the law directs, at which meeting either of said persons may preside until a moderator be chosen; and at such meeting all necessary town officers may be chosen.

Sec. 8. The town of Madison shall form a part of Councillor district numbered two, and of Senatorial district numbered six, and the militia thereof shall belong to the thirty-sixth regiment.

Sec. 9. Any and all school districts in the town of Eaton, as it now is, which may be divided by the boundary line hereinbefore mentioned between said towns, shall remain and continue as they now are; and moneys for the same shall be raised and assessed and paid over in the same way and manner as is provided by law in cases of districts formed by the union of inhabitants of neighboring towns.

Sec. 10. This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved, Dec. 17, 1852.

AN ACT to equalize and establish the salaries of the judges and registers of Probate in this State.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That from the 1st day of January, A. D., 1853, the salaries of the judges and registers of probate in the several counties shall be annually as follows:—

Of the judge of the county of Rockingham, four hundred and twelve dollars; of the register of said county, five hundred and fifty dollars;

Of the judge of the county of Strafford, two hundred and twenty-five dollars; of the register of said county, three hundred dollars;

Of the judge of the county of Belknap, one hundred and forty-two dollars; of the register of said county, one hundred and eighty-three dollars;

Of the judge of the county of Carroll, one hundred and fifty dollars; of the register of said county, two hundred dollars;

Of the judge of the county of Merrimack, three hundred dollars; of the register of said county, four hundred dollars;

Of the judge of the county of Hillsborough, four hundred and twenty-five dollars; of the register of said county, five hundred and seventy-five dollars;

Of the judge of the county of Cheshire, two hundred and twenty-five dollars; of the register of said county, three hundred dollars;

Of the judge of the county of Sullivan, one hundred and seventy-five dollars; of the register of said county, two hundred and twenty-five dollars;

Of the judge of the county of Grafton, three hundred dollars; of the register of said county, four hundred dollars;

Of the judge of the county of Coos, one hundred and ten dollars; of the register of said county, one hundred and thirty-five dollars;

Sec. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed.

Approved, Jan. 5, 1853.

AN ACT in amendment of sec. sixteen, chap. two hundred and twenty-nine, R. S.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That the jailers shall be entitled to board of a prisoner, each week, (to) one dollar and seventy-five cents.

Sec. 2 All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act, are hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved, Dec. 29, 1852.

AN ACT to disannex Bartlett, Jackson and Hart's Location from Coos county and annex the said towns and location to Carroll county.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That the towns of Bartlett and Jackson, and Hart's Location, in the county of Coos, be and they are hereby disannexed from said county and annexed to the county of Carroll.

Sec. 2. All suits now commenced by or against any person in said towns or location, and made returnable to the court of common pleas for the county of Coos, shall be returnable to said court for said county, in the same way and manner as if this act had not been passed.

Sec. 3. That said towns and location shall pay their proportion of the present debt of Coos county, and in case of disagreement in relation to said proportion, D. C. Churchill of Lyme, Oscar F. Fowler of Bristol, and Samuel Swasey of Haverhill, shall be a board of referees to decide thereupon, and shall settle said proportion upon the request of either party.

Sec. 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved, Jan. 5, 1853.

AN ACT in amendment of sec. two, chap. forty-two, of the Revised Statutes.

Section 1. Be it enacted, &c., That whenever it shall be made to appear to the selectmen that several persons are owners of several interests in the same real estate, or that one person is the owner of land and another is the owner of any building, timber or wood standing thereon, or ores or minerals therein, they shall, upon request, appraise such several interests and assess the same to the several owners thereof separately.

Sec. 2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act be, and the same are, hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved, Dec. 29, 1852.

AN ACT in amendment of chapter one hundred and thirty-eight of the Revised Statutes.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted, &c., That whenever the logs or timber mentioned in section fifth of said chapter shall not be removed within the seven months mentioned in said section, the owner of the land may recover his damages and expenses in an action on the case, against the owner of such logs or timber, or any other person putting the same into the river.

Sec. 2. If such damages and expenses shall have been previously assessed, as provided in section third of said chapter, such assessment shall be conclusive as to the amount of such damages and expenses.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved, Jan. 5, 1853.

AN ACT providing for the inspection of flour.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted, &c., That the Governor, with the advice of Council, may appoint in any city or town in this state, where the same shall be deemed necessary, one or more inspectors of flour, to continue in office five years, unless sooner removed by address of the legislature.

Sec. 2. Every cask of wheat flour shall be branded as follows:—If of a very superior quality, with the words "Extra Superfine," If of a superior quality, with the words "Fancy," If of a quality now branded as superfine, with the word "Superfine," If of a fourth quality, with the word "Fine."

Sec. 3. When flour has been put up in suitable casks and branded according to the provisions of the preceding section, application may be made to an inspector of flour to inspect the same, and it shall be his duty to examine and determine the quality of the same, to ascertain the weight of all casks he may suspect of being falsely bared, to alter and correct the brands in all cases when in his opinion they do not designate the real quality of the flour, to weigh such casks as he shall suspect do not contain the full weight of one hundred and ninety-six pounds of flour to the barrel, and if they do not contain the full weight, to brand them with the word "Light," to brand all casks containing flour so damaged as not to be fit for use with the word "Bad," and on all casks properly put up and branded agreeably to the provisions of this act, to brand in a legible manner on the heads thereof the initials of his christian name and his surname at full length, together with the name of the city or town where the inspection has been made.

Sec. 4. Every person knowingly offering for sale any cask of flour upon which the tare shall be undermarked, or in which there shall be a less quantity of flour than is branded thereon, or which shall purport to have been legally inspected, and shall not have been so inspected, shall forfeit $5 for every cask so undermarked, deficient, or falsely purporting to have been legally inspected, one half to the use of the person who shall be injured and prosecute for the same, and the other half for the use of the county where the prosecution shall be had.

Sec. 5. Every person who shall alter or counterfeit any brand marks made under the provisions of this act, or who shall put any flour into an empty cask branded by an inspector, and offer the same for sale in such cask as duly inspected flour, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred dollars for every cask the brands of which shall be so altered or counterfeited, and five dollars for every cask so put into an empty cask branded by an inspector and offered for sale as aforesaid.

Sec. 6. Every person who shall knowingly offer for sale as good wheat flour, any flour which shall be found to contain a mixture of Indian meal, or any other mixture, or any unsound flour, shall forfeit for each cask the sum of five dollars.

Sec. 7. No inspector of flour shall be in any manner connected in business or trade with any flour manufacturer, or flour merchant, or act as agent for any such manufacturer or merchant, or any other person in the purchase or sale of flour, under penalty of five hundred dollars and the forfeiture of his office, and incapacity forever thereafter of holding the same.

Sec. 8. Every inspector of flour appointed under this act, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall be sworn to the faithful discharge thereof, a certificate of which oath shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State.

Sec. 9. Every inspector of flour shall be entitled to receive, for inspecting, branding and plugging every barrel and half barrel of flour, the sum of one cent.

Sec. 10. This act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved, Jan. 8, 1853.

AN ACT in addition to chapter thirty-nine of the Revised Statutes, relating to persons and property liable to taxation.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted, &c., That whenever any railroad corporation in this state shall neglect to pay the treasurer of the state, on or before the first Wednesday of September, annually, all taxes annually assessed on them by law, as provided by the third section of chapter thirty-four of the laws of this state, approved July first, one thousand eight hundred and forty-three, it shall be the duty of the treasurer of the state to issue an extent for all sums which shall remain unpaid after said day; and the same may be levied upon the property of such corporation.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved, Dec. 17, 1852.

PORTSMOUTH:
MONDAY, JANUARY 31, 1853.

JUDICIAL OATHS.

LAMENTABLE IGNORANCE.—An Irish lad, about 14 years of age, was brought into the Common Pleas Court a day or two since as a witness. He appeared completely ignorant of the nature of an oath or of the fundamental principles of morality and religion. When asked who made him, he did not know, and he seemed totally unconscious of the existence of a Supreme Being, except as he had heard of him in curses and oaths. Of Heaven, Eternity, or a future state he knew little or nothing, and the utmost endeavors of the Judge to sound him upon these points, could not disclose that he had any idea of his duty to God, or of the solemnity of an oath, any more than any other promise that he might keep or break as he saw fit. He was considered incompetent as a witness. Such instances seem startling when brought to light, but they are by no means uncommon in our city. —Boston Journal.

The boy's ignorance was deplorable—and not the less so because it is common. But he ought to have been affirmed—and he could easily have been made to understand that boys who told lies in Court would go to the State's Prison. This is exactly what the Quaker means, when he affirms a statement, "under the pains and penalties of perjury." There is nothing in the account which intimates that this ignorant boy could not or would not have told the truth.

It is certain that the regulations and usages of our civil and criminal courts require a great deal of most useless swearing—and if we ever happened among the law makers, we would move to reform as much of it as possible,—by allowing all to affirm (under the usual penalties) who chose so to do,—and by ordering all to do so, who should be by the Court adjudged incompetent to take the usual oaths.

BISHOP IVES.

The Paris Univers says a general subject of conversation at Rome, is the recent conversion to the Catholic faith of Dr. Ives, the Anglican bishop of Carolina, in the United States. Dr. Ives had for a long time embraced Puseyite opinions, and felt a strong sympathy for the Catholic religion, which had subjected him to much remonstrance.

Since he has been at Rome he has put himself in relation with Monseigneur Gill, the Catholic Bishop of Virginia, U. S., and addressed himself to Monseigneur Talbot, the private Cameriere of the Pope, in order to make his solemn abjuration and publicly profess catholicism. This ceremony took place on the 26th of December. The Pope in person administered the sacrament to the convert.

Dr. Ives in abandoning the Episcopal Church of the United States has given up a very advantageous posit on. His wife, it is said, at first wholly opposed his intention, but now begins to defend him against the remarks of the Protestant Ministers, who accompanied the Bishop to Rome.

Every reader will have his own opinion of the bishop's wisdom or folly in the avowal of his changed views. But the purity, or at all events the disinterestedness of the man, is plainly seen in his giving up the honorable office of a Bishop in the Protestant Episcopal, to become a mere nobody in the Catholic Church. As a married man, he cannot be a catholic priest of any degree. But, is he sane?

ARRIVAL OF A VESSEL FROM THE HOLY LAND.—The bark Mareitta, Captain Capureo, arrived here a few days ago, from Malta. She belongs to Jerusalem, and is owned by one of the inhabitants of the Holy City. This is the only vessel that has ever entered New York harbor, belonging to Jerusalem, and is therefore a great curio-ity to historians and antiquarians. Ship builders will find her model a great curiosity when compared with the superb sailing craft of this country. Her Captain is a Maltese, as are also several of her crew. Having no Consul in this city, the Captain delivered his papers to the British Consul, he himself being an English subject, and that government being represented at Jerusalem by a Bishop of the established church. —N. Y. Herald.

We don't exact'y understand how a bark belongs to Jerusalem, merely because her owner lives there. There is a vessel belonging to this port, (at least we think so, for she is registered here,) whose owner lives at Francestown, in the interior. She never hails from Francestown, we suppose. Perhaps the bark Mareitta may belong to Joppa, or as it is now called, Jaffa, which is a port on the Mediterranean. But there is no navigable water for a ship near Jerusalem; and to speak of a vessel as belonging there, sounds to us like hailing a ship from the White Mountains.

Since the above was in type, the Herald has published the register at length. It is a religious document, and is so framed as to make the vessel a Jerusalemite bark.

The whigs of the third district in New Hampshire have nominated Hon. Jared Perkins, free soil, for re-election to Congress. The free soilers will also nominate him no doubt.—Boston Post.

Gen. Scott and his wife, and Gen. Pierce and wife, have been made life members of the Parent Missionary Society of Washington, by contributions made in a Methodist Church in that city.

☞ Gen. Pierce and his Secretary, Sidney Webster, arrived in New York city on Friday evening.

PALMERSTON'S MODE OF PRESERVING CUBA TO SPAIN.—In a correspondence recently published between Lord Palmerston and Lord Howden, British Minister to Spain, the former instructs the minister to recommend to the government of Spain to follow the example set them by New Grenada, in declaring the total abolition of slavery, so that it shall not fall into the hands of the United States He says to Howden:

"I have to instruct your lordship to observe to M. de Miraflores, that the slaves of Cuba form a large portion, and by no means an unimportant one, of the population of Cuba, and any steps taken to provide for their emancipation, would, therefore, as far as the black population is concerned, be quite in unison with the recommendation made by Her Majesty's government, that measures should be adopted for contenting the people of Cuba, with a view to secure the connection between that Island and the Spanish crown; and it must be evident that, if the negro population of Cuba were rendered free, that fact would create a powerful element of resistance to any scheme for annexing Cuba to the United States, where slavery now exists."

EXECUTIONS IN NEW YORK.—Saul and Howlett, the young men who were condemned for the murder of Charles Baxter, the ship keeper of the ship Thomas Watson, were hung on Friday in the prison yard. Howlett was attended by three Roman Catholic clergymen, and Saul by Rev. Mr. Evans, of St. George's Episcopal Church. The Rev. Mr. Spear spent the night with the latter. There was a large crowd present, and the excitement and anxiety to witness the spectacle were intense. Howlett was about 19 years old, Saul about 20. The latter at the gallows solemnly persisted in his innocence of all crime, excepting the one for which he was suffering.

MARRYING BY DOUBLE ENTRY.—Last week we gave an account of a couple of progressive lovers in Gardiner, Me., who were unwilling to be married by priests or rulers, but married themselves by putting their own advertisement into the newspapers, where we are happy to say, it is having a great run.

But then, as Mrs. Partington says, it won't do, "just for the speech of people." So these progressives found it, and got married according to law. The Gardiner Transcript of Jan. 22, has the following marriage:

"In this city, on Thursday morning last, by Ezekiel Waterhouse, Esq., Benj. F. Shaw to Miss Harriet N. Howard, both of this city."

Mr. Shaw accompanies this announcement with a communication, commencing as follows:

"The manner in which we were married, as announced in the last Transcript, caused a degree of excitement rarely witnessed, and which has not yet wholly subsided.

A real marriage in heaven, under sanctions of nature's laws alone, seems to have been something entirely new and beyond the comprehension of most of our citizens; who considered it a gross outrage upon society, and urged that we should be legally married or suffer the penalties of the law.

We withstood arguments without number, until things assumed a very serious aspect, and we could see "the law" hovering o'er us like a famished vulture, ready to strike into us his gory talons, when we surrendered at discretion, repaired to the house of Mr. Ezekiel Waterhouse, who performed the ceremonies specified by law, in a very brief, business like manner."

The remainder is occupied in "defining the position" of the newly married pair on the subject of the marriage relations, closing with a hope that there is "a good time coming,"

"When affairs of heart's purest affection
Will not be subject to legislation."

PUMPKIN SEEDS POISON TO FOWLS.—A correspondent of the Pittsfield Culturist says that having saved more pumpkin seeds than he found market for, he put a quantity into his cauldron kettle with sweet apples and potatoes, boiled and mashed up with meal, particularly for hogs, but when fed out his fowls had a share, and the result was the death of thirty or forty ducks, turkies, and chickens.—They have died also from eating the seeds left where he had fed pumpkins to his cows. We have never known fowls to eat them, and join the Culturist in asking further facts of those who may know any throwing light on this subject.

We do not believe there is any thing noxious to fowls in the pumpkin seed, but there doubtless was in the mixture above mentioned. Fowls will pick the seeds from pumpkins, squashes, melons and cucumbers. They have done so repeatedly for us—they were not poisoned, however, but lived and grew fat.

HEALTH OF THE VICE-PRESIDENT ELECT.—There are conflicting telegraphic reports respecting the health of the Hon. William R. King. Probability, however, is on the side of the following:

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 25.

The Vice President arrived in Key West on the 22d inst. He wished me, on my arrival here, to telegraph you, to say that he was no better than when he left. He feels that there is no hope of recovery. Mr. King will remain in Key West. L. C. LEVIN.

To Honorables D. R. Atchinson, Jeremiah Clemens, R. M. T. Hunter, S. R. Mallory, Washington.

The scarlet fever is quite prevalent in Boston, and has proved fatal to children in many cases. It commenced among the foreign population, but is now spreding to children of American birth. It is the only prevailing epidemic in the city.

LOCAL.

FATAL AFFRAY.

On Saturday evening, about half past seven o'clock, a party of soldiers who were in the suttler's shop at Fort Constitution, in New Castle, got into a dispute, in the course of which a private named Nelson, was mortally wounded by a non-commissioned officer named Barr. As near as we can learn, they were both intoxicated, and Nelson when in that state being quarrelsome, insulted Barr, upon which Barr drew a dirk or knife and struck Nelson in the left breast, in the place where the heart is nearest to the ribs, and the wound was almost instantly fatal. When he felt the blow he exclaimed, "I am stabbed!" and as he fell he received another stab in the lower part of the back. He was taken to the Hospital, and died in about ten minutes after receiving the wound.

A post mortem examination was made on Sunday afternoon, and it was found that the right ventricle of the heart had been penetrated, so the man must have almost instantly died after being struck. The second wound in the back, was probably given immediately after the first, and while the man was falling.

A coroner's inquest, we understand, is to be held on the body to-day, and probably a reward offered for Barr, who took flight immediately after he became aware of the serious result of the affray.

Nelson, the man killed, is the person who stabbed a boy in this city some weeks since.

BLAKE'S NUT CRACKER.

From cracking jokes to cracking walnuts, the transition is quite easy and natural. So the neighbors think, and therefore Raynes & Neil, hardware dealers, have sent us a pair of nut crackers, and Dodge & Co. grocers, sent in the nuts to crack therewith. They cracked nicely while the nuts lasted; but when these were all gone, there stood the crackers with their jaws open, like a stump orator who had but one idea and lost that. They can crack nuts to a charm; but they crack nothing else, not even your thumb and finger. They never shoot a nut out sideways to strike like a bullet, nor do they scatter the shells over the floor.

Directions.—Lay a Daily Chronicle open on the table; set on a bowl of walnuts, and the nut cracker; seat yourself in a chair, and crack away "with perfect impunity and great boldness." When you have achieved a victory over the nuts, toss the shells into the fire, and go about your business as if nothing had happened.

LECTURES ON PALESTINE—at the Temple, this evening—by Rev. Prof. Millard. See advertisement.

A ROGUE IN GRAIN.—Late London papers tell us that much astonishment was created in the London Corn Market, by the purchase on the Continent, of many cargoes of grain that were imported and sold at a price less than the cost. It now transpires that a grain merchant named Pric, had been engaged in forging to an incredible extent, and it is expected that the investigation into his affairs, will show that the cargoes purchased by him were forced into market at any sacrifice, to meet his forged engagements as they fell due. Being discovered at last, he fled, but was taken and is now in custody.

By Prie's forgeries the respectable house of Collman & Stolterfoht have been obliged to declare themselves bankrupt with liabilities amounting to £30,000. Two other houses have failed, with liabilites of £9000 and £18,000. Collman & Stolterfoht transacted a large commission business with Germany and the United States, and it is feared that their failure may have proved serious to parties they have been connected with both in London and Liverpool as well as abroad.

MORMON MARRIAGE.—Elder Orson Pratt, who edits the "Seer," the Mormon organ at Washington, states that when one of the "saints" wishes to take a new wife, he must first consult "the president of the whole church, and through him obtain a revelation from God as to whether it would be pleasing in his sight." He must next obtain the consent of the parents of his intended; next that of the lady herself, and lastly of his previous wife. If either of these parties object he cannot get the new wife. When all parties agree, the bridegroom, accompanied by his wife and bride, appears before the elders. The wife stands at the left of her husband, and the bride at the left of the wife. The wife then, as an evidence that she consents, must take the right hand of the bride and place it in the left hand of her husband, the wife then takes her husband by her left hand as if preparing for a walk. The president elder then, "by virtue of his holy office," pronounces the parties husband and wife "for time and for all eternity."

FATAL RESULT.—Charles Cotton, who was injured at East Boston a few days since, while shackling a car, died on Thursday of his injuries. He was forty years of age, and leaves a wife and six children.

A boy who was suffering from bronchitis, was so badly injured by being pelted with snow by his schoolmates, in New York, that he died in a few hours.

On Christmas Eve, a lady in this city, after telling her child, a little girl three or four years of age, and in feeble health, all sorts of stories about Santa Claus, thoughtlessly rapped upon the fire-board, as a pretended signal of his appearance. The idea of seeing his venerable Saintship bodily, so frightened the child as to produce a serious illness, from which it has just recovered.—Springfield Republican.

The funniest of all funny things is, how Mexico, which is poor as a church mouse, contrives to carry on revolutions. In other countries the sinews of war are demanded. An exchange noticing the last revolution, says:—"We do not apprehend that Mexico will fall to pieces. It hangs so loosely together that the parts offer but little resistance to the hard knocks which they constantly receive; they only shake about, and like the pendulum of a clock, soon recover their position, and go on as before."

A FAT OFFICE.—The Journal of Commerce publishes a statement of the fees paid last year, to the counsel of the corporation of New York city, for his services in the opening of new streets and widening old ones. The amount was forty seven thousand five hundred dollars and sixty eight cents—a sum nearly double the salary of the President of the United States.

A ballet dancer at the National theatre in Washington, was greatly annoyed a few evenings since, by an impudent exquisite who had taken up a position near the footlights, where he stood eyeing her very closely through a double-barrelled opera glass. Watching her opportunity, she spun to that portion of the stage nearest him, and by a sudden movement of her petite foot, while executing a pirouette, sent his opera glass whirling far beyond his reach. The act brought down the house and the fellow's complacency together.

Mary Ann Atherton, sister of Hon. C. G. Atherton, died at Amherst, N. H., Wednesday morning, the 26th, of lung fever. It will be recollected that her father died of the same disease on the 8th inst. Hon. Charles G. Atherton is now the only remaining child.

ARRIVAL OF STEAMER UNITED STATES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The steamer United States, Capt. Berry, from Aspinwall 19th, and Kingston, Ja., 22nd inst., arrived at this port at 5 o'clock this morning. The Georgia was left at Kingston, to sail next day.

The steamer Oregon arrived at Panama 15th, and Notherner 16th, from San Francisco.

The Isthmus arrived at Acapulco 19th, in five days and two hours.

The steamer Cortez had also arrived at Acapulco, from the Isthmus, but in consequence of sickness on board, was not allowed to communicate with the shore.

The U. S. sloop of war Portsmouth was at Acapulco Jan 5, to sail in a few days for Panama.

The Isthmus spoke, Dec. 20th, lat 27 54, ship Mary Ann, of Fairhaven, 1400 bbls whale 200 do. sperm oil.

The health of Aspinwall was good. The roads were improving.

Panama is reported as being very healthy. The dry season had set in.

EXPULSION OF JESUITS.—An Ecuadorian national vessel arrived at Panama on the 4th January, with 32 Jesuits who had been expelled from Ecuador by order of the government. The authorities at Panama refused to allow them to land except under the surveillance of a guard, which was assented to. Next morning they started off to Cruces, on their way out of the country. Some excitement had been created at Panama by this affair.

The British mail steamer Bolivia, from Valparaiso Dec. 14th, and Callao 26th, arrived at Panama 3d January, with nearly $200,000 in specie.

NOVEL CASE OF SWINDLING.—The Boston Post states that a well dressed man called upon one of our large carpet dealers on Wednesday, and stated that he was the captain of a clipper ship just about to sail for California, and that he wanted to purchase carpeting to the amount of $4000 for a friend in San Francisco. He bought to the amount of $1000, and requested to have the goods sent to the ship, naming the wharf. The seller accompanied the goods, and found the purchaser, who invited him to inspect the ship. The dealer went back to his store perfectly satisfied. As soon as the dealer's back was turned, the goods were placed on a truck, taken to a railroad, and sent to New York; and the dealer yesterday found that he had been swindled, as the rascal had no connection at all with the ship.

The Boston Journal of Saturday evening says that the carpets have been recovered in New York, but not the $60 in money which the swindler borrowed under pretence of having "no money out of bank." The carpet operation was not the only one the cool-headed Captain Blanchard was engaged in. He bargained with a pump and block maker in Fulton street, for a lot of blocks for a new ship which he alleged was building for him at McKay's yard, East Boston. He obtained $15 of Mr. C. under the same pretence which he used to obtain the $60, but of course failed to pay the borrowed money or to call for his blocks. It is stated that he has also swindled other individuals of various amounts of money and merchandize.

SALE OF A FACTORY.—The Amesbury Manufacturing Co. has declared a dividend of 5 per cent. for the last year. The Directors, in accordance with a vote of the stockholders at their recent annual meeting have sold out their establishment to the Salisbury Manufacturing Company. The two united will be carried on under the management of John P. Derby, Esq. The price paid for the real estate and machinery was $100,000. The Amesbury Company have on hand goods finished and unfinished to the amount of $100,000, and about $50,000 in cash. The stockholders will receive by this sale about $1300 per share. The original cost of the shares was $1000.—Newburyport Herald.

SCARCITY OF SILVER CHANGE.—The Secretary of the Treasury in his report attributes the present premium which silver bears, or rather the difference in the relative value of gold and silver, to the unusual and increased supply of gold from California and Australia. Of the consequent scarcity of silver change, he says—"I see no remedy for this great existing evil but the adoption of the principle embraced in the bill which passed the Senate during the last session, making a new issue of silver coinage, of such reduced weight as will allow it to circulate with the gold coinage of established weight and fineness.

A young man engaged in keeping an eating house in Boston, has lost between $2000 and $3000 in a fashionable gambling saloon in Tremont street. This loss has embarrassed his business, and he has prosecuted the keeper to recover back his money. A deputy sheriff has attached the goods and fixtures of the owners of the gambling rooms.—Boston Post.

THE SEA SERPENT TURNED UP AGAIN.—The Savannah Republican learns from Captain Shaw, of the steamer William Gaston, which arrived there on the 15th inst., from Florida, that when he was going in over St. John's bar, near the outer buoy, on Wednesday afternoon previous, a large sea monster was seen stretched on the surface of the water—the sea being perfectly calm at the time.—The monster was apparently about sixty feet in length, of a dark color, approaching black. Its head was as large as a hogshead, and its body, so far as it was visible, in proportion.

It is stated that companies are about constructing a packet to run on the Ohio, and that the caloric engine will be used. The scientific American of this week concludes that the caloric ship will not be successful. Dr. Lardner once predicted that it was impossible for a steamship to cross the Atlantic. After they had run for some time, he attempted in the old Tremont Theatre, in this city, to explain away his unfortunate prediction, and only involved himself deeper in the difficulty. He should have owned up like a man. Scientific men may be mistaken.—Boston Chron.

PATENTS.

American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed Agent of the United States Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th section of the Act of 1837.

He has continued the agency for the transmission of models, and adopting a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent can be procured several weeks earlier, he continues to forward them, as before, free of expense, and to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe.

The subscriber aims to present to inventors superior facilities for obtaining patents; and is now prepared to make Specifications at rates cheaper by ten to twenty per cent. than those of other agencies. They can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries: besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"PATENT OFFICE, ——

"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.

"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent I have employed.

Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,
Commissioner of Patents."

THE ART OF BEING BEAUTIFUL.

IT has long been a desideratum that some scientific man should apply himself to the study of the human scalp. Dr. JACOBY, the great Pathologist, from Berlin, has done this, and in this new field has attained the most brilliant results.—Satisfied by an analysis of the red colored alcohols and other washes, of their deleterious effects, he compounded his celebrated Berliner Haar Wasche, to the efficacy of which, thousands of witnesses might be summoned, of the accompanying character:—

Boston, Jan 1, 1848.

This is to certify that I have had an article called the Berliner Haar Wasche applied during the past five or six weeks to my head, for the purpose of renewing and strengthening the hair. It has been very effective in producing such a result; and I can cheerfully recommend the same to those afflicted with baldness or diseases connected therewith. JONAS CHICKERING.

It frequently happens that ladies suffer from hair eaters, and apply some of the nostrums prepared by apothecaries, who think, because they can make poor soda water, they can prepare good hair wash. The effect of these is often highly injurious. Ladies, use none of them,—consult Dr. Jacoby, who will regenerate the natural and guarantee a beautiful head of hair. His motto is, no cure, no pay.

To those at a distance, the Champoo Washer Nos. 1 and 2, and Haar Wasche, are recommended.—There is, however, no universal specific, and all persons troubled, should if possible see Dr. Jacoby.

In the course of his scientific research, Dr. Jacoby has discovered a Hair Dye that does not stain the skin, will give any shade of color, and will stand exposure in all weather. The accompanying certificate, from a highly scientific source, must satisfy the most incredulous.

Boston, Nov. 18, 1851.

I have seen Mr. Hosea Jacoby's Hair Dye, used in coloring hair of a deep brownish black, of a beautiful natural color, and can certify that it is perfectly efficient and permanent.

CHARLES T. JACKSON, M.D.,
Assayer for the State of Mass.

Dr. Jacoby's rooms are at No. 9 Franklin street, Boston, where he may be consulted at all hours.—There are always in attendance in both ladies' and gentlemen's rooms the most skilful hair dressers.

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS
AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.

PATENT METALLIC
LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.

THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.

The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co., of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.

☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.

Specimens of the article may be seen at the office of the subscriber.

THE SURRENDER OF BURGOYNE.

BY AN EYE-WITNESS.

The following incidents connected with the surrender of Burgoyne, were taken from a letter written by the venerable Samuel Cody, of Vernon Centre, New York, now in his 93d year, who was an eye-witness:

"Congress had ordered the deficiencies in the Continental regiments to be made up by drafts, but, says the venerable patriot, my father said that he would take the place of one and I should that of another. This was in the Spring of 1777, and our term of service was to expire January 10, 1778. We were placed in Captain Keep's company, Colonel Shepherd's regiment, and General Glover's brigade. We marched to Claverack, on the Hudson, where we endured the greatest sufferings from disease, want of provisions, clothing, &c. We soon learned that General Schuyler was retreating before the British.—We were ordered northward and joined Gen. Schuyler near Saratoga. The Indians picked off our sentries at night, and great dissatisfaction existed until General Gates took command, when new spirits were instilled into our soldiers, our rations became ample and good, with a gill of New England rum each man per day. Gates says: My boys, we will now go back and meet them—no more retreating. Amen, said every heart. We recrossed the sprout, (stream) and met the British near Stillwater—told them by our fortifications they would come no further.

Here they were strongly fortified, but must have known they were in a bad situation. I suppose they thought of Bennington, and that the Green Mountain boys would be at their backs. Soon they chose to risk a battle, and attacked the right wing of our army. This was a bloody half day until dark at night, and our forces lay on the ground ready for the event of the morning. The British returned to their quarters, rested awhile, and then attacked again on the same ground. Here, as in the former engagement, Arnold had command of the fighting forces. He did not lack skill or courage in the battle, and I would give the d—l his due. The enemy fell back, and we took some prisoners and several pieces of artillery. We lay upon our arms that night, and were so near the British that we could hear the Hessians relieve their guards. A great noise was kept up in their camp all night.

At daylight we marched for the camp, but when we got where they were, they were not there, except wounded, sick and doctors to attend them, where they were quartered in large tents. We pursued the main body, passing dead horses, the wrecks of wagons and other things burned on their retreat, and came up with them at Saratoga, upon a high hill north of Saratoga Creek, where they had planted their artillery. They complimented us with balls and shells for perhaps two hours, without benefit to themselves or detriment to us, except to one poor fellow, who was killed. We were under a steep hill, and I saw the balls and shells pass over us, but we lay as easy and quiet as chickens under a hen's wings. We fortified a hill on the opposite side of the creek, nearly as high as that occupied by the British, and frequently went to drive parties from the creek, where they came to water, as it was scarce in their camp. As we were about to open our fire, a flag of truce arrived, attended by six very tall, richly dressed men, with very tall caps the tops of which were, I judged, seven feet high.

An armistice of three days, with a view to a surrender, was asked. Six of the tallest men in our army, with the best clothes we could procure, and with caps so high we had to look twice to see their tops, were selected to meet the flag. Terms of surrender were finally concluded. Our brigade was ordered to march down the hill and parade on the road leading south, with all the music of the brigade in the centre, playing Yankee Doodle. We were but just paraded when the British General, officers and staff, and Gen. Gates and staff, met close by where I stood in the ranks, and so near that I could hear all that was said. An American officer said: Gen. Burgoyne—Gen. Gates. Your servant, sir—Your servant, sir—passed round. Gen. Burgoyne then said—Through the misfortune of war, Gen. Gates, I am your prisoner. It is not through any misconduct of yours, Gen. Burgoyne, replied Gen Gates. Then came the British troops in columns, as richly dressed, clean and sizeable men as ever I saw. I saw not a smile on the face of Americans or British.

Next came the Hessians—and how shall I describe the most miserable, filthy, ill-looking beings I ever saw in human form? But the fag-end was the women, I suppose. Many of them led horses, upon the backs of which were thrown large oblong bags sewed up at the ends. These bags contained provisions, blankets, clothing, utensils, &c., and in many cases were the heads of children sticking out up above the horses' backs, through holes in the bags. Sometimes there were two smaller children on the other side to balance. Our orders were to maintain a respectful silence, but this last was too much! One ventured a suppressed laugh—his neighbor took the disease in a more violent form, until in a few moments the whole American lines were convulsed with the most uproarious laughter, and all at the expense of the poor Hessians, their women, children and equipage.

As soon as they had all passed, we marched South a few miles and halted for the night, but by sunrise next morning we were on our way to Albany, and marching all day and night, the next morning found us upon the East of the river opposite Albany, where the bare ground was an easy bed for a short time. The reason of this forced march was that the enemy were ascending the river to join Burgoyne; but hearing of his defeat, they returned to New York. In a few days we went down the river several miles in sloops, landed on the West side—crossed the Jerseys—joined Washington in Pennsylvania, (the British being in possession of Philadelphia,) and arrived at valley Forge in the latter part of December, 1770. Some time previously we had lost our tents, cooking utensils, &c., and as we did not draw bread, we kneaded our flour in a knapsack, kept clean for the purpose, and baked it by the fire or in hot embers, if we had any. One of my mess had a small copper tea-kettle, which I suppose he stole. We made bush huts and afterwards those of logs. After sleeping during the night on the ground, I awakened in the morning and found myself covered with snow, but I did not suffer much from cold.

My term of enlistment soon expired, and I was discharged 300 miles from home, without money, as Government had none to pay us.—Washington sent an officer to draw rations from the country stores on the route. After a narrow escape from drowning in crossing the North river, in twelve days we arrived at our homes in Connecticut."

PORTSMOUTH:

GREAT FALLS BRANCH RAILROAD.

A meeting is called for next Friday evening, at the Court House in this city, to consider the expediency of extending the Great Falls Railroad to Eliot,—and to provide ways and means to execute the work.

Of the expediency of the road we have never entertained any doubts, since we rode over the present circuitous railroad communication between this town and Great Falls, and walked over most of the same ground.

By building a short piece of railroad, between Eliot and a part of Somersworth, which would not be of very costly construction, we should have a railroad passing from this city to Great Falls on the eastern side of the Piscataqua, which must be of advantage to us, to Great Falls, and to all the other towns on the route.

This route is not projected either as a substitute or a rival for the Dover and Portsmouth Road—but it is believed both may be built, and both may prosper. We do not undertake to say that the means for building both, are ready—but men who ought to know, are sanguine in their faith that both can and will be built. We hope so; and we have no doubt that this small piece through Eliot will be undertaken and carried through.

The meeting will no doubt be fully attended.

PORTSMOUTH AND THE NAVY.

Under the head of United States Ships built at Portsmouth Naval Station, the Portland Advertiser says, it is believed that Portsmouth, N. H., has furnished more national vessels than any other naval port in the country; the following is a list of them, with their rates, and dates of launch:—

Falkland, 54,	1690	Washington, 74,	1814
Bedford, 32,	1696	Porpoise, 14,	1828
America, 50,	1774	Concord, 18,	1828
Raleigh, 32,	1776	Preble, 16,	1839
Ranger, 18,	1777	Congress, 50,	1841
America, 74,	1782	Saratoga, 20,	1842
Crescent, 32,	1797	Portsmouth, 20,	1843
Portsmouth, 24,	1798	Saranac, 6,	1848
Congress, 38,	1799

The Saranac is a steam frigate.

To this list may be added the line of battle ship Alabama, and frigate Santee, now under cover, and whose keels were laid sometime anterior to the present generation, (I believe in 1819) and which seem likely to get launched about the time they will become valuable to Barnum or other curiosity mongers, for their antique style of architecture.

Most of the ships in the above list, were built on an island opposite Portsmouth, on which the present navy Yard is located, and which is an appendage to the town of Kittery, in the State of Maine. This island was purchased during the administration of John Adams, for $5500, and contains 58 acres.

Several of the ships built at this station, have attained historical reputations, either from their deeds or the facts connected with them. Thus, the Falkland, a 54 gun ship, built by order of the British government, was the first ship of war built on the this side of the Atlantic; she was a fourth rate of those days, and may perhaps be styled a ship of the line.

The Ranger, 18, is identified with the fame of Paul Jones, and had also the honor of being the first to wear the stars and stripes, and the first to obtain a salute for them from a foreign naval power.

The America, 74, built in 1782, was the first line of battle ship ever built by our government, and was intended for the flag of Paul Jones; she was, however, presented by the Continental Congress to Louis sixteenth of France, who had recently lost the Magnifique, 74, wrecked on our coast, and in compliment for his effective services during the revolution. She was subsequently captured by the British. The America was 50 feet 6 inches in breadth, and 182 feet 6 inches long on the upper gun deck, and at that time the largest 74 gun ship in the world.

The Crescent, 32, next built, was given as tribute to the Dey of Algiers, at a time when our navy was too small and the country too feeble to pay for its audacity in more appropriate coin.

The Raleigh, 32, made several gallant defences, and was at last captured by two ships of superior force, after she had been run on shore and set fire to.

The present frigate Congress is the largest, and is considered the finest frigate in the navy.

SLAVE RESCUE TRIAL.—A telegraphic despatch from Albany to the New York papers, announces that the jury in the U. S. Circuit court, special term, before Judge N. K. Hall, brought in a verdict of guilty against Enoch Reed, charged with being concerned in the rescue of the alleged fugitive slave "Jerry," at Syracuse. The verdict was rendered on Saturday. This is, we believe, the first conviction for this or a similar offence, since the passage of the fugitive slave law.

A HARDER CASE YET.—We mention one "afflicting bereavement" caused by the very disastrous passage of ship Moses Wheeler, and were witnesses of another, on Saturday. A pretty little girl was seen walking down Merrimac street, very thinly clad, without shoes or stockings, and her feet frozen and swollen to double their natural size! When questioned, it was found she came over in the ship "Moses Wheeler" with her mother and father. They died on the passage, and the boxes containing their effects were swept overboard! By a contribution among the bystanders, the girl was supplied with clothing, money, etc., and sent on her way rejoicing. We learn that she has found employment suited to her age and condition.—Times.

The New Castle Stabbing Case.

REPORT OF THE INQUEST

ON THE BODY OF JOHN NELSON, PRIVATE IN CO. K, 3D ART., U. S. A.

Held at Fort Constitution, by the Selectmen of New Castle, and by Wm. H. Hackett, Esq., Notary Public, Jan. 31, 1853.

Dr. Nathan W. Oliver—sworn.—I am acting Surgeon at Fort Constitution; was called about 8 o'clock on Saturday evening by a soldier, who informed me of a stabbing case at the Fort and required my immediate presence; went immediately and found John Nelson in the Hospital, dead, lying on a bed; the body had a livid appearance when seen by me, and was that apparently of a man who died in his full strength. His clothes had been removed so that his whole body was presented to view; found a small punctured wound in the left breast between the 7th and 8th ribs, about two inches from the breast bone, directly over the region of the heart; examined the wound with a probe; found that the probe passed in to the cavity of chest to the depth of about two inches, supposed either into or against the heart; the wound was apparently made with a dirk or knife, and I considered it sufficient to cause death; on a further examination found a wound in the back, near the lumbar region, about 2 inches deep, in a downward and oblique direction; it was a flesh wound and not dangerous. On Sunday afternoon made a post mortem examination; found that the knife had penetrated the pericardium, which was filled with coagulated blood; also found that the right ventricle of the heart had been penetrated just at its apex; found no evidence of disease on the body.

Joseph S. McIntire—sworn.—Am Hospital Steward at Fort Constitution; have charge of and was present in the Sutler's store on Saturday evening at the time of the affray. Nelson, the deceased, came in about 7 o'clock; Barr and others were playing cards; soon Nelson opened a conversation with Barr about Scotland; their conversation was in a friendly tone. James Smith, who had gone out, now entered again; Smith asked Nelson if he said he could whip any man in K company; Nelson denied saying he could whip any man in the company, and excepted three men whom he could not whip; Barr then called him a liar and a coward, and dared Nelson to have a few hits across the counter; this I prevented and advised him to have nothing to do with Nelson; Nelson took off his jacket, and Barr coming from behind the counter, rushed up to him; Nelson struck at Barr, right and left; Barr appeared not to resist; did not see him raise his hand; immediately heard the cry of "knife! knife!" could not say who uttered the cry; think it was Nelson's voice; Barr repeated the cry "Ha! a knife! a knife!" in a burlesque tone, and cried "come on, McDuff!" The parties were very angry; immediately afterwards Nelson came to me, and said "Mac, I'm stabbed," and bared his bosom to show me the wound; Nelson did not speak again; in about two minutes he fell; carried him to the hospital and reported his death to the commanding officer. Both appeared a little intoxicated, but Barr was the most sober of the two.

James Partridge—sworn.—Am a private in Co. K, 3d Art. Barr and Nelson had several quarrels previous to this, the first of which was just before sunset the same afternoon, in the quarters; Nelson appeared at the time intoxicated; he abused Barr in very strong language; Barr offered to fight Nelson, on the spot; Nelson agreed to this, but they were separated; this scene was again repeated later in the afternoon at the same place. After retreat was beat several ot us went into the sutler's shop; Nelson came in while we were playing cards and us d some very abusive language to Sergeant Barr, and threatened to get satisfaction from him in some way. James Smith came in, commenced a conversation with Nelson, and Barr took it up; Barr called Nelson a liar and a coward; Nelson dared Barr to fight him; Barr came from behind the counter, and a set to commenced. Each struck the other; could not tell which struck first; a moment after they met heard Nelson cry "a knife, a knife!" Nelson immediately fell.—With some assistance, picked up Nelson, and carried him to the hospital; did not suppose him seriously hurt till informed of his death.—After Nelson fell, Barr, standing over him in a tragic attitude, cried "McDuff! McDuff!" and immediately disappeared.

James D. Smith—Sworn.—Am private in Co. K 3d Art. Was on guard on Saturday; about 7 o'clock went into the Sutlers' store, and on entering asked Nelson what he meant by saying he could flog any man in the company; Nelson denied the statement, but said he did not care for any in the company excepting 4, and dared any one to take it up; Barr called him a liar and coward, and offered to fight him; Barr came from behind the counter, and the contest commenced; Nelson drove Barr to the wall; did not see Barr strike a blow; next heard the cry of knife, apparently from Nelson; the cry was repeated by Barr; Nelson approached me, opened his breast, and showing the wound, asked me if that was fair; said it was too bad; Barr stood in a theatrical attitude, and sung out, "Come on McDuff;" saw a knife with a long blade in Barr's hand as he held his arm raised; Nelson at this time fell; saw Barr soon after near the gate of the fort, when he inquired, "how is he;" left Barr and went into the hospital, found Nelson dead and told Barr of the fact, and advised him to leave; said he had no money and did not know what to do; gave him some money, and he immediately left the fort; saw him again—witness objected to state the place, as he might thereby criminate himself in a military view. Barr had been drinking, but neither party very much intoxicated.

John Cooney—Sworn.—Am private in 3d Art, Co. K. Barr and Nelson had a dispute in regard to Scotland, the lie passed between them and a challenge to fight given; Nelson struck Barr when he came from behind the counter, who apparently made no resistance; Barr was feeling for something about his waist; in a moment Nelson cried out, "I'm stuck;" as he turned to the Steward when he said this, I saw Barr strike another blow at Nelson's back. Barr brandished the dagger over his head, and cried out "McDuff!"—the blade was about 7 inches long with an ivory handle; saw Barr afterwards in citizen's dress at the hospital door, did not speak to him.

A warrant will be issued immediately for the apprehension of Barr, and a reward offered for the same.

Nelson was an Irishman, about 30 years old, and enlisted in the army about a year ago, at this station. As he lay in his coffin, neatly dressed in the grave-clothes of a soldier, his countenance showed no trace of the angry passions which had disturbed his breast, when so suddenly called to meet his God. On removing the covering from his breast is seen the apparently slight but mortal wound, less than than an inch in length, with the edge tinged with blood.

WHIG SENATORIAL CONVENTION.

At the Whig Convention to nominate a candidate for Senator, held in this city on Saturday last, William H. Y. Hackett, Esq., of Portsmouth, was chosen President, and Darius Frink, of Newington, Secretary.—JOHN W. DODGE, of Hampton, was unanimously nominated.

DR. COGGSWELL.

The following is extracted from the speech of Coggswell of Bedford, in the legislature of Massachusetts, on the modification of the liquor law:

"If Eve's mother had possessed half the spunk of some of our Yankee matrons, she would not have suffered her injured daughter to have remained under the roof of the heartless coward."

The Charlestown Advertiser remarks, "By the way, on reading the speech of the gentleman above named, we were struck very forcibly with the burlesque character of the latter portion, and should suppose that it was his endeavor to be jocose on a very serious subject; and we are very much surprised, that a body of men possessing the intelligence of a legislature, should have quietly listened to him without a call to order."

Some persons in Portsmouth may remember, that a Doctor Coggswell figured here twenty years ago or more, as a physician.—The legislator above referred to, is we believe, the same man, changed only by his years.

TEMPERANCE.

The great Temperance Convention at Concord, advertised to be held on Thursday, [see another column,] will be an occasion of interest to all who desire to promote temperance, and who think it can be promoted by a stringent liquor law. There is no dispute as to the evils of intemperance—but much doubt and dissension as to the best mode of removing or diminishing these evils. And the present, when the subject is up for discussion, is a favorable time for settling the laws on the subject, so that they need not be too frequently changed. There are real difficulties on the subject, which should be met with conscience, caution and wisdom.

A MISSING VESSEL FOUND.—By the steamer Africa, we have the following item of welcome news from a vessel and crew about which the mercantile community began to be anxious.

St. Michaels, Azores, Jan. 5.—Put in, the American barque Mary Annah, Billings, from Havre, in distress, having experienced very terrific weather during all her passage. She is being supplied with stores, also having lost a few sails and ropes, 50 days out; passengers, 226 in all, are well. She sailed again 5th for New York.

☞ Mr. John Ball, city missionary, met with a severe accident at his school in Salem, on Friday night. In stepping from the platform he fell, and fractured the neck bone of the thigh, [not the hip, as first stated.] On Monday morning he was comfortable, but is of course laid up for some months.

☞ Blanchard, the Carpet swindler in Boston, has been arrested in New York and brought to Boston for trial, charged with cheating by false pretences, Messrs. W. & W. K. Lewis, of $325 in money.

Call for a State Convention.

The friends of Temperance are requested to meet in Convention in the Depot Hall, in CONCORD, on Thursday, February 3d, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

The present aspect of the cause demands that we should meet together to devise and adopt such measures as will tend to arouse the people to a sense of their duty. It will be recollected that a "Bill" was presented to the Legislature at the June Session, embracing in detail the "Maine Law,"—that after considerable discussion it passed the House by an overwhelming majority. By the Senate it was referred to the Judges of the Superior Court upon the question of its constitutionality. Their opinion being adverse to the Bill, a new one was drafted which obviated all the points which had been declared, or supposed to be, unconstitutional. The new Bill was presented to the House at the early part of the adjourned Session, and after being fully discussed, pro and con, it was indefinitely postponed by nineteen majority.

The discrepancy between the two votes must be regarded as a species of legislation peculiar to the age. The remedy is with the people.

The Convention will be addressed by Hon. NEAL DOW, and other distinguished speakers, and will continue two days if thought advisable.

Arrangements have been made with the Concord, Manchester & Lawrence, New Hampshire Central, Northern, Montreal, Concord & Claremont, and Contoocook Valley Railroads, to carry Gentlemen and Ladies who wish to attend the Convention, for fare one way in the regular trains. Free passes will be furnished at the Convention as return tickets. The last train up on the Montreal Road, stops at Lake Village.

THOMAS B. JONES,
For the Central Committee.

Concord, Jan. 24th.

The Portsmouth and Concord Road will run an extra train, leaving Portsmouth at 7 o'clock A. M., to accommodate those wishing to attend the Convention, who by paying the regular fare to Concord, will be furnished a free pass back by any of the regular trains. 2t*f2

Mrs. H. B. Stowe received last week, from her publishers, Messrs. Jewett & Co., of this city, the sum of $20,000, this being her second payment as copyright on Uncle Tom's Cabin, making upwards of $20,000 received by her in nine months.—Boston Evening Gazette.

Earle's cabinet warehouse at Jersey City, together with several adjoining buildings, was destroyed on Friday morning by fire. The total loss is about $40,000. Earle's loss $15,000. Insured $10,000. 25 families were rendered houseless. 15 persons were injured by the falling wall.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

SUNDAY EVENING MAIL FROM NEW YORK.—Washington, Jan. 31.—Post Master Gordon, of Boston, has been authorized by the Post Office Department, to make the necessary arrangements for a Sunday evening mail between New York and Boston.

A RICH CARGO.—New York, Jan. 31.—The steamer Hermann, which arrived last night from Bremen and Southampton, brought about 750 tons of freight of rich merchandise, the whole being valued at nearly $3,000,000, one of the most valuable cargoes ever brought to this port in a single steamer.

ARRIVAL OF THE GEORGIA—$2,000,000 IN GOLD.—New York, Jan. 5.—The steamer Georgia, which arrived here yesterday from Aspinwall, brought the California mails and $1,864,000 in specie.

FOUR DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE

ARRIVAL OF THE AFRICA.

New York, Jan. 30.—The steamship Africa, from Liverpool 16th inst., having been detained by order of the government, arrived here at 7, P. M.

ENGLAND.—The Daily News announces the prospect of an early visit of Kossuth to America being made, hoping thereby to secure the intervention of the Democratic party.

The reasons assigned for the detention of the Africa by order of the government are various; amongst others, to afford the government time to communicate fully with the British Consul at Cuba, relative to the alleged confinement of British subjects in that Island; to enable them to arrange the settlement of the disputed points with the United States before the retirement of Mr. Fillmore from office; and to forward to the Governor General of Canada, the decision of the imperial Cabinet relative to the Clergy reserve bill. Each or all of these measures have been deemed of sufficient importance to justify a step which is taken only on extraordinary occasions.—The official order for the detention of the vessel excited naturally a good deal of interest.

A Court de lunatico inquirendo, it is said, has found Lord Eldon of unsound mind.

The Canadian fishing vessel Caledonia, blown off the American coast, had arrived at Liverpool, all well.

The markets are active for Australia, and the news are generally favorable.

E. Wertehemann, of Amsterdam, has failed for £30,000, in consequence of Preiss' forgeries.

FRANCE.—The French government has contracted with Messageries Nationales and M. Lyassur for fifteen trans-Atlantic screw steamers of 1000 tons, to ply between Cherbourg and ports in America.

The first imperial ball is represented as having been a grand affair. 2000 persons were present.

Francis Madiai's death is not confirmed.

The Baltic is open at Riga. A ship has been chartered for London. Unprecedented weather has been experienced there.

FROM CALIFORNIA, &c.

By the steamer United States, California papers are received; and though the news is no later than we gave on Monday by the Star of the West, there are more details, from California and from the isles of the Pacific.

The Custom House returns for the year past show that there has arrived at San Francisco from sea, about 66,000 passengers; departures 23,300; of these 58,000 were males, 5,500 females, and 1,700 children.

There have arrived at this port for the year past:

	Vessels.	Tons.

Brig J. S. Cabot, at San Francisco, Dec. 28th, 8 ds from Puget's Sound, reports as just going into port at Puget's Sound, an English steamer from Queen Charlotte's Island, with Captain Rooney and crew of American sch. Susan Sturgis, which was taken, plundered and burnt by the Indians some time since; the captain and crew had been taken prisoners, but were ransomed by the Hudson's Bay Co.

San Francisco papers contain accounts from the Sandwich Islands to Dec. 4.

Advices were received in Honolulu on the 3d of Dec. in 38 days from New Orleans, by seven days the shortest time ever made between the two places.

Monday, the 20th of November, was observed in the Hawaiian Kingdom as the Ninth Anniversary of the Joint Declaration of Great Britain and France, to respect the Independence of this Kingdom.

Public offices were closed during the day, and at 12 o'clock, noon, a salute was fired from the Battery on the Punch Bowl. In the evening a court was held at the Palace, which was numerously attended. A large number of presentations were made, among which that of the newly organized company of Hawaiian Guards attracted special attention. After the presentation, the Captain addressed his Majesty.

SOCIETY ISLANDS.—By late arrivals from the Society Islands,—date not given,—we perceive the French are gradually strengthening their position and consolidating their power in that quarter with the evident intention of building up a permanent colony and establishing a military and commercial depot on the Pacific. They have a large fleet in the neighborhood; maintain a respectable military force in garrison; have established a regular interior and foreign trade; constructed a marine railway for the repair of vessels, and are fast making a civilized country of it. Doubtless their settlement there, is but the entering wedge for further accessions to their possessions in the Pacific. An expedition was about to be dispatched from Tahiti to chastise the savages of the Navigator Islands, for their insults to the missionaries and the French merchants.

SPEED OF RAIL CARS.—At the time Geo. Stephenson constructed the first locomotive engine, people looked at it, but nobody believed it could ever be made to move. That was but forty-one years ago. He asserted that there was no limit to its speed, if the works could be made to stand. When called before a Committee of the House of Commons to testify in the matter, his friends urged that he should not state the speed at more than ten miles an hour; and when he told that story, he was declared to be insane; and that was but about twenty-five years ago.—Since then they have been run on the London and Birmingham road sixty-five miles in sixty minutes—which is the fastest in England. In this country they have run from Poughkeepsie to Peekskill in New York, thirty-two miles, in thirty minutes; and last Sunday they went from Boston to New York, two hundred thirty-six miles, in three hundred five minutes. Considering the distance, this last was probably the greatest run ever made in America.—Newburyport Union.

An acquaintance of ours, and by the by, a very clever fellow, who has much oftener visited the theatre and concert room than the church, was pursuaded by his wife last Sunday, the first time since their marriage, which occurred several years ago, to accompany her to St. John's church. He sat very uneasily until the fine toned organ broke forth in the grandest strains of delightful harmony! he listened with breathless attention until the last note died away amidst the echoing arches of the vaulted roof, when forgetful of the sacred place he was in, loudly involuntarily applauded, by striking his cane vehemently on the floor, and did not discover his mistake until the eyes of the whole congregation were resting upon him. His confusion can be better imagined than described.—Cin. Nonpariel.

THE ROGER WILLIAMS COOKING STOVE.
FOR COAL OR WOOD.
THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the merits of this most beautifully modeled pattern; equally adapted for coal or wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the
Most Complete and Efficient
Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity. It is an elegant model, with fine smooth Providence castings, fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven, (by far the most important part of a cooking stove,) in point of capacity, and in regard to its operation, is unsurpassed by that of any other stove now in the market, it being lined with fire-brick to retain and equalize the heat, and provided with valves for the escape of steam, &c. arising from the roasting of meats—rendering it in this respect superior to the old fashioned but universally admired Tin Kitchen.
The broiling apparatus is constructed on an entirely new and original plan, and will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room. The sliding hearth is an improvement not to be found in any other stove.
The popularity of this over all other stoves now in the market, may be inferred from the fact that since its first introduction the last season, over THREE THOUSAND have been put into successful operation in New England and New York City.
Every stove is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser or the money refunded.
Each stove is warranted not to crack for twelve months from date of purchase. It is believed that this stove combines all the improvements that skill can invent, and is by far the most perfect cooking stove ever sold in Portsmouth. And though its price is higher than any other stove offered in this market of late, it is without question the cheapest in the end. All intending to purchase are respectfully invited to examine this at examination before purchasing elsewhere.
Also, a variety of cheap Cook, Parlor, and Office Stoves, which are offered low.
J. E. CHAPMAN,
n23 Daniel st., Sign of the big Coffee Pot.

WHAT-CHEER STOVE.
THE WHAT-CHEER COAL COOKING STOVE, now offered for sale by the subscribers, is acknowledged by all who have examined it to be the best and most economical Coal Stove ever offered to the public.
The castings are heavy, smooth, and very handsome. The Broiling apparatus is a great improvement over all other Stoves, being constructed in such a manner as to prevent the steam from escaping into the room while cooking.
All persons wishing to purchase a COAL COOKING STOVE, are respectfully requested to call and examine the same. Every Stove warranted to work well, or no sale.
We have also a large assortment of COOKING, PARLOR and STORE STOVES, &c.—for sale cheap for Cash at our Store,

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS
AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.
PATENT METALLIC
LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.
THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.
The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.
☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.
Specimens of the article may be seen at the office of the subscriber.

"THE CHRISTIAN SHOEMAKER."

AN ODD PAPER, EDITED BY AN ODD FISH.—Among the variety of papers from the Post Office one day, came along the Christian Shoemaker; a little 7 by 9 affair from Chicago, filled with a mixture of odd ideas, puffs for Jo Kenyon's boots and shoes, and not a few sallies of wit. Specimens follow:

PROSPECTUS OF THE CHRISTIAN SHOEMAKER.—In conducting the publication of this periodical, it shall be the endeavor to demonstrate that, in the language of its motto, "there's nothing like leather"—that in all the mutations of life it has formed and still forms the basis of society; and that, the world over, it has furnished the understanding of an intelligent people. It is a component part of man, and of woman,—blest offspring of divinity! what would she be without "leather and prunella?"—it is the pedestal upon which she stands, and beckons the hoping and despanding on in life's journey, even those singly blessed, to a happier future of double blessedness.

Leather! it is the object most cherished in young life—the first love of boyhood! Who does not remember the time he donned the first pair of boots, and what would we all give if we could but have a return of those feelings, when we for the first time stood knee deep in leather!

"Life is real—life is earnest,"
If we have in view the goal,—
"Dust thou art—to dust returnest,"
Was not spoken of the sole!!

We shall endeavor to dig out man from under the rubbish of stupidity—to dive down into the tan vat of society and bring to light the undressed calf, the unpretending kip; and carry our researches even into morocco.

With this prelude we enter on our duties.

We have embarked our awl in the undertaking, and shall stick like wax to the last.

Cannon balls may aid the truth,
But Leather's a weapon stronger,
We'll win our battles by its aid,—
Wait a little longer.

Our "Fancy Dress Party" Shoes are the most beautiful thing of the kind out. We had, the other evening, an opportunity of disposing of two or three pairs of them, and they are perfect models, without the feet. We tremble for whoever or whatever comes in contact with the toes of them before they are put on; but once on, and we do not fear the result. Some swain will bow in humble submission yet, to the wearer, if not to the shoes. So mote it be.

BEAUTY AND BOOT-EE.—We go in for Beauties and Bootees. That is the motto on our flag. Never surrender while there is one of the former not in arms, or of the latter on our shelves.

"Strike till the last old shoe is sold—
Boots—and our native land."

"THE GARDEN CITY."—What a thrill of joy vibrates through our bones at the sound of this hallowed name. There are some most pleasing recollections connected with our life here. How well we remember the first peep we took at the "village"—'twas a village then, but now the scene has changed; from the village of Fort Dearborn has grown the city Chicago. Let Chicago, with 45,000 living soles, now take the place of the once village: and oh! what a pleasing thought it is, to know that for each of the 45,000 living souls who, with the shades of night turn in and snore, can be found a pair of leather soles at JO KENYON'S.

A LONG GUN.—Froissait in his chronicles, says that at the seige of Oudenard, 1382, "to terrify the besieged they made an amazing large bombard, fifty feet in length, shooting stones of mighty weight; and when this bombard shot, it might be heard full five miles off in the day time, and by night ten, so tremendous was the noise."

CHOICE ITEMS.

[From the Charlestown City Advertiser.]

A gentleman in this city has received a letter from a friend in Acapulco, which speaks of the earthquake recently experienced there, and says that one good result attending it was that it "gave vegetation a start." We should think it might have—right out of the ground.

People who buy cheap sugar at four cents a pound, have no idea what a large amount of real estate they have been purchasing.

HORRID.—A married woman in Lowell, a Mrs. Evans, one day last week, cut off her husband's head. She was brought up and ordered to pay a fine of three dollars. We mean the head of her husband's portrait.

A DUEL.—Col. Schouler of the Boston Atlas, has been challenged to fight a duel by an Italian gentleman, an agent of Maberlini, the singer, on account of some remarks upon the musical qualities of that lady. The Colonel chooses inkstands or harpoons, whichever weapon the challenger may prefer. The fight is to come off on the Common, some afternoon after the legislature has adjourned, and the price of admission is put at fifty cents.

SUCCESSFUL ENTERPRISE.—P. F. Slane, Esq., whose manufactory at South Boston, was so completely destroyed by fire a few weeks since, thereby throwing out of employment some four hundred men, is again resuming his business of glass-making, with all his wonted activity and perseverance. Large buildings have been erected by the industrious mechanics, on the burnt grounds, comprising a package room, working shop and several other small buildings, which are necessary for the proper carrying on of the business.—Boston Transcript.

A correspondent of Dwight's Journal of Music states that Handel's "Messiah" was first performed in Boston, at King's Chapel, fifty-seven years ago. Mr. Selby, a Londoner, was the organist. It is probably well known that the organ still used in the church (now Rev. Dr. Peabody's) was selected by Handel a year or two more than a century ago. Its diapasons are still of the richest and sweetest known.—Transcript.

The Democrats of the Senate of Maine have nominated Nathan Clifford for U. S. Senator. The Democrats of the House nominated John W. Dana for the same office. The Whigs of both branches have nominated Wm. Pitt Fessenden.

The Hollis street Society in Boston, have voted to erect a new pulpit in their church, and to increase the salary of the pastor, Rev. Thomas Starr King, to $3000 per annum.

An old lady who knows, says that a young man should never marry a woman before he calls upon her at least half a dozen times unexpectedly before breakfast.

PORTSMOUTH:
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1853

WOMAN IN AMERICA.

Mrs. Julia Gardner Tyler, wife of the ex-president John Tyler, has written, or at all events has signed and published a letter in the Richmond Enquirer, directed to the Duchess of Sutherland and others. It is on the subject (we were going to say) of Uncle Tom's Cabin—but it is not exactly so—it is on the subject which Uncle Tom has so thoroughly brought before all the people who read the English language.

Mrs. Tyler's letter, in some respects, differs from any thing else we have seen, particularly in her estimate of female character in the United States, and especially in the South.—She describes them as patterns of piety, domestic virtue, modesty, economy, meekness and benevolence.

The letter says:

"Woman, in the United States, with but few exceptions, confines herself within that sphere for which the God who created her seems to have designed her. Her circle is, literally and emphatically, that of her family; and such she is content that it shall be. Within that circle her influence is felt over the relations of life, as wife, mother, mistress—and as she discharges the duty of one, or all of these relations, so is she respected or otherwise.—To cast a doubt upon her fidelity in any one of them is to excite against her the odium of the community, and, in a great measure, to dethrone her from her high position. She knows nothing of political conventions, or conventions of any other sort than such as are held under suitable pastors of the church, and are wholly directed to the advancement of the Christian religion. Such is emphatically the case with the women of the Southern States. Do you wish to see them, you must visit their homes. Do you desire to ascertain the nature of their employments, you must enter their family circles, and, believe me, good sisters of England, you would find in their Christian deportment, and perfect amiability of manners, enough at once to inspire you with the most exalted respect and esteem. You might find no splendid vestments of dress, no glittering diamonds, no aristocratic displays. No, the vestments they wear are those of charity and meekness, their diamonds are gems of the heart, and their splendor the neatness, and order, and contentment, which everywhere greets the eye; and that neatness, that order, and that contentment, is in nothing more observable than in the well clothed and happy domestics who welcome your arrival, and heap upon you every comfort during your sojourn under the roofs of their masters. You will see then how utterly impossible it would be to expect the women of the United States to assemble in convention, either in person or by proxy, in order to frame an answer to your address. Nay, I must, moreover, in all frankness, declare to you, that the women of the South, especially, have not received your address in the kindest spirit. They regard it as entirely incompatible with all confidence in or consideration for them, to invoke the interposition of the women of what are called the free States, in a matter with which they have no more to do than have yourselves, and whose interference in the question can produce no other effect than to excite disturbance, and agitation, and ill will, and possibly, in the end, a total annihilation of kind feelings between geographical sections.

It is the province of the women of the Southern States to preside over the domestic economy of the estates and plantations of their husbands—it is emphatically their province to visit the sick, and attend to the comfort of all the laborers upon such estates; and it is felt to be but a poor compliment to the women of the South to suppose it necessary to introduce other superintendence than their own over the condition of their dependants and servants.

This is the best part of the letter, and is rather pretty, whether true or not. That there are a few such pattern women, north and south, we very readily believe—but where can the man be found who believes such a rose-colored description of women in general?—The remainder of the letter is rather political, is apologetic of slavery, and makes some hard hits at the English practice of impressing seamen; while it bears throughout the impress of some Virginia gentleman, who speaks through Mrs. Tyler's voice, almost in the same manner as the anti-slavery aristocracy of Great Britain is heard through the still small voice of the Duchess of Sutherland.

The half-dozen books which appeared in reply to Uncle Tom, seem to have disappeared, without exciting so much as a ripple on the surface of society.

But the effects of Mrs. Stowe's stirring tale keep coming back to us in so many shapes, that we are almost tired of reading them.

SECOND DISTRICT.—The Whigs of the 2d Congressional District of New Hampshire, in Convention at Concord, Henry Bellows presiding, nominated Aaron P. Hughes as their candidate for Congress.

The first rumor of the death of Lieut. Heald, former husband of Lola Montes, is confirmed. He is said to have executed a will, in which he bequeathed to the eccentric Countess a life interest in £30,000, together with his portfolio of water drawings, and a portrit of himself.

The American Bible Society's house in Nassau street, New York, was sold Thursday, at public auction, for $105,000. The purchaser was Mr. N. C. Platt, who is undertood to act for one of the Baptist Bible Societies.

FROM WASHINGTON.—The Democratic citizens of Washington have judiciously determined, in consequence of the domestic affliction of the President elect, and the illness of the Vice President, not to hold the customary inauguration Ball on the 4th, but that arrangements will be made to give Gen. Pierce a becoming reception.

The New York Herald publishes the following letter from President Fillmore (to whom it was addressed we are not informed,) vindicating President Polk from the charge of a want of courtesy to his successor in office.

Washington, Jan. 22, 1853.

My Dear Sir:—Your note of yesterday came to hand this morning, and I hasten to do justice to a political opponent, who is now in his grave. You say that it was stated in your presence, that President Polk was heartless and cold, and that one of his coldest acts was, that he vacated the White House several days before the President elect came to Washington, for fear of opening his heart so as to ask him to his house and table. It is due to Mr. Polk to say that I know this to be untrue. General Taylor and myself were both invited to dine with him, and did dine with him before he left the White House, and I have no doubt all the civilities ordinarily extended to the incoming administration, were extended by President Polk to General Taylor, and, according to my recollection, he did not leave the White House till the 4th, or rather the 5th of March, which was Monday. The confusion incident to the close of a session of Congress, and the breaking up of houskeeping by the President's family, must necessarily prevent any President from doing more than Mr. Polk did in the case of Gen. Taylor, and if I am rightly informed, many of his predecessors did not do as much. I am, respectfully, yours, MILLARD FILLMORE.

For the Morning Chronicle.

SKATING.

The present season has been peculiarly favorable to this inimitable sport: whilst in every direction around us there has been a fair supply of snow, our city and its surroundings has stood like an island—real uncovered terra firma. The two beautiful sheets of water at each extremity of the city, i. e. Woodbury and Elwyn Bays, which sparkle so cool and bright in the summer, are now unrippled—smooth, hard and even as a marble floor. Upon these nature's ball-rooms on Saturday last, were seen hundreds of beings gliding to and fro with incredible swiftness, circling in graceful groups, intertwining with each other in their devious sweeps and curves—motions unlike any other to be seen among us sublunary dwellers.

Skating is comparatively a modern invention, for it seems to have been unknown among the ancients. It probably had its origin in Holland, where it was practiced not only as a graceful and elegant amusement, but as an expeditious mode of travelling when the lakes and canals were frozen; but less attention is given to graceful movements there than in countries where it is cultivated simply as an amusement, where the graceful attitudes are made a matter of study. Most skaters attain some skill in what is called inside skating, i. e. turning upon the inside of the skates; but it is more difficult to attain a facility of the outside movement, which consists in throwing the body upon the outside edge of the skates, and making its balance tend toward that side, which enables one to form a semi circle at each sway of the body. As we gazed on the scene before us, and noticed this exquisite grace of movement in the few who had accomplished the beautiful outside curve, we were convinced that no other exercise admits of such perfectly graceful attitudes as that of skating.

Is it not to be regretted that the ladies of this region are so seldom accomplished in this healthy and beautiful amusement? There is no good reason why they should not enter this field of health, grace and beauty, as well as the ladies of northern Europe, where education would be deemed incomplete without this valuable acquisition. How superior such exercise to that of the crowded, hot, dusty ball-room!

We are happy to learn in these days of woman's rights discussion, that parents are awakening to the importance of little girls' rights to all that affords robustness and pleasure, as well as the boys. Would that the rising generation could also be a gliding, swimming, walking, running, health-imparting generation. P.

☞ We learn from the New York Express, that Samuel D. Dakin, Esq., died at the Bond street House, in New York, on Wednesday evening last. The deceased was well known in the mercantile community as the patentee of the floating sectional dry dock, of which he had already constructed two for the Government of the United States, one at Portsmouth, N. H., the other at Philadelphia, and was engaged, with Messrs. Gilbert & Secor, in the construction of one at San Francisco. His complaint is said to have been disease of the heart. He had been ailing for some days previous to his death, but his friends thought he was beginning to recover. But while sitting at the tea table, on the evening in question, he sank back in his chair and died, with that suddenness peculiar to the disease. His business transactions were of the most extensive and complicated nature, reaching from Maine to California.

LOCAL.

LYCEUM.—Mr. Epes Sargent, of Boston, gave us, on Tuesday evening, at the Portsmouth Lyceum, a beautiful and finely read lecture on Poetry. His quotations were abundant, and apt, as well as beautiful; and by his easy delivery and appropriate though limited action, he succeeded in making a truly popular lecture—sufficiently learned to instruct. His essay and quotations on the art of puffing were a pleasant satire; and many of his other points were finely made.

Rev. T. Starr King was announced as the lecturer for next Tuesday evening.

☞ An Extra Train at half-price, from this City to Concord, goes on the Concord Railroad to-morrow morning, to accommodate the attendants on the great Temperance Convention.

☞ Prof. Millard's Lecture on Palestine, at the Temple, on Monday evening, was well attended, and possessed many points of interest. He lectures again this evening, exhibiting his illustrative views, in the Temple in this city.

He will deliver the same lectures at the Meeting House in Navy Yard Village, Kittery, on Thursday and Friday evenings.

☞ The Exeter News Letter says that Rev. James French, late pastor of the First Baptist Church, in that place, has received and accepted a call from the Second Baptist Church in Holyoke, Mass., and is about to take up his residence in that place. Mr. French, during his ministry in Exeter, attached to himself the people of all denominations, and they regard his departure in the light of a public loss.

SUDDEN DEATH.—The Exeter News Letter informs us that an old man calling himself "Paul" and saying that he had some friends residing in Kittery, Me., while passing through Kingston on the 21st instant, fell down in the street. He was taken to the poor farm, where he soon died. An inquest was held over the body of the deceased by Coroner Heath of Newton, and the jurors returned a verdict, that the said Paul, as he so called himself, or the said unknown, came to his death by long fasting, exposure, intemperate habits, and extreme old age, together producing an Epileptic fit, which terminated his life.

He was supposed to be upwards of seventy years of age, and was decently interred in the grave yard at Kingston.

☞ Moll Hodges, Jane Harper, Michael O'Brien and Dr. Sneyder have been arrested in Boston for trying to swindle Mr. Samuel Bigelow out of $800 or $1000. One of the women met Mr. Bigelow, (who is said be a virtuous man,) in the the evening, and invited him to her house. He declined going, but gave the woman some good advice. Next day a man called at his counting-room, called him to account for insulting his wife, and offered to settle for $1000. He was backed up by another man, but Mr. B. called in the police, and had the rascals taken into custody.

MILK CONVENTION.—The Milkmen held a meeting in Cochituate Hall to "regulate" their measures, on Wednesday, Simon Brown, of Concord, in the chair. After various propositions had been made and discussed, finally the resolutions of the Brighton Convention, adopting the wine measure for milk, were taken up and adopted separately. The third was so amended as to make the time of carrying the new measure into operation the first of April instead of the first of February. The resolutions were then adopted as a whole unanimously.

So says the Charlestown Advertiser. We deem the Cochituate Hall a most appropriate place for milkmen to convene,—because the name suggests the idea of plenty of pure water.

Call for a State Convention.

The friends of Temperance are requested to meet in Convention in the Depot Hall, in Concord, on Thursday, February 3d, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

The present aspect of the cause demands that we should meet together to devise and adopt such measures as will tend to arouse the people to a sense of their duty. It will be recollected that a "Bill" was presented to the Legislature at the June Session, embracing in detail the "Maine Law,"—that after considerable discussion it passed the House by an overwhelming majority. By the Senate it was referred to the Judges of the Superior Court upon the question of its constitutionality. Their opinion being adverse to the Bill, a new one was drafted which obviated all the points which had been declared, or supposed to be, unconstitutional. The new Bill was presented to the House at the early part of the adjourned Session, and after being fully discussed, pro and con, it was indefinitely postponed by nineteen majority.

The discrepancy between the two votes must be regarded as a species of legislation peculiar to the age. The remedy is with the people.

The Convention will be addressed by Hon. NEAL DOW, and other distinguished speakers, and will continue two days if thought advisable.

Arrangements have been made with the Concord, Manchester & Lawrence, New Hampshire Central, Northern, Montreal, Concord & Claremont, and Contoocook Valley Railroads, to carry Gentlemen and Ladies who wish to attend the Convention, for fare one way in the regular trains. Free passes will be furnished at the Convention as return tickets. The last train up on the Montreal Road, stops at Lake Village.

THOMAS B. JONES,
For the Central Committee.

Concord, Jan. 24th.

The Portsmouth and Concord Road will run an extra train, leaving Portsmouth at 7 o'clock A. M., to accommodate those wishing to attend the Convention, who by paying the regular fare to Concord, will be furnished a free pass back by any of the regular trains. 2t*f2

Thermometers.

IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.

Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 298,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.

This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.

The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.

Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers.

Author of "Travels in Egypt," "Arabia Petræa and the Holy Land;" will lecture at the TEMPLE,
ON MONDAY & WEDNESDAY EVE'GS,
Jan. 31st, and Feb. 2d, on
PALESTINE, OR THE HOLY LAND.

HE will describe the face of the country, its climate, soil, productions, its present condition, inhabitants, government, manners, customs, mode of traveling, &c. He will also present

Splendid Panoramic Views

—Of the most interesting scenery in Palestine.—Among these will be views of Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Hebron, Joppa, Acco, Nazareth, Tiberias, Demascus, Ruins of Tyre, Ruins of Samaria, Mt. Carmel, Mt. Lebanon, with cities and villages on its sides, &c., &c.

These views are most perfect and beautiful, prepared expressly by his direction. Each View covers a space of 5 feet in diameter. Having visited the country and places he will describe, he is enabled to speak of things as they are, and present the most interesting facts from his own personal observation.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Mr. Dixon, the new Senator from Kentucky, is in bad health, and leaves for Charleston to-morrow, having paired off with Mr. Borland on the Badger confirmation.

The Intelligencer announces that Mr. Geo. Peabody, the celebrated London merchant, has given $10,000 towards defraying the expenses of the proposed Grinnell expedition in search of Sir John Franklin.

THE KANE EXTRADITION CASE.

Telegraphic despatches from Washington, Jan. 31, mention that in the Supreme Court, three opinions were delivered:

Justice Catron delivered the opening one, and held that the arguments of Counsellors Bustied and Brady, denying the right or power of Consul Barclay to usurp the functions of the accredited British Minister upon questions of international law, was untenable, but that the British government might delegate that power. He delivered an opinion adverse to the views of Justice Taney, Nelson and Curtis.

Judge Curtis followed, and differed with all his associates on minor points, but concurred with Chief Justice Nelson and Daniels upon questions of non-jurisdiction in the case under existing state of Acts of Congress.

Judge Nelson followed. The result, if we are correctly informed, will be that the Bench, being equally divided upon the main question of jurisdiction, the prisoner must remain in duresse until action is taken de novo upon the merits, or until the writ be allowed on future motion on the part of the prisoner, so that the question must come again before the New York Court.

This decision is no decision at all. It seems to be a great pity that Kane could not be set at liberty. He must be a great bill of cost to somebody, although it is now very doubtful whether anybody has any legal right to hold him. Our Supreme Court don't know—but they ought to have learned this plain principle, long before this time, that the law presumes a man innocent till he is proven guilty; and presumes him free until he is proven to be a bondsman.

If there is no law higher than this, the country is in a bad way.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

MONDAY, Jan. 31.

SENATE.—Mr. Clemens made his first appearance for a month. The Deficiency Bill was received from the House and referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Hunter submitted a resolution for a Joint Committee to count the votes for President and Vice President.

Mr. Hale presented the petition of the Penn Society for the abrogation of slavery, for the relief of free negroes unlawfully held in bondage, and asking for the repeal or modification of the fugitive slave law.

Mr. Cass presented several petitions praying the intervention of the government to protect American citizens abroad in their religious worship.

Mr. Buell's death was announced, and Mr. Seward spoke a eulogy on his character.

When Mr. Seward had closed his eulogy the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—Mr. Jenkins announced the death of Hon. H. Buell, member of the House from New York, spoke a brief eulogy of the deceased, and offered the customary resolution, when the House adjourned.

A large and brilliant stone, said by jewellers to be a genuine diamond, and weighing seventeen carats, has been found in a gulch near Columbia, California. Should it prove to be a pure diamond, its value is immense.

SHIP BUILDING IN ESSEX AND GLOUCESTER.—Great activity now prevails at the ship yards of Gloucester and Essex, and contracts cannot be closed for vessels to be finished before next July or August. Forty-two or forty-five dollars per ton are readily paid for vessels of the first class. About forty new vessels are contracted for at Gloucester of which eight or ten are building at that place and the remainder at Essex.—Traveller.

BUTTER.—On Monday a large collection of fine "rolls" were offered in our market, and 20 cents was the maximum price. The range here is 18 to 20 cents; and it is not improbable that it will reach 15, as the sleighing was never better.—Albany Argus.

GOOD CONDUCT.—We have had by telegraph the account of the burning of three steamers at St. Louis on the 19th inst.—When the fire broke out, the Altona, of Alton, had not yet raised steam, but Captain Lamothe immediately started the fires, by throwing into the furnace a couple of barrels of rosin, and soon had on a head of steam sufficient to get under way; and if it had not been for her, no doubt there would have been at least one half of the boats at the levee burned, and the loss would have been immense. By this energetic course, the Clendenin, Minnesota, and several other boats, were towed away from the immediate vicinity of certain ruin; and when the burning of the wreck of the Lucy had lodged against the Editor, which boat was crowded with passengers for the Ohio river, the Altona ran in at her own imminent peril, fastened on to the Lucy, and towed her to the other side of the river. The Captain made no charge for these important services—but a proper reward is to be made to him.—Boston Courier.

REVIVAL AT NEW BEDFORD.—We are informed that there is considerable religious interest manifested in New Bedford in the Methodist Episcopal churches. A lady noted for her eminent piety, from one of the Methodist churches in New York, is making a deep impression on the minds of many by her eloquent preaching.—Boston Journal.

Real Estate for Sale.

THE VALUABLE REAL ESTATE, belonging to the Portsmouth Hosiery Company, containing 5 acres, 2 Brook and 12 rods, more or less, with all the building thereon, (being 9 in number,) together with the Engine and 2 Boilers, to be sold as a whole, or the Buildings, Engine and Boilers separate.

Said property is situated within one mile of Market Square, on the line of the Portsmouth & Concord Railroad, and is a beautiful location for a Boot and Shoe, Carriage, or Hosiery Factory or Foundry. For further information inquire of TOWLE & ADAMS, Nov. 19. [1cm] City Sales Room, 3 Congress Block, Congress st., Portsmouth.

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE
IN FRAMINGHAM, MASS.

THE house heretofore known as the FRAMINGHAM HOTEL, situated in Framingham Centre, Mass., having been put in complete and thorough repair throughout, is now offered for sale. The main house is 100 feet on the street, 60 feet of which has a piazza, and contains 30 rooms, including a large hall; has a large and dry cellar, Ice House, and the best of water. The whole premises have been occupied the past year as a private residence, during which time many improvements have been made in and about the house and grounds, the front yard having been enclosed, set with large trees, and grassed. The house is well calculated for a genteel Boarding House or Hotel, for which it is much wanted; and the Board of Education have decided to remove the State Normal School, now located at West Newton, to Framingham, the site for which is only a few minutes' walk from the premises, makes this property particularly desirable for this purpose, as it will secure, in connection with boarders from the city, a profitable business the year round.

It is also desirable as a private residence, having every convenience as such; and being situated in close proximity to the Common, several Churches, High School, (free,) and only a few minutes' walk from the depot. The size of the House, to any one having a large family, would not be objectionable, as the hall and other parts could be fitted up in a manner which would add much to the convenience and comfort of a residence in the country; or a part of it could be so used, and the remainder let, without inconvenience. To persons, therefore, in pursuit of property for either of the above purposes, or for investment, an opportunity offers rarely to be met with. Terms of sale will be liberal, and possession given at any time.

For further information, apply by letter or otherwise, to L. WIGHT, Framingham, or in Boston to J. K. PORTER & CO., 27 Water st. Dec. 27. W1sif

Something New.

THE subscribers have been appointed Sole Agents in this City for the sale of W. B. Ross's PORTABLE BED CHAIR; (Patent applied for.) A new and desirable article for Invalids suffering from Rheumatism, Dislocations, Headaches, and other complaints to which the human frame is subject. By means of this Chair being attached to Bedsteads of any kind, the patient may be raised or inclined at any desired angle or comfortable position, with perfect ease and without any handling of the patient. It is truly an article which should be in every house, as its trifling cost places it within the means of all.

The public are requested to call and examine it.
BROWN, TREADWELL & CO.
Jan. 1, 1853. 35 Market street.

"PORTLAND, Dec. 26, 1852.
I have been exceedingly pleased with Mr. W. D. Ross's Portable Bed Chairs. The ease with which they can be put upon any bed, and raised or lowered when so placed, seems to render them far superior to any article of the kind I have ever before seen. GILMAN DAVIES, M. D."

"I fully concur in the above recommendation of Mr. Rose's Bed Chairs. E. CLARK, M. D."

FOREIGN ITEMS BY THE ARCTIC.

At Roseacre, near Kirkham, there lives a very large farmer, of the name of Thomas Jackson. He had a large stack of wheat, and during the first of the late storms this stack was entirely lifted from off a stone stack stage, and carried for some yards, lighting exactly upon its bottom in a proper position, and in nowise loosened or disturbed thereby in any part of it.

The will of the late Duke of Wellington is to be proved under the sum of £800,000. It has at last been decided that the car which conveyed the remains of the late illustrious commander-in-chief to St. Paul's Cathedral, is to be placed in the repository of the royal arsenal at Woolwich, and the pall used upon the occasion of the funeral, in Chelsea Hospital.

It having been represented to her Majesty that the beaver bonnet trade was suffering from a depression, she has, with a view of patronising the trade, ordered for her own personal wear some of the new description of beaver bonnets. The manufacture is novel, inasmuch as the pure beaver is merely felted to the body, not ironed smooth as formerly, giving it a very rich and fur-like appearance; the bonnet is also perfectly soft, and as light as straw, requiring a comb instead of a brush.

A very important measure will be introduced into the House of Lords immediately on the re-assembling of Parliament, by Lord Brougham, by which the present tedious system of divorce will be abolished, and a new statute framed, doing away entirely with the enormous fees which are now paid, thereby bringing the law within the reach of the poor. By the new law, the proceedings in the ecclesiastical court, and also the action at law, which are now necessary, will be abolished.

THE ROGER WILLIAMS COOKING STOVE.

FOR COAL OR WOOD.

THE attention of all in want of a COOK STOVE is respectfully solicited to a consideration of the merits of this most beautifully modeled pattern; equally adapted for coal or wood, and warranted to operate successfully with either,—which is now offered to the public as the

Most Complete and Efficient

Cooking apparatus ever before introduced in this vicinity. It is an elegant model, with fine smooth Providence castings, fitted together in the most substantial manner. The oven, (by far the most important part of a cooking stove,) in point of capacity, and in regard to its operation, is unsurpassed by that of any other stove now in the market, it being lined with fire-brick to retain and equalize the heat, and provided with valves for the escape of steam, &c. arising from the roasting of meats—rendering it in this respect superior to the old fashioned but universally admired Tin Kitchen.

The broiling apparatus is constructed on an entirely new and original plan, and will not fail to recommend itself at the first glance, as no smoke or gas arising from that culinary process can escape into the room. The sliding hearth is an improvement not to be found in any other stove.

The popularity of this over all other stoves now in the market, may be inferred from the fact that since its first introduction the last season, over THREE THOUSAND have been put into successful operation in New England and New York City.

Every stove is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction to the purchaser or the money refunded.

Each stove is warranted not to crack for twelve months from date of purchase. It is believed that this stove combines all the improvements that skill can invent, and is by far the most perfect cooking stove ever sold in Portsmouth. And though its price is higher than any other stove offered in this market of late, it is without question the cheapest in the end. All intending to purchase are respectfully invited to give this an examination before purchasing elsewhere.

Also, a variety of cheap Cook, Parlor, and Office Stoves, which are offered low.

J. E. CHAPMAN,
n22 Daniel st, Sign of the big Coffee Pot.

WHAT-CHEER STOVE.

THE WHAT-CHEER COAL COOKING STOVE, now offered for sale by the subscribers, is acknowledged by all who have examined it to be the best and most economical Coal Stove ever offered to the public.

The castings are heavy, smooth, and very handsome. The oven is large, and has a great improvement over all other Stoves, being constructed in such a manner as to prevent the steam from escaping into the room when cooking.

All persons wishing to purchase a COAL COOKING STOVE, are respectfully requested to call and examine the same. Every Stove warranted to work well, or no sale.

We have also a large assortment of COOKING, PARLOR and STORE STOVES, &c.—for sale cheap for Cash at our Store,

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS
AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.

PATENT METALLIC

LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.

THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.

The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.

☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.

Specimens of the article may be seen at the office of the subscriber.

THE RAG-PICKERS AND BONE-GATHERERS OF NEW YORK.

The deeper one descends in the gradations of social position in this city, the more apparent does it become that "one half of the world don't know how the other half live." The bone and rag-gatherers—answering to the 'Chiffoniers' of Paris—are almost exclusively Germans and are mostly congregated on the Eastern side of the city, and from their clannish disposition, peculiarity of language and habits, form communities or "colonies" as distinct as though no others surrounded them. Withdrawn from intercourse with their fellow-men, they only emerge with their hooks and pokers, to add to their filthy accumulations. Under the escort of Capt. Squiers, of the 14th police district, we were favored with a glimpse of "real life" among these degraded creatures.

For dwellings, they generally select such as are constructed for the accommodation of numerous families under a single roof. These are put up very slightly, at a comparatively small expense, and the revenues accruing to the owners, from rents, form a large percentage on the capital invested. One structure, on Third street, owned by a late State Senator, is calculated to yeild a monthly income of $168, equal to $2,019 per annum. It is separated in the rear by a court from another building of the same description, yeilding nearly the same amount of revenue. Each floor forms twelve apartments, filled by as many families, each of which pays $3,50, $4, $4,50, or $5 per month, according to location. There is no pecuniary motive for putting up buildings of any other description, in this locality. Though they are often filthy in the extreme, new buildings of a better quality would be filled by the same occupants, with the same habits.

There are many other houses of much the same character, similarly occupied.

On Sheriff street, is a large rear building, containing about fifty families. The habitations of the rag-pickers may generally be recognized by the long rows of rags swinging from lines, to dry; and looking something like the brown wetted leaves in a tobacco shed.

About daylight, the colonies are in motion, and the able-bodied, equipped with baskets and pokers, sally forth, each emulous to anticipate the rest in reaching the field of gain. Sometimes the city is partitioned off into districts, and it is as much a tresspass to overstep the boundaries assigned, as for a fire engine to run out off its district. A few, more favoured than the rest, have carts with which to collect the refuse and offal of kitchens and butcher-shops; and the wife and a good dog, well harnessed, exert themselves in concert, in urging it foward. At the close of the day, when the circuit has been completed, the baskets, bags, and carts are emptied, and a pile formed of their contents. The latter are then carefully sorted, and generally afford, aside from rags and bones, both food and fuel. The rags are sold to shops adjacent, for two cents a pound for cotton and linen, and something less for woolen, suitable for carpets. The bones are sold for thirty cents a bushel, after being well scraped and boiled, to secure the nutricious portions for food. The bones from the gutter, after being washed, suffice to provide for necessities of the family proper, including the canine dependencies. The food and fuel thus secured, are the emoluments received, over and above the income from bones and rags, and are incidental to the main purpose. The processes rendered necessary by the transaction of business so various,—all conducted in the appartment used as a kitchen, bed-room, sitting, and store room—imparts a peculiar odor to the atmosphere, discernible at some distance. It can easily be imagined that the uncleanly mode of living thus described, with unsuitable food, and contracted and ill-ventilated appartments, are not promotive of health. The cholera accordingly, in past years, made fearful havoc among these people.

Notwithstanding the extreme degradation of the German rag-pickers, they appear happy, and exhibit no signs of discontent. With many, the Western States is the promised land, and every effort is made to accumulate sufficient funds to emigrate. A colony of three hnndred persons is mentioned, which occupied a single basement last year, living promiscuously together, with a common bone heap, to which all contributed, and from which was derived a portion of their sustenance. Though seeming to be in utter destitution, they all started for the West, last Spring, to settle on farms.

Snow storms are among the worst calamities that can befall the rag-picker, as his means of livelihood are placed beyond his reach. In such emergencies, the girls turn out en masse to sweep the street-crossings, and asking each passenger for "a penny," and three or four shillings per day are often thus realized, per head.

A mild winter like the present is a blessing they can easily appreciate.

The youth, both males and females, are marked by an unnatural precocity, resulting partly from the early age at which they are compelled to assist in gaining a livelihood, and partly from their addictedness to vice. Though young in years, many of them are adepts in vice. Destitution gives temptation an unwonted power, and they early learn to yield to it.

It is gratifying to know that some benevolent and philanthropic individuals are interesting themselves in behalf of this wretched and long neglected population. A mission, established by the Mercer street Presbyterian Church, has been for some time in operation in Avenue D, and other plans are on foot, having in view the intellectual and moral benefit of these people, others like them. Among other things a Sabbath school for boys has been established, at which from 130 to 200 boys have been in attendance. Judge Mason superintends it personally, and there is much enterprise, of an encouraging nature.

Captain Squires is one of the few police officers who have interested themselves in movements of this kind, though their peculiar duties eminently qualify them, in many respects, to co-operate in missionary efforts. It is now contemplated to establish a kind of work-house, in which boys may be kept from idleness, and healthful instruction and discipline be administered.

PORTSMOUTH:
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1853.

A LOOP HOLE IN THE LAW.

Loring Prince, of Douglass, Mass., charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Joshua L. Howard, has been discharged by the Court of Common Pleas, now in session at Worcester. The Worcester Transcript, in its report of the case, says:

"The evidence mainly relied on by the government to implicate the defendant in the commission of the act, were the dying declarations of the deceased; but after the Court had ruled that these were admissible, the counsel for the defence introduced a witness who testified that, in frequent conversations with Howard in years past, the latter had plainly admitted his disbelief in a future existence and also in the existence of a God, and on this ground the counsel objected to the admission of the dying declarations as being incompetent testimony. Judge Merrick gave a very concise and lucid exposition of the law of this Commonwealth in its application to the admission of evidence under such circumstances, and concluded by sustaining the objection. Upon this ruling the District Attorney abandoned the case, and the Jury acquitted the defendant."

This is an illustration of the statement that our whole system of Court oaths is out of joint. We have not seen Judge Merrick's opinion; but we have no doubt he laid down the law as it exists in Massachusetts, somewhat in this manner:

No witness can testify in our Courts, until he is sworn; (except Quakers, &c., who affirm;) Atheists and Sadducees are not permitted to swear: therefore Howard, if living, could not testify in this Court,—or if he had testified, we should throw out his testimony on a discovery of his Atheism. Ordinarily, the dying declarations of a murdered man are received on the oaths of those who heard them—because the dying man is supposed to be in circumstances so solemn as to be equal to the sanction of an oath. But Howard had no belief, and therefore no fear of a future existence for himself, or of God at all; and therefore his testimony when living and dying, lacked the sanction of an oath to insure its truth. And now that he is dead, the same principles of law apply to his testimony, and reduce it to the level of a common statement, under no legal sanction whatever.

The difficulty in the present case is, that while the majesty of the law is vindicated, the ends of justice are defeated. The evidence, such as it was, from Howard's dying speech, ought to have gone to the jury. The testimony of the man who heard him avow his atheism, should have gone with it—and besides, there should have been some other testimony from this same witness, and other men who knew the deceased, as to his being a man of truth or falsehood.

We are having in this country a great influx of christians of every name and sect, of Atheists, Sadducees and doubters, sceptic philosophers, Chinese idolaters, Mormons, nothingarians, and perhaps Mahometans.

Let a row take place among the Chinese, and two or three murders occur: one of the victims tells his story and dies—but he don't believe in our views of God and futurity—the witnesses do not—and therefore the murderers go unpunished.

Every man sees this to be an evil. The remedy is plain. Affirm all sorts of witnesses who cannot swear—under the instruction of the Court, that perjury is punishable by law; and admit all sorts of evidence for what they are worth.

SCARLET FEVER.—We were told yesterday that the dreadful scourge of scarlet fever and throat distemper had carried off some hundred children in the town of Waltham, within a few months.—Boston Courier.

We suppose this means that about a hundred children have died of this dreadful sickness;—but the modern use of the word some in this case is very bad. "Some hundred" may as well mean five hundred as any other number, according to any established usage.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTIONS.

The Whig Convention for the first Congressional District in New Hampshire, assembled at Rochester on Tuesday. Hon. Joel Eastman of Conway was president.

Hon. Amos Tuck was nominated for re-election to Congress, receiving 72 out of 124 votes. Gilman Marston had 39, Joel Eastman 6, I. Goodwin 4, McMurphy 2, and W. H. Y. Hackett 1.

SNOW WANTED IN HALIFAX, N. S.—The Halifax Morning Chronicle of the 29th says that the weather for two days has been delightful, and nothing is wanting but "a good level fall of snow."

The chimney of Muspratt's chemical works, about 20 miles from Liverpool, was recently blown up, as of no further use. It was 406 feet high, 46 feet in diameter at the base, contained three and a half million bricks, weighing 3,500 tons, and cost £7,000 to erect it.

DULNESS.

Among the thousand advocates of the Maine Law around us, we do not know of one who expects any direct or pecuniary reward either from their advocacy or its operation.—Portsmouth Chronicle.

The editor of the Chronicle must be dull, indeed, if he cannot point out advocates of the Maine Law who expect a reward for their labors. What do all the peripatetic, philosophising, Maine Law lecturers expect? Good souls that they are, they will not work and keep themselves, and they certainly will not be kept by the people, unless they can persuade the people to retain the liquor law upon the statute book.—Boston Chronicle.

We care nothing about the charge of dulness,—but we distinctly reaffirm the statement above, which we made in reply to the Boston Chronicle's asertion, that "almost all" the advocates of the Maine Law were in "the receipt of their daily bread by this same advocacy." We did not say that no lecturer was paid for his services any where, or that no one had ever been paid here,—but simply that of the thousands of advocates of the law round about us, in this region, we did not know of one,—and this was stated to show that all its advocates were not mercenary in their advocacy. We don't know of one man here who has made or expects to make a copper by it, if it should pass and be enforced—but if it could be, and did its work well, there would be a great saving in taxes and criminal expenses. We have never felt entire confidence in this law nor in any law on the subject, but have repeatedly suggested our doubts; but many of its advocates hereabouts are men of as little mercenary motive, and as great benevolence, as can be found—men whose characters and whose bread are quite independent either of liquor laws or liquor.

RAIL ROAD COMPLETED.

We learn from the Portland Advertiser, that the last rail is laid on the Atlantic and St. Lawrence Railroad, and on Saturday last, the 29th ult., at 9 o'clock P. M., the locomotive entered the engine house at Island Pond Junction, 150 miles from Portland; and, as it moved round on the turn table and headed towards home, after so long a journey, gave utterance to her emotions in a loud scream of her steam whistle. This salutation was responded to by three cheers from the sub-contractors, the overseers, the "natives," and "the rest of mankind" then and there assembled.

This piece of road was aided by the corporation bonds of the City of Portland, and will greatly benefit the city in various ways. The Canadian portion of the work will be finished in June next, so that by July 4th, 1853, the cities of Portland and Montreal will be indissolubly connected with bands of iron!

On the 8th of January, 1850, the road had reached Paris, 47 miles from Portland. On that day, John M. Wood executed the contract for completing the remaining 102 miles in three years from that date, for $26,200 per mile—one-half cash, one-fourth stock, and one fourth in the company's second mortgage bonds, at par—the city of Portland holding a prior lien for $1,500,000 on the whole road.

The city of Portland, by a loan of its credit, has furnished, without sacrifice or embarrassment, to the Directors, beyond the disposal of city bonds, the cash payments required. The financial ability of the contractor has supplied the balance.

We rejoice in the energy and public spirit of our sister city—and we rejoice also in another pledge of peace between New England and Canada, or in other words, between this country and Great Britain.

At the Free Democratic Convention, held at Rochester Tuesday, Feb. 2, composed of 85 delegates, to nominate a candidate for Representative to Congress for the Congressional District No. 1,—at the 2d ballot John P. Hale had 36 votes, and Amos Tuck 45, and the latter was nominated as their candidate.

Mr. Hale declined being a candidate.

The same Convention nominated John H. White of Lancaster as the Free Democratic Candidate for Governor.

THE MADIAI.—We translate from the L'Eco di Italia, of the 29th inst., the following correspondence from Florence:—"Rosa Madiai is still confined in the prison of Volterra, and very dangerously sick. The Archbishop of Florence, and the wife of the Grand Duke of Tuscany, have visited her, believing that they could influence her to return to the Roman Church, promising her freedom as a reward for having abandoned the heretical doctrines. But these illustrious personages have obtained nothing. Many more Italians are to be tried in Florence for the same crime, and the office of the La Speranza was ransacked by the police, with the expectation of finding Protestant books."

Seventeen States, at last, have passed Homestead laws. Of the southern States, Georgia exempts 20 acres, not exceeding in value $350; Florida exempts 40 acres, not exceeding in value $400; Alabama 40 acres, or house and lot in town, $300; Texas 200 acres, $500; California, the land of gold, $500; South Carolina 40 acres, $500.

In New York city there is a congregation of sixty deaf mutes with their families, who worship at an Episcopal church. The service is conducted in the sign language, and Trinity church pays the expenses.

LOCAL.

THAT "WINDMILL."

"The Chronicle announces that 'the windmill controversy has died out for want of wind.'—We predict a like and early fate for the daily, from the same cause."—Messenger.

Maybe so—but it's a sure thing, that the Messenger won't die out from this cause, so long as the present "blower" remains at the bellows—unless, indeed, he "busts."

"'Blow' on, 'blow' on—
We love the howling of wind
That bears us on our way."

TWO-CRAYON DRAWINGS.

Specimens of beautiful drawing by Mr. Gerry, are on exhibition at several of our bookstores—and while we would call attention to Mr. G.'s advertisement for new classes in this fine style of drawing, we would also suggest that the above mentioned specimens of drawing by Mr. Gerry, may challenge comparison with any other drawings of a like description, from whatever quarter. It is a rare privilege to place scholars under the tuition of so accomplished an artist.

NEW CASTLE BRASS BAND.—This band will give a Concert at the Temple this evening, under the direction of their accomplished leader and teacher, Prof. Elderton. The lovers of Martial Strains, and of Instrumental Music generally, will have a rich treat; besides encouraging by their presence, a good band of music close at home, whose services can always be commanded on short notice. See advertisement.

For the Chronicle.

FORT CONSTITUTION NOT NEW CASTLE.

Messrs. Editors:—In your account of the sad affair which took place at Fort Constitution, on Saturday evening the 29th ult., you have done the Town of New Castle an injury, which we hope you will be ready to repair. You head your article "The New Castle Stabbing Case" which on a moment's reflection you must perceive did not occcur in New Castle, but on the premises of the United States territory, over which the authorities of New Castle have no more jurisdiction than the City Council of Portsmouth—and the disgrace of such an affair should no more be put upon this Town than if it had occurred in your own City—as the whole testimony shows in the report you published of the Inquest. We hope, and doubt not, you will be ready to make the reparation the case demands.

A CITIZEN OF NEW CASTLE.

IMPROVEMENTS IN MERCANTILE USAGES.—Instead of using the necessary juices of the human system, keep on your desk or counter a small vessel containing a wet sponge, with which to moisten the fingers when counting bank bills; keep another with a small quantity of water in which to dip wafers, &c.; also keep a wet sponge with which to clean slates. If tobacco chewers will notice the filth that they inflict upon business offices and other places during their calls, they will perhaps be incited at least to be more cleanly in the use of the weed, if not to abandon it altogether.

A MERCHANT.

For the Chronicle.

Messrs. Editors:—In your notice of the alarm of fire at the Hutchinson's concert, you did not state whether the effect of the alarm was from the outside of the building or the inside. This is somewhat important to notice, because, in case the effect was wholly on the inside, i. e., creating an impression that the building itself was on fire, it would surely subject that one citizen to the charge that he was unduly moved by "senses not sufficiently trained." I speak not only my own experience, but that also of many others, when I say that the effect was wholly from the outside of the building. The cold weather that had existed for a day or two would naturally have the effect of creating a more than usual degree of watchfulness in regard to fires, so that an alarm of that kind would be likely to cause a pretty quick movement of particularly interested persons. Q.

DEATHS IN PORTSMOUTH, IN THE MONTH OF JANUARY, 1853:—Males 6, aged 67, 69, 56, 28, 46, 85—Females 7, aged 56, 13, 25, 9, 16, 6, 2 1-2.

SAILORS FLOGGING THEMSELVES.—The Norfolk correspondent of the N. Y. Herald has the following:—The United States frigate Raritan is here, of which you are aware. I learn from one of her officers, that since the abolition of flogging in the navy, the men who were disposed to do their duty, seeing they were compelled to do more than their own, in consequence of a large portion of the men being confined as punishment for neglect of duty, and various other offences, took it into their heads that something must be done to prevent the continuance of such a state of things. They therefore formed themselves into vigilance committees, and took upon themselves the punishment of all offenders, by tucking them up and giving them half a dozen or a dozen with the cat, as the case required, the officer of the deck being always particularly oblivious just about the time the operation was performed.

Not exactly flogging themselves, but one another. This is a democratic way of preserving discipline in the Navy.

A WRONG PLACE FOR NEEDLES.—There are many ladies who have the habit of holding pins and needles in their mouths. This practice is not without danger, and is occasionally the cause of serious accidents. A short time ago, a lady in Charlestown, while in a fit of laughter, swallowed a large sized button needle, and from that time to the present, has suffered intensely. Yesterday, it was extracted from her side, by surgical means.—Boston Chron.

Thermometers.
IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.
Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 398,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.
This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.
The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.
Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

TUESDAY, Feb. 1.

Pacific Railroad Bill.—SENATE.—After considerable time had been spent in debating private and other bills of no general interest, the Senate took up the Pacific Rail Road bill.

Mr. Rusk moved to substitute for the pending bill one reported by him last Thursday.

Mr. Brodhead gave notice of a substitute for all bills on the subject, which provides for the survey and reconnoisance of the country between the Missouri river and San Francisco. The subject was postponed.

Army Appropriation Bill.—HOUSE.—The House took up the bill making appropriations for the support of the Army.

Mr. Gorman offered an amendment repealing the act of 1842, placing the National Armories under the superintendence of officers of ordnance, and proposing to place the Armories under the care of civil superintendents as formerly.

Mr. Evans said that the cost to manufacture arms was greatly reduced since the armories had been under military superintendence. He knew the Secretary of War opposed any change of persons in Springfield, and deprecated this continual quarrelling as to whether the Armory there shall be under military or civil superintendents, and said that the proposed change was merely to provide sinecures for politicians.

Mr. Gorman took issue with Mr. Evans, and insisted that arms manufactured at the Armory were considerably cheaper under civil than military superintendance, and said that the present superintendents were superannuated officers, not fit to be in service; that the petitioners from Springfield and Harper's Ferry complain of the tyranny and despotism of military superintendents.

Mr. Ingersoll, of Connecticut, spoke strongly against the oppressive tyranny exercised at the Springfield Armory.

An amusing debate followed between Messrs. Stanley, Davis, Wilcox and others, when the Committee rose without taking a vote.

SCARCITY OF SAILORS.—There has not, for a long time past, been so great a scarcity of sailors in our city as at present. It is almost impossible to obtain a crew for Liverpool at any rate. Vessels are now lying off the point, ready for sea, but unable to obtain their complement of men, and have been lying under similar circumstances, for three or four days past. At the same time hands are plenty for New York and Boston at the usual prices.—N. O. Picayune. 23d.

BRIDGE ACROSS THE MISSISSIPPI.—On January 12th, in the Missouri Legislature, "a Senate bill passed the House without comment—ayes 68, nays 1, absent 6—granting to Joseph A. Matterson and others, the right to build a railroad bridge across the Mississippi at Rock Island, to be completed within six years. But afterwards the bill was reconsidered, and referred to the committee on the Judiciary."

MOTIVE FOR TEMPERANCE.—It is stated that the gold-diggers of Australia are very careful not to get drunk, lest they should, in that state, tell where the gold is buried.

There are 282,823 Quakers in the United States, and seven hundred and fourteen meeting houses.

A statement is going the rounds, that Alexander Dumas, the author, has written fifty dramas and seven hundred volumes of fiction. It may not be generally known that Dumas, if we may credit Parisian gossip, has reduced the writing of fiction to a system. He employs a number of clerks, and purchases any tolerable romances or dramas which may come in way. With a little alteration and revision, they are put forth under his own name, the reputation as well as the profit of course accruing to himself. This is the next thing to producing novels by machinery.—Boston Journal.

Frederick Wolcott watched the trains on the Erie Railroad, and employed others to do the same, till he was able to prove forty-five violations of the statute in not ringing the bell at crossings. He sued the company in the name of the people. The jury brought in a verdict of nine hundred dollars. One half of this sum goes to the complainant.

Twelve hundred soldiers and twenty eight priests, have fallen victims to the yellow fever at Martinique. In the Island of St. Thomas not a soldier has escaped, all having died: and many of the ships in port are without crews.

The fair students of Holyoke Seminary went on a sleigh-ride to Amherst, last week, but without beaux. The tender sensibilities of Amherst College were thrown into a fever of excitement by the arrival.

The resort to knives and other deadly weapons, as means of revenge, appears to be fearfully on the increase in New York city.

A BORE.—The Hoosack tunneling machine, which was to walk straight through the granite hills of New England, may reasonably be considered a failure. A long description of the work performed, and the causes of its apparent failure, are given in the Boston Traveller. It cut into the rock, the account says, a distance of 25 linear feet, when the machine was pretty well used up. Its progress was from 24 to 18 inches per hour, and the core which it drilled, and was blasted out, destroyed the work as fast as it was performed, as it brought down roof and all, to the amount of 300 tons of rock and earth.

COMMERCE OF LIBERIA.—The National Intelligencer states that the English have established a line of steamers to Liberia, and that the business with England has greatly increased in that settlement, while with the United States it is less than it was in 1815.—The import of palm oil into England has grown from 4700 tons in 1827, to 30,455 tons in 1851. This quantity exceeds by one half all the pork packed in Cincinnati, and about equals the whole export of pork, bacon and lard from the United States.

PATENTS.
American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed Agent of the United States Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th section of the Act of 1837.

Having relinquished the agency for the transmission of models, and adopting a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent can be procured several weeks earlier, he continues to forward them, as before, free of expense, and to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe.

The subscriber aims to present to inventors superior facilities for obtaining patents; and is now prepared to make Specifications at rates cheaper by ten to twenty per cent. than those of other agencies. They can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an ample library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skilful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"PATENT OFFICE,
"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.
"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent. I am very respectfully,
Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,
Commissioner of Patents."

Something New.

THE subscribers have been appointed Sole Agents in this City for the sale of W. B. Ross's PORTABLE BED CHAIR (Patent applied for.)—A new and desirable article for Invalids suffering from Rheumatism, Dislocations, Headaches, and other complaints to which the human frame is subject. By means of this Chair being attached to Bedsteads of any kind, the patient may be raised or inclined at any desired angle or comfortable position, with perfect ease and without any handling of the patient. It is truly an article which should be in every house, as its trifling cost places it within the means of all.

The public are requested to call and examine it.
BROWN, TREADWELL & CO.
Jan. 1, 1853. 35 Market street.

"PORTLAND, Dec. 26, 1852.
I have been exceedingly pleased with Mr. W. D. Ross's Portable Bed Chair. The ease with which they can be put upon any bed, and raised or lowered when so placed, seemed to render them far superior to any article of the kind I have ever before seen.
"I fully concur in the above recommendation of Mr. Rose's Bed Chairs. E. CLARK, M. D."

Mr. John Townsend, an old citizen of St. George county, Maryland, died some years ago childless. In his will he emancipated his seventy-five slaves, and bequeathed to them his property, which amounted to near $90,000. The will was disputed by his nephews and nieces, and the case has been three times tried in as many different counties. On Saturday last it was decided against the vilidity of the will on the ground of the insanity of the testator.

Late accounts from Key West state that upwards of $50,000 in salvage had been awarded to the wreckers this season. Salvage has been very low in proportion, but the amount thrown into the hands of the wreckers has been larger than for ten years, and conclusively proves the want of proper lights and beacons along that dangerous coast.

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS
AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.
PATENT METALLIC
LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.
THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.
The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.
☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.

MY GHOST.

This is not a tale of spiritual rappings. I never heard any. Possibly I'm not worth a rap, being only an artist. My table does not hop-rear up, or fly. Between you and me, it is lucky it does not. If it did the claw would come off, to a dead certainty. I think it right to mention this, and to warn any playful young ghost or ghostess of the fact. Now to my tale.

Aurelia Garford and I loved one another so passionately, that at the age of seventeen we resolved to marry. Both our parents opposed the scheme. We had neither of us any money, and though I thought myself a Titian, the portraits I daubed were poor things even for sign-painting. But we could not wait.—We grew desperate. We determined to run away into the wide world.

The wide world! How narrow it is, after all! A gimlet eight thousand miles long, would bore a hole right through it. And what is eight thousand miles? Less than most of people walk in a couple of years. "What is anything compared to everything?" as the editor down east observed.

Aurelia's parents lived in Two hundred and twenty-second street. It is a long way "up town." Some say there is no such street.—But that of course, is nonsense, because I know Aurelia lived in it. Many people, no doubt, have started off in the cars to look for the street, and never found it. It is not easy to find; though as it is the next street to Two hundred and twenty-first street, it is not so difficult, after all. I need not add that that house was the house of Aurelia's parents.

There was a large garden to the house. People can afford space for gardens up in Two hundred and twenty-second street. Only one thing grew in it, and that was grass. But give me grass to walk on. Trees are very well for climbing, and timber is very useful for building. Fruit is a capital thing if you want to eat, and flowers are pretty if you care to look at them. But Aurelia and I only wanted to walk about with our arms round one another's waists, and we preferred grass to trees, as we did not want to climb like squirrels, or build like carpenters. We valued grass even more highly than flowers, because we preferred sitting down upon it, and looking into one one another's eyes, to gazing at all the mangolias in creation. As for fruit, we scorned to think of earthly peaches or apricots, when our lips could be so much more sweetly occupied in exchanging celestial kisses, of which no amount could possibly give a surfeit.

It is my deliberate conviction that the garden of Eden was a grass-grown bit of land, with a good high fence round it to cast a shade in hot weather. The rest was love, which makes a paradise of any place.

We resolved to run away. And we did. We met one afternoon behind the wall of the grass-grown garden, and made for the cars.—As we went along, I summed up the items of my happiness, drew a line and calculated the total. The items were:

1. An angelic disposition.
2. The softest black eyes in the world; silken tresses to match.
3. A complexion pure as the whiteness of pearl.
4. A mouth which beat all the Greek statues to fits.
5. A neck and shoulders of human though quite equal to vegetable ivory.
6. A slender, graceful figure, that would have destroyed St. Anthony's saintship to a dead certainty, and so much the better for him if it had tempted him.
7. Love for a certain individual, (who, like Mr. Ferocious, in "Tom Pepper," shall be nameless,) carried to the confines of hero-worship.

Total: Aurelia Garford.

I was in a state of tremulous exhilaration. My soul cut capers and threw up its hat inside my breast; at least so I conjectured from the thumps I felt against the walls of that portion of my body. Aurelia and I took one long-drawn champaignish sort of a kiss, just before we turned the corner of that, to many, apocryphal Two-hundred-and-twenty-second street, and in another minute we were at the railway station.

So was old Garford!

He had come home two hours before his time from his office down town, where he was supposed to make money somehow. Not that he ever made any. His wife had a small income of her own, and that supported the family. Mr. Garford, at least so it appears to me, was allowed to play at business just to keep himself out of mischief.

"Hallo, young people!" he cried, jovially, "taking a walk, hey? Where are you off to? and what does my pretty Aurelia carry in that confoundedly bulky basket there?"

"Oh, papa!" cried Aurelia, whose self-possession was upset by the sudden recontre, and the dear burst into a passionate flood of tears; tears of disappointment and vexation, I conscientiously believe.

"Hallo! what's this, what's this, young gentleman?" said old Garford sternly, smelling a rat for the first time.

"Why, sir," said I, perhaps stupidly, impelled by an irresistible impulse, "if you had not met us so unluckily, we should have run away and got married."

"Hum!" said old Garford, looking at me fixedly; "is there any particular reason for your getting married in such a hurry?"

"Yes, sir," said I.

"And pray what is it?" said old Garford.

"We love one another!" said I, looking him boldly in the face.

"Oh, is that all? Very well. You need not run away; I have not the least objection to your being married."

"Oh, sir——"

"Stop a moment. I have a great objection to your marrying without anything to live on. Much as I was attached to Mrs. Garford, sir, I should never have dreamed of marrying her unless we had between us sufficient to support a respectable establishment, sir."

"But, sir——"

"But, sir," resumed Mr. Garford, who evidently took a pleasure in playing his part of heavy father in the drama; "but, sir, you perhaps imagine that I can give my daughter a fortune. You anticipate——"

"Not at all, sir," I interrupted, eager to disclaim all interested motive. "I know very well that you cannot give your daughter anything."

"Indeed, sir! indeed! And pray how do you know that I cannot give my daughter a fortune? Are you aware, sir, that the business I am engaged in is one by which some of the largest fortunes in this city have been realized, sir?"

To use a somewhat worn out expressive phrase, I had hit my intended father-in law "in the raw," and all attempts to conciliate proved fruitless. Nor did a hint from Aurelia, that, "papa knew very well he had not made the rent of his office for the last two years," at all mend matters.

Finally, Mr. Garford positively forbade my farther visits or correspondence with his daughter, until I could show him that I was worth five thousand dollars clear, and making an income of at least two thousand a year.

Thus we parted. I made several attempts to see Aurelia, but failed. In the end I resolved to set to work to make the required sum and income with the least possible delay.

Luckily, I made friends with a very clever painter, who undertook to put me in the right way. I had to begin again. The fact was, I had a tolerable dexterity in the blending of colors, but I drew like a Chinese, or a Yankee as I was. My master was a Frenchman; he had studied at Paris under Delaroche. He opened my eyes—I was quick. In a few months I could produce a portrait, at any rate tolerably correct in outline and perspective. This at once raised me above the majority of my rivals, and I soon procured considerable custom.

I had just laid the first stone of my fortune in the shape of a hundred dollars, deposited in a bank, when an overwhelming catastrophe destroyed the whole edifice of my hopes.

I received a letter announcing the death of Aurelia, from her father. She had been dead three weeks when the news reached me. My friend, the painter, was present. He saw me turn pale and cover my face with my hands.

"What is it?" he asked, kindly.

"She is dead!" I replied, in a shaken voice.

He knew my history, and needed no farther explanation.

I threw myself on a sofa and wept convulsively. When I had exhausted the first violence of my grief, my friend approached me, and in a tone of grave sympathy asked me of what I was thinking.

"Of death!" I replied.

"Of suicide?" said he.

I made no answer.

"Do you possess her portrait?" said he.

"Yes, a daub of my own, but which reminds me, at least, of the original. I have also a Daguerreotype—but Daguerreotypes have always a cold, ghostly look."

"You should paint her."

"Paint her?"

"Yes paint her as an angel of heaven; realise your memory of her beauty on the canvas. Leave a monument of your love and talent behind you. Then die, if you please."

The artist's suggestion pleased me. No youth of eighteen is in a violent hurry to die, even for love. I resolved to adopt my friend's idea, and a gloomy sort of ambition seized me, to make this work a work of art worthy of its model. Nay, I even dreamed of posthumous fame; of going down the stream of American art-history as the man who painted a real angel, and pursued its prototype into the world of angels.

I commenced my task that very day, and labored as long as light allowed without cessation. My master aided me by his consels, and when the work was completed, he laid his hand affectionately on my shoulder and said—

"Truly, truly, you are a pupil worthy of a great master!"

We had the picture framed and sent to the exhibition of the Academy. On the first day my triumph was unquestionable. "An Angel" was decidedly the attraction of the exhibition. The same afternoon an offer to purchase it for a large sum arrived from New York. I sat with this letter in my hand, trying to read it by the already waning light in my studio, when I heard the door open, and somebody enter. Supposing it to be the painter, I did not look round.

Presently I raised my eyes, and beheld to my horror, a shadowy figure in white, with a face of unearthly pallor.

The face was Aurelia's!

I confess that fear seized me. My shattered nerves, my recent over-exertion, my fast vigils, had increased my sensibility to an alarming degree. I tried to reason with myself, and account for the vision on the groundof mental delusion, when I was startled out of all reasoning by the figure saying in a low but distinct tone—

"Frederick, do you not know me?"

"Yes I know you," was my solemn answer.

"And you still love me?"

"Now and forever!"

"Then why do you not embrace me?" said the figure, gliding nearer.

"Can ghosts embrace?" I cried, rising dubiously, and gazing more assuredly at the phantom.

"Try!" said the ghost.

And I did try; but it was no spectre—it was a living, breathing angel I folded in my arms.

"What is the meaning of this? I thought you were dead!"

"And I believed you buried. They told me so at home. I have had a fever in consequence: see how pale and thin I am."

"But I am alive; so are you!"

"That is evident."

"What could have been your father's motive for such conduct and such falsehood?"

"An insane wish to marry me to his partner, Mr. Smithson. Yes; he has caught a partner with money, as mamma says, and she thanks God she will not have to pay the rent of the office out of her income any longer."

"But how did you know I was alive?"

"Dead men do not paint pictures."

"Then you know?"

"Yes, I have seen—oh! you flatterer!"

"Flatterer? not at all. But look at this—an offer of seven hundred dollars for the picture. An hour ago, I would not have sold it for seventy thousand. But now—suppose we take the seven hundred dollars, and run away at once?"

"It is not necessary; my father gives his consent and here he is."

Old Garford entered.

"Well, sir," said he, "I congratulate you on your success. We shall be happy to see you at Two-hundred-and-twenty-second-street this evening, if you are not otherwise engaged."

Shortly afterward I was married. As soon as Aurelia and I were alone in the carriage that bore us from the church, I said to her, smiling. "My dear little ghost, I sincerely hope you will haunt me to my dying day!"

"I will try," said Aurelia, looking full at me with beautiful and fathomless eyes, "to be your ghostly comforter as long as I live."

It is my opinion that a ghost is very much improved by having a body attached.

SWINDLER'S TRICKS EXPOSED.—In the Boston Police Court on Wednesday, Michael O'Brien, William Clark and "Moll Hodges" alias Mary Harper, the alleged panel thieves, were examined on a charge of attempting to extort one thousand dollars from Samuel Bigelow, Esq. The testimony embraced the facts contained in the Chronicle of Wednesday, and the defendants—in default of bonds in $1000 each—were committed for trial. They will undoubtedly, during a day or two, find bail. It is said that one of the parties has on deposit in one of the Boston banks a large sum of money, and this, of course, he will employ in extricating himself and his associates from the danger that now environs him and them. O'Brien and Clark, with the aid of their woman, Harper, an officer informs the Boston Courier, have taken large sums of money from various citizens during the past six months; but the robbed parties refusing to go into court, the alleged rogues have escaped punishment.

These things exhibit a curious phase of city life. Men who are not too pure to go home with Moll Hodges at her request, are too much ashamed afterwards to claim their watches or sue for their money, out of which they have been swindled by her or her confederates. Many of the victims belong in the country, and stand pretty well at home, but is looking round to "see the elephant" in the city, they have caught a Tartar.

PASTORAL FIDELITY.—Rev. Mr. Kirk, of Boston, has been invited to become the pastor of the (new Presbyterian) Calvary Church, in Philadelphia, with a salary of $5000 per annum, a vacation of one third of each year, and other inducements to accept the call. A committee from the Church came on to Boston to urge his acceptance, and Rev. Drs. Barnes and Brainerd, of Philadelphia, also came on and lent their aid.

Mr. Kirk's salary in Boston is $2500. Last Sabbath he stated publicly to his congregation, that he had declined the offer, and gave his reasons for it, which were mainly, that he was greatly attached to his people, and they to him. No better reasons could be given; and we rejoice to find one man more in this mercenary world, who believes there are other good things beside money.

A Maine law petition containing 50,000 names was presented to the Legislature of New Jersey on Thursday. It was 1400 feet long, and was escorted to the capitol by a procession numbering about 700.

DAILY Morning Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH:
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1853.

THE MERRIMENT FUND.

It is plainly of God's ordaining that the relations of character, forms of thought, and modes of expression of different individuals and classes of men, should constitute not only a great means of improvement, but also a "Merriment Fund."

As the washings of the rivers bring to light the gold, so the daily intercourse of life brings to individual knowledge and experience the various materials for the "Merriment Fund," and as the gold, if gathered and put to its proper uses, subserves great purposes of benefit to mankind: so these materials, if they are only gleaned and properly garnered, may be made to subserve important purposes of enjoyment and improvement. The only care to be taken is, that this receptacle rejects all that might deteriorate the general or the individual character; thus observed, we may "pick up," "carry in," "grind out," sift and prepare food for the mind.

Thus far we adopt the language of a correspondent, who was evidently thinking of the process whereby all the current news of the great dailies, which fills their ample columns to overflowing, is daily culled, abridged and condensed within the narrow limits of a much smaller sheet. There possibly was the idea of a pun lurking behind, which should represent the miller making flour, and suggest the fitness of grinding only good wheat; because the most skilful miller could not change bad wheat into good flour.

The suggestion of a Merriment Fund, is a happy one, on which we might enlarge—but the reader will do it for himself. We hold that the public mind should be amused as well as instructed; and in our vocation we act upon it—with what success, we leave our daily-increasing readers to say.

LENT.

The season of Lent, this year, commences on Wednesday next, Feb. 9, which is Ash Wednesday—so called, as is supposed, from an old catholic custom of sprinkling ashes on the heads of penitents, who on that day began their penance.

The close of Lent is Easter Sunday, March 27. The whole season of Lent, is the forty days' fast of the Latin and Greek Churches; which is also kept by the English Church and some others, with less of strictness and austerity. The term lent, is said to be taken from the lengthening of the days in the season of the spring.

From the Pilot, the Catholic paper in Boston, we copy the following "Regulations for Lent," for the information of our readers, most of whom are not posted up in such matters.

The Regulations for Lent in the Diocese of Boston, in the year 1853, are as follows:—

First—All the days of Lent (Sundays excepted) are fast days of obligation.

Second—The use of flesh meat is allowed by dispensation, on all Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, in Lent, once in the day only; on Sundays it is allowed without restriction as to the number of times.

Third—Lard may be used in preparing food on all the days in Lent. (This dispensation extends also to the days of abstinence throughout the year.

Fourth—Eggs, fish, butter, cheese, and milk may be used at the evening collation.

Fifth—The use of flesh meat and fish at the same meal is prohibited.

We are authorized by the Bishop of Hartford to say that the same are the regulations for Lent in the Diocese of Hartford.

REV. JOHN G. ADAMS, Pastor of the Universalist Society, Malden, has accepted an invitation to settle over the Universalist Society in Worcester.

MR. EVERETT.—On Tuesday, the House of Representatives in Massachusetts, elected Hon. Edward Everett as Senator in Congress for Massachusetts. And on Wednesday the Senate concurred in the choice. After March next, Sumner and Everett (both scholars of a high order) are the Senators from Massachusetts.

U. S. MINT.—The total coinage of gold and silver at the United States mint for the calendar year 1852, was $57,896,218, of which nearly $57,000,000 were gold coin.

THE EASTERN RAILROAD IN BOSTON.—As early this season as the weather will permit, the Eastern Railroad Company will complete their arrangements to enter Boston by the route for which they obtained legislative authority two years ago. The new track will cross the Boston and Maine Railroad near the boundary line of Charlestown and Somerville. A new bridge will be made over Charles river, west of and parallel to the present line of the Boston and Maine Railroad. The Eastern Railroad has authority to come up to Market street in Boston. This street is parallel with the northern end of the Maine Railroad Station House. It extends from Portland to Canal street. It is reported that the Eastern Railroad has secured several estates upon this street, and that ample accommodation can be obtained for the road in the vicinity.

LOCAL.

City Council—Feb. 3.

In Board of Aldermen, a communication was received from Mrs. Henderson, Exe'x of Robert Henderson, stating that the estate holds two notes of the Town of Portsmouth, for $1000 each; which she desires to be renewed by the City in one note of $1200 and one of $800; which request was granted.

Several bills were passed for payment.

In the Common Council, it was

Resolved, That the sum of $50 be presented to the Superintendent of the Alms House, in consideration of his acceptable services.

Resolved, That the salary of the Superintendent of the Alms House, hereafter, be four hundred and fifty dollars.

Sent up for concurrence.

The committee to whom was referred the munificent tender of His Honor the Mayor, of his salary for the annual thanksgiving dinner to the poor,—reported, That, in behalf of the inmates of the alms house, they accepted the offer, with grateful acknowledgements,—and directed the interest, 18 dollars, be paid from the city treasury to the overseers of the poor, annually, two days before thanksgiving. The report was unanimously accepted.

The ordinance relating to Truant Boys was read and referred.

Resolved, That with concurrence of Board of Aldermen, a joint special committee be appointed, to report upon the expediency of petitioning the Legislature to pass a law prohibiting, under suitable penalties, any person not being legally authorised, from preventing any child from attending the public or free schools, of the several towns in this State.

Messrs. Haven, Brewster and Gray were appointed on the part of the Common Council.

☞ A telegraphic despatch was received in this city last evening by one of the owners of the bark Mary Annah, Capt. Billings, announcing her arrival at New York, yesterday afternoon. She sailed from Havre, Nov. 10, with 225 passengers; put into the Western Islands, for supplies, and sailed thence for New York, Jan. 5.

THE FINE ARTS.—Ladies and gentlemen interested in the cultivation of the fine arts, would be pleased with a close examination of some drawings by Mr. Gerry, at the Bookstores. See advertisement.

RAILROAD MEETING.—All citizens of Portsmouth and Eliot, who would like to see a direct connection by Railroad between this city and Great Falls, and to know how we can get it, will do well to read the Railroad notice in our advertising columns, and attend this evening at the Court House.

☞ The New Castle Brass Band, led by Prof. Elderton, had a good house at the Temple last evening, and discoursed eloquent music.

THE PEMBINA MEMBERS.—The Boston Courier says, one of the advantages of representing a constituency on the farthest confines of the republic is, that it is not necessary to have any politics at home. The St. Paul Minnesota Democrat, in noticing the arrival of the members, says—"The Pembina delegation, which represents twenty-eight votes, having learnt, as soon as they reached the settlements, that Pierce and King had been elected, became suddenly transformed into Democrats "to the fullest extent." A most remarkable and sudden conversion. They, however, seriously object to our Democracy, because it unfortunately happens to be older than theirs."

THE WOUNDED FIREMAN.—Mr. George Estee, of Franklin Engine Co. No. 7, of Charlestown, who was so seriously injured at the burning of the Tremont Temple, Boston, on the 31st of March last, has been more feeble for a few days past, and the prospects of his ultimate recovery are less flattering than they have been since his injury.

City Ordinances—No. 31.

AN ORDINANCE to restrain and repress disorderly houses and shops, houses of ill fame, nine or tenpin alleys, Billiard Tables, or tables or bowling alleys; and to authorize the destruction and demolition of all instruments and devices used for the purpose of gaming.

Be it enacted by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth,

Sec. 1. No person shall keep, maintain, or continue any disorderly house or shop, or any house of ill fame, in this city.

Sec. 2. No person shall open, keep, maintain or continue any billiard room, or place wherein the game of billiards is played, or any bowling alley or place wherein the game of nine or tenpins is played, or keep any billiard table or bowling alley in this city for public use, unless the Mayor and Aldermen shall have granted a license therefor.

Sec. 3. If any person shall open, keep, maintain or continue any disorderly house or shop, or any house of ill fame, or any billiard room, billiard table, or any bowling alley, contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, he shall forfeit and pay not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty dollars for each and every day that he shall so open, keep, maintain or continue such disorderly house, shop, house of ill fame, billiard room, billiard table or bowling alley.

Sec. 4. If any person, keeping any billiard room, billiard table, or bowling alley as aforesaid, or having the care or control thereof, shall allow or permit the same to be kept open or used between the hours of eleven in the evening and six in the morning, (except on Saturdays, when the same shall be closed at ten in the evening), or shall suffer or permit any intoxicating drinks to be drank in and about the same, or allow or permit any minor to be admitted or play at billiards in such billiard room, or at bowls in such bowling alley, without permission in writing of his parent, master or guardian, he shall forfeit and pay for each and every offence not less than three dollars nor more than ten dollars.

Sec. 5. Any person owning or having in his possession any instruments and devices used for the purpose of unlawful gaming, shall forfeit the same; and the City Marshal or Assistant Marshal, under the direction of the Mayor, is hereby authorized and required to demolish and destroy the same.

Passed Jan. 20, 1853.

JOHN BENNETT, City Clerk.

Thermometers.

IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.

Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 398,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.

This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.

The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.

Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers

Coal Burners

OF a new and elegant pattern, designed for the parlor, hall, or office, may be found at CHAPMAN'S TIN WARE FACTORY.

In simplicity of construction, beauty of outline, and style of finish, it is unsurpassed by any Coal Stove in the market. It is so constructed that the entire contents of the grate can be instantly discharged into the ash-pan while the stove is closed air-tight, so that no dust can escape into the room to the annoyance of persons or damage of furniture. Its exterior model is of the most chaste and faultless character, rendering it by for the most attractive stove that can be introduced into the parlor or sitting room. For sale cheap at the sign of the Big Coffee Pot, Daniel street, where it may be seen in operation.

Also, for sale as above, one pattern of Hapgood's celebrated HOT-AIR PARLOR GRATE. f3

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN INDIA STREET, BOSTON.—About 4 o'clock Thursday morning, the fire telegraph sounded an alarm of fire in the first story of the extensive drug store of Messrs. Henshaw, Edmands & Co., 36 India street.

The lower stories of the building were pretty thoroughly burnt out, and the larger proportion of the very valuable stock of the store was destroyed, and the remainder badly damaged.

There was insurance on Messrs. Henshaw & Edmands's stock to the amount of $50,000, which will fully cover the loss.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 2.

SENATE.—The resolution relating to the right of way under the Garay grant over the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, was taken up.

Mr. Downs addressed the Senate for an hour in favor of the government compelling Mexico to a rigid adherence to her plighted faith, under the grant to Garay now held by the citizens of the United States. He coincided entirely with what Mr. Mason said yesterday on this subject.

Mr. Seward got the floor, and the subject was postponed till Tuesday next.

The bill for the relief of General Riley then passed.

Mr. Stockton moved to take up the bill to reorganize the navy.

Mr. Cass said that the Senator from Louisiana had the floor, on the Tehuantepec question.

Mr. Stockton thought the bill could be disposed of in an hour.

Mr. Cass thought the Senator was considerably mistaken.

Mr. Hale proposed as a compromise that as the Senator had many amendments to offer, he do so now, have them printed, and take up the bill to-morrow.

Mr. Stockton acquiesced in this, submitted his amendments to be printed, and the bill was postponed till to-morrow.

Mr. Mangum presented the joint resolution of North Carolina in favor of repealing all duties on railroad iron.

Mr. Weller reported from the select committee on the Mexican boundary commission, that the law appointing the commissioner and surveyor of that boundary, limited the duration of those officers to the 1st of January, 1853, and those offices are now vacant.

The Senate then took up the emigrant route to the Pacific bill, to which the special committee had reported an amendment striking out all after the enacting clause, and inserting provisions, that it be the duty of the President to cause to be constructed, as soon as practicable, a railroad and magnetic telegraphic line, connecting with the Pacific ocean, at such points as the President may determine to be a general route, and to employ engineers and surveyors to furnish him with the information granting the right of way three hundred feet through the public lands for construction of said road; appropriate alternate sections of land of six miles on each side through states, and twelve miles each side in the territories, and $20,000,000 in 5 per cent bonds redeemable in fifty years. The road to be constructed in the most complete and finished manner, and to be a first class road. Proposals to be advertised for and the work given to the lowest responsible bidder. The rest of the bill, containg 14 sections, is occupied in the various details of the above general provisions.

HOUSE.—The House resumed the consideration of the Senate Coinage bill.

Mr. Dunham continued his remarks in favor of the bill, and in answer to the objections to the seigniorage clause.

Mr. Jones of Tennessee followed in opposition to the measure, which he denounced as a piece of the veriest charlatanism. Pending his remarks the House proceeded to the business on the Speaker's table.

The Senate amendment to the bill granting the right of way to the Missouri Railroad was concurred in.

A good substitute for small change are post office stamps, which many individuals now use. Keep yourself supplied with them, reader, if you do not desire to be put to the greatest inconvenience in making small purchases.

A gentlemen writing from St. Petersburg, in December, says "A universal thaw prevails throughout Russia—all the ice is broken up—the weather mild and close, and a deluge of rain falling. In consequence the sledges in common use as this season are abandoned for carriages, where boats are not required."

GOLD.—The amount of gold entered at the New York Custom House for the month of January, which includes three mail steamers from California, was about $5,340,000. By letters received by the last steamer, it was supposed, on account of the very heavy rains which had prevailed, that the coming in of the miners would be prevented for a time, and the remittance by the next steamer would be light. The effect of these surface washings will be beneficial hereafter.

IMPORTANT DECISION.—The Cayuga Lodge case, I. O. O. F., which has for some time been pending in the Supreme Court of New York, on demurrer, has been decided in favor of the plaintiffs, on all the points involved in the issue. The principal question was whether the Courts will recognize and enforce the trust created by the constitutions of the Order, or in other words, whether the articles of that association are recognizable and enforceable by the judiciary. The decision of the Court sustained the position assumed by Cayuga Lodge, and overruled the demurrers interposed in behalf of the members who withhold the funds contributed for the objects of benevolence and charity. It is therefore, an important decision, not only to the Order of Odd Fellows, but to all similar societies, which are not incorporated. It recognizes their constitutions, and maintains that the Courts will enforce the trusts which they create.

Something New.
THE subscribers have been appointed Sole Agents in this City for the sale of W. B. Ross's PORTABLE BED CHAIR (Patent applied for.)—A new and desirable article for Invalids suffering from Rheumatism, Dislocations, Headaches, and other complaints to which the human frame is subject. By means of this Chair being attached to Bedsteads of any kind, the patient may be raised or inclined at any desired angle or comfortable position, with perfect ease and without any handling of the patient. It is truly an article which should be in every house, as its trifling cost places it within the means of all.
The public are requested to call and examine it.
BROWN, TREADWELL & CO.
Jan. 1, 1853. 35 Market street.

"PORTLAND, Dec. 26, 1852.
I have been exceedingly pleased with Mr. W. D. Ross's Portable Bed Chairs. The case with which they can be put upon any bed, and raised or lowered when so placed, seemed to render them far superior to any article of the kind I have ever before seen. GILMAN DAVIES, M. D."
"I fully concur in the above recommendaton of Mr. Rose's Bed Chairs. E. CLARK, M. D."

AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.

PATENT METALLIC

LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.

THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.

The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.

☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.

FEMALE PHYSICIANS.

BY FANNY FERN.

The Boston Journal strongly advocates the introduction of females into the ranks of the medical profession. We consider the need of a much more appropriate weapon in the hands of a woman, than the scalpel or bistaory.

Do you? Just suppose yourself a forlorn sick bachelor, in the upper story of some noisy boarding house, whose inmates don't care a pinch of snuff whether you conclude to get well, or die. Suppose you've watched that spider in that corner weave his web, till you are quite qualified to make one yourself; suppose you have counted for the thousandth time, all the shepherds and shepherdesses, distorted little dogs and crooked trees, on the papered wall of your room: gnawed your finger nails to the very quick, and twitched your moustache, till every hair stands up on its own responsibility. Then—suppose just at the last gasp, the door opens, gently, and, (not a great creaking pair of boots containing an oracular, solemn M. D., grim enough to frighten you into the church yard) but a smiling, rosy cheeked, bright eyed, nice little LIVE woman doctress, hey?

Well, she pushes back her curls, throws off her shawl, (Venus! what a figure!) pulls off her glove, and takes your hand in those little fingers. Holy Mother! how your pulse races! She looks at you so compassionately from those soft blue eyes; lays her hand on your forehead, and then questions you demurely about your 'symptoms,' (a few of which she sees without any of your help!)

Then she writes a prescription with those dainty little fingers, and tells you to keep very composed and quiet, (just as if you could!) smooths the tumbled quilt—arranges your pillows—shades the glaring sunlight from your aching eyes, with an instinctive knowledge of your unspoken wants; and says, with the sweetest smile in the world, that, she'll call again in the morning; and so—the last fold of her dress flutters through the door; and then you crawl out of bed the best way you can—clutch a looking-glass to see what the probabilities are that you have made a favorable impression! inwardly resolving (as you place yourself between the blankets) not to get quite well as long as she will come to see you! Well, the upshot of it is, you have a delightful and lingering attack of the heart complaint!

For MYSELF, I prefer prescriptions written in a masculine hand; shan't submit my pulse to anything that wears a bonnet!

FISHERIES OF THE DISTRICT OF GLOUCESTER—The editor of the Gloucester Telegraph has taken pains to collect the statistics of the Fisheries of the District of Gloucester This district consists of the great fishing port of Gloucester, which has over three quarters of the business of the entire district, and the out ports of Manchester, Rockport and Annisquam.

The total number of vessels employed was 357 schooners, (of which Gloucester had 275,) manned by 2,650 men and boys.

Mackerel, 53,257 bbls, value	$452,000
Codfish, 85,000 quintals,	290,000
Halibut, 4,500,000 lbs.,	112,500
Hake, Pollock, &c.,	43,000
	$908,500—

about nine hundred thousand dollars being the total product of the fisheries of the district of Gloucester.

This aggregate greatly surpasses that of any district in the U. States, with the exception of Barnstable county, which comprises the whole of Cape Cod, with some 15 or 20 towns.

The port of Gloucester, besides its great fisheries, has a very large domestic and foreign trade, and its foreign imports rank the third in this State.

BEHIND THE TIMES.—The Alton (Ill.) Telegraph gives the following account of Western travel, in those unfortunate localities not yet blessed by the introduction of the rails:

"The stage came in yesterday in a deplorable fix from Jacksonville. The body and hind wheels were left behind, perhaps in some muddy hole up country, opposite some anti-railroad man's door Upon the front axletree was lashed a crockery crate which contained the Jehu, his mails and three passengers.—The whole concern looked as though it had searched the bottom of every quagmire in the country, and brought away a sample of its composite and fertilising qualities."

ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA.—The Minnesota Pioneer of the 13th Jan. says:—

St. Paul wears a lively appearance these days, and looks like an old town. Our churches are well attended, and we have many private parties and balls. The holidays were respected with a truly Eastern devotion.—Just at this time of the meeting of the Legislature, there is an unusual number of persons from various points. The scene presented of a sunny winter's day about these times, in Third street, would be interesting to a stranger just set down from the Gideon stage.—Loaded teams, almost crowd the way, and livery teams, driven by fast men, are threading their way among squads of politicians and lookers on. The crowd of people, is made up of Americans, from the various States, of Canadian French, of half-breds and Indians. Some wear the European costume, some the frontier fashions, which among a numerous class, consist of a cap, cut according to the shape and size of the varmint from which it was taken, with coat and pants fastened by a girdle, and moccasins to their feet. The Indians usually wear the blanket. In such a crowd one will hear the language of the English, the French, the German and the Sioux.

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.
PORTSMOUTH:
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1853.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

It it well known that the State of Maine, a few years ago, passed a law, requiring all persons who should be sentenced to death by any Court of that State, to be kept at hard labor in the State's Prison for one year, and thereafter until the Governor of the State should see fit to issue a death warrant, for the execution of the sentence on the criminal. The effect of the law has been, that no person has been hung in the State since the law passed,—and with this effect we believe the people of the State are quite content. At any rate, we have seen no fault found with it in the newspapers; nor have we seen any intimation that crime in general, or capital crime in particular, has increased in consequence. We presume that no persons in Maine have any idea of seeing it repealed.

Last year, when the Coalition were in power, Massachusetts passed a similar law, which we here copy, and which went into operation May 20, 1852.

SEC. 1. When any person shall be convicted of any crime punishable with death, and sentenced to suffer such punishment, he shall, at the same time, be sentenced to hard labor in the State Prison, until such punishment of death shall be inflicted.

SEC. 2. And no person so imprisoned shall be executed, in pursuance of such sentence, within one year from the day such sentence was passed, nor until the whole record of such proceedings or case shall be certified by the clerk of the court which passed the sentence, under the seal thereof, to the Governor, nor until a warrant shall be issued by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Council, under the great seal, with a copy of the record thereunto annexed, directing the sheriff of the county, in which the trial was had, to cause execution to be done.

This year, early in the session, the Hon. Samuel D. Parker, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee in the Senate, introduced a bill repealing this act; the bill passed the Senate, and is now before the House. But on Thursday, Feb. 3, Mr. Lord of Salem, from the Judiciary Committee, reported that the Senate bill concerning persons under sentence of death ought not to pass.

This looks as if the Judiciary Committee of the House were disposed to keep the law as it is, until it shall have a fair trial; and we cannot but hope the House will be as wise.

The Boston Transcript says, "We hope the House will refuse to take this step backward; inasmuch as it is one, against which humanity protests, and which the public interest does not demand. We regret to see the movement for the repeal of this humane and unobjectionable law: we have not heard one good reason as yet for its repeal. If, as some contend, there are verbal errors or omissions here, let the law be amended; but the provisions against precipitate executions remain."

We have great confidence in believing that Massachusetts will retain the law, and that New Hampshire will enact something like it.

PATRIOTIC.

The Boston Courier says, in an article on Political Prospects:

"What the country wants is a good government, and we have charity enough to believe that there is a chance for it under the new administration. At any rate we hold it to be our duty to abstain from all attempts to preoccupy the public mind with hostile feelings toward a new and untried set of rulers, who, for aught we know to the contrary, may discharge their functions in a manner deserving the commendation of every good citizen. The time has gone by, we hope, when the interests of the country are to be made subordinate to the shadows connected with party names."

The good time has come, then, or will come on the fourth of March. We also hope and believe that the government will be respectably administered by the new president and vice-president—but we do not consider Pierce and King exactly in the light of new and untried rulers. The latter gentleman's sickness and approaching death, however, set him aside—and with the former, "the shadows connected with party names" come very near being substance. Gen. Pierce, at home, in New Hampshire, has been one of the most thoroughly exact leaders in the democratic party. And we have seen no intimation, either from himself or his friends, that he regards that party or its interests as a shadow; or that he intends, all at once, to treat the differences between Democrats, Whigs and Free-soilers, as mere shadow or moonshine. When we see any thing of this kind, we will make a note of it.

THE CUSHING GUARD, (Newburyport Artillery) are to celebrate their seventy-fifth anniversary on the 22d inst., Washington's birth day, by a public parade, oration, dinner, and levee at City Hall, Newburyport, in the evening. Hon. Henry W. Kinsman has accepted the invitation to deliver the address. This corps was organized in the winter of 1777 and '78, during the contest of the Revolution, and is now the oldest military organization in Massachusetts, excepting the Ancient and Honorable Artillery of Boston.—Newburyport Union.

For the Chronicle.

SANDWICH ISLANDS AND ISLANDERS.

Messrs. Editors:—In the Chronicle of Jan. 26, I find reference made to a pamphlet entitled "The Sandwich Islands as they are, not as they should be; by Mrs. E. M. Willis Parker." In this pamphlet, which purports to present a statement of the writer's knowledge of those Islands, and of the condition of their inhabitants, a view is presented which is utterly at variance with the unquestionable testimonials of advancement and civilization received with every recurrence of intelligence therefrom,—notwithstanding the authoress has endeavored to make it appear that this intelligence is sent by the missionaries to "cheat their supporters at home."

Now I believe that every ingenuous mind which has been directed to the progress of events in those Islands for the past few years, will readily perceive the fallacy of those charges; and while I would by no means charge the writer with wilful misrepresentation, I must regard her as singularly and grossly incorrect.

But, Messrs. Editors, it is not my design here to introduce the great amount of indubitable evidence of advancement received from the Islands, for which I have neither the time nor you the space, and in comparison with which, alone, the simple negative testimony of Mrs. Parker must by common judgment be completely outweighed; but I would adduce the high standing, as a class, of those natives of the Sandwich Islands who have emigrated to our own land, and sought their homes in the El Dorado of America. It has been stated to me by individuals from New England who have resided and travelled extensively in California, that the Sandwich Islanders there, as a class, are in point of character and intelligence among the highest and best; that they evince an enterprising spirit, and a devotion and consistency in their religion, in comparison with which some adventurers who have gone thither from New England churches would suffer. A gentleman from Portsmouth, who had resided in California, and is now there, told us on his return to his relatives here, that during his stay in Sacramento and San Francisco, it was among his highest and purest pleasures to participate in the religious services of the Sandwich Islanders, and to be in their society. Such being the case, can it be that they represent a people who are "ignorant, vicious and priest ridden," and who "under no form of government would become valuable subjects." Common consistency denies it. JUSTICE.

FILIBUSTERING EXTRA.—The Democratic Review, in one of its recent filibustering articles, says "this continent is for white people, and not only the continent, but the islands adjacent; and the negro must be kept in slavery at Cuba and Hayti, under white republican masters."

"In some of our Western states, they have a cant phrase something like this, "Talking is talking:—but do you think you can do it?" Now we would commend this saying to every man who thinks on the one hand that a whole nation of slaves or serfs can be converted at once into real freemen,—or on the other, that a nation of freemen are easily made slaves. France gave to Hayti a kind of freedom, but when she essayed to take back the boon, resistance took place, stern, murderous and dreadful—and it went beyond resistance; it became extermination to the whites.

Since that terrible event, the intense hatred which then existed, is softened down by time and friendly intercourse—but the feeling of jealousy toward the white man still remains—and the idea of his domination there would set all Hayti once more in a flame.

THE BURNING OF A DRUG STORE.—We have already mentioned the burning of Messrs. Henshaw, Edwards & Co.'s Drug Store in Boston, on Thursday morning, Feb. 3. When the fire was first seen, it was supposed it could soon be put out; but the gases which were generated by the burning gums, resins, &c. became so offensive and suffocating, that the firemen had to stand back for some time, and thus the fire got head-way.

In the next store, occupied by Ellis, Merriam & Co., Iron Merchants, Mr. Richard S. Martin, one of the Engineers, came very near losing his life from suffocation. He had gone up in the upper stories to ascertain if the fire was breaking through. Shortly after, being missed, search was made for him, and he was found lying upon the stairs insensible, from the dense and poisonous smoke which had made its way through from the burning building. After being brought to the air, he soon recovered, though much exhausted, and experiencing a soreness about the lungs.

A fireman, exhausted by labor, drank a large draught from a bottle, which he supposed contained wine. It proved to be filled with ipecacuanha, which soon excited violent vomiting. He was so weakened by the emetic, that he had to be carried home.

The New York Times calls "Billy Bowlegs" of Florida, "Mr. William Crookshanks."

LOCAL.

GREAT FALLS & ELIOT RAILROAD.

The meeting held at the Court House in this City last evening, to consider and act on the building of this Road, was of an encouraging and spirited character.

The meeting was called to order by John Knowlton, Esq. Wm. H. Y. Hackett, Esq., was chosen Chairman, and Samuel Storer, Esq., Secretary.

The Chairman, on taking his place, made an appropriate speech, setting forth the advantages of the proposed Road, its feasibility, and the smallness of the amount required in addition to the present subscriptions. The whole cost is estimated at $100,000; of which only about $25,000 remain to be taken by the people of this city.

Speeches were also made by Messrs. Hobbs of Wakefield, Barker of Rochester, Jenkins, Jenness, Goodwin, Robinson, Drown, Nowell, Odell and others, of Portsmouth; all highly recommending the construction of the Road, both for the profit of the owners, and the benefit of the city.

A committee of five were then appointed to procure subscriptions for the remaining stock, and the meeting was dissolved.

For the Morning Chronicle.

CATHOLIC SERMON.

Messrs. Editors:—Seeing a notice of the Catholic regulations for Lent, in Friday's Chronicle, your reporter thought an abstract of the sermon delivered last Sabbath at the Catholic Church, might prove interesting to some of your many readers.

After going through the usual Morning Service, the Priest commenced his sermon; the principal part of which was not delivered in parables, but in plain terms, adapted to the comprehension of his hearers.

He commenced with stating the amount of "material aid" he expected them to contribute. Said it was perfectly immaterial to him whether they lent him the money, or paid in advance on their pews; but the money must be forthcoming immediately. He would sit in the vestry and hear confessions, after mass; and those who desired, might pay their proportion then ($10 each.) Said he frequently heard accounts of money being lost or stolen among them, but if it was placed in his hands it would be perfectly secure.

He gave them the regulations for Lent similar to those published yesterday. Then the evening or "night school" as he termed it, was brought in question. Said he told them a year ago they should not go to that night school. There were many among them, half idiotic girls, who could not find time to go to confession, but could dress up and go to that night school. He was going there himself, and would learn their names; they should be announced in church, they should be expelled, and be eternally damned. They should belong wholly to him, or he would renounce them forever. He had authority and would be obeyed. He was responsible at a Higher tribunal for all they did, and it was his duty to see they were not led astray. A HEARER.

☞ We call attention again to Mr. Gerry's advertisement in another column. His success in this city, thus far, is complimentary to him as an Artist, and to those who have patronized him. Mr. Gerry is a young gentleman of liberal education, of excellent scholarly and artistic taste, and refinement, and therefore in all that distinguishes the true artist from the great mass who engage in the same pursuit, he is immeasurably their superior. He has not taken up this profession hastily and without due preparation, but after years of patient study and careful training.—Mr. G.'s class is already large, but we would suggest to the young ladies and gentlemen of this city and vicinity not to overlook the opportunity of acquiring an art which may be to them a source of great pleasure, and perhaps profit.

ACCIDENT.—A man by the name of Thomas Grimes, back-tender of one of the printing machines in the Cocheco Print Works, had one of his hands badly crushed Thursday forenoon. It appears that he either slipped, or made a false step, and in attempting to save himself, put forward his left hand, which caught in a blanket, suddenly drawing it between two rollers of the machine, crushing it in a shocking manner.—Dover Gazette.

The National Intelligencer concludes an an article on the two groundless rumors with regard to Sonora and Samana, which were thought to authorize a war with France to assert the "Monroe doctrine," as follows:

The journals from Paris brought by the last steamers, contradict the Samana report in the broadest terms. Desirous of putting the matter beyond doubt, we have made inquiry in the proper quarter, and we learn that official intelligence has been received from Mr. Rives, that it is utterly destitute of foundation. He has been assured by the Imperial Minister of Foreign Affairs that it was a fable from beginning to end. Not a single French vessel-of-war was at Samana or in its neighborhood at the time of the reported occupation, and no orders or instructions had been issued to authorize such a proceeding.

SEWING MACHINES.—Over one hundred of these machines are employed constantly in Lynn, in binding shoes for that place alone.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.

We learn from a gentleman who attended the Convention at Concord on Thursday, that the meeting was unanimous in the opinion that a prohibitory law against the sale of spirits, similar to the Maine Law, is called for by the circumstances of the State, to diminish pauperism and crime. The meeting, however, was called together somewhat hastily, and there was not sufficient time in the day of the meeting, to adjust every part of the modus operandi. The principal items of business therefore, were placed in the hands of committees, and all minor details were referred to the County Conventions hereafter to be held.

SALMON.—A fine salmon, a rarity at this season, was taken near Sutton's Mills, in Andover, on Monday last, and disposed of in Salem. The salmon is seldom caught in that locality.—Salem Register.

The new comptroller in New York city has given notice that he will pay no tea bills. He is perfectly willing that the Aldermen should eat and drink and smoke to their utmost corporate capacity, but says they shall not do it at the expense of the city, so long as he holds the purse strings.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

FROM CUBA—GREAT FIRE AT CARDENAS.—New Orleans, Feb. 2.—The steamer Black Warrior arrived at Mobile, two days from Havana. There had been no new cases of small pox during the fortnight preceding the sailing of the steamer.

A large fire occurred at Cardenas on the 19th, and destroyed a great amount of property, including Sugar and Molasses warehouses, Custom House, theatre, &c. Loss estimated at half a million not including produce.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

SENATE.—The bill to reorganize the Navy was taken up.

Mr. Stockton moved sixty-six amendments, which he said had received the sanction of the two Committees of Congress on Naval affairs, and of the Navy Department. The bill was discussed by Messrs. Stockton, Hale, Hunter, and Mallory, when all the amendments were adopted, and the bill ordered to be engrossed.

The bill authorizing registers to American built vessels, owned wholly or in part by persons who have not completed their naturalization, was passed.

The Pacific Railroad bill was taken up, the question being on Mr. Brodhead's substitute.

Mr. Weller denied that there was anything in the bill creating a monster corporation, surpassing, in its overshadowing influence, the United States Bank.

Mr. Bayard replied by reading the 13th section.

Mr. Weller rejoined. He said when he spoke of the bill he did not know of the contents of the 13th section. He however believed that the bill did create a monster corporation, and that under the power given to it by this bill, it would have the right to issue millions of paper money. Unless the bill were modified in this particular, he could not vote for it.

Mr. Davis got the floor, when the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—Mr Johnson of Tennessee resumed his remarks in opposition to the coinage bill. The debate was continued.

APPRAY IN WASHINGTON.—The Washington Republic states that an affray occurred on the night of the 2d inst., near the National Hotel, in which James W. Schaumburg shot Edward W. Fuller, a clerk in the Census Office. The ball entered Fuller's side, causing what is supposed to be a mortal wound.—Schaumburg made the attack upon Fuller unawares. The cause of the attack is said to be that Fuller had published a card, calling Schaumburg a liar, swindler and coward.—Schaumburg was arrested, and is now in prison. From the nature of the wound it is thought that Fuller will only survive a very short time.

A Washington despatch of Feb. 3, says,

Fuller, who was shot last evening, was living to-day at noon, but his physician says he cannot recover. He has a wife and five children.

Schaumberg is a native of Louisiana, and was formerly a Lieutenant in the United States dragoons. He is a resident of Philadelphia, where he has a wife, the sister of Col. Page, ex-postmaster, and one daughter. He delivered himself up and was committed to prison. His counsel are Senators Hale, Cooper, Soule, and Richard S. Coxe.

Fuller two days ago enclosed a copy of his abusive handbill to Schaumburg, threatening if he did not pay his demands to post him and ruin his reputation. Schaumburg paid no attention to this threat, and Fuller did post him in gross terms, hence the recontre.

Fuller formerly kept a hotel here. Schaumburg was visited in prison to-day by Senators Soule, Bright, Dodge, Jones of Iowa, and Atchison, who offered to become bail for him, and render any other service in their power.

A despatch from Washington states that Joseph Gales, the veteran editor of the National Intelligencer, is dangerously ill.

DEATH OF SEARS C. WALKER.—The Cincinnati Gazette of Tuesday has a notice of the death of the above-named gentleman, who had achieved so high a reputation as an astronomer, and who died on the 30th of January, at the residence of his brother, Judge Walker, on East Walnut Hills, near Cincinnati. The Gazette gives the following sketch of him:—

Sears C. Walker was born at Wilmington, Mass., on the 28th of March, 1805; graduated at Harvard University in 1825; taught a private school in Philadelphia for several years; was for a considerable period actuary in the Pennsylvania Life Insurance Company; a short time attached to the National Obsevatory, but for several years preceding his death one of the assistants of the coast survey.

A letter dated Genoa, Jan. 9, says:

"Hon. George P. Marsh, U. S. Minister in Constantinople, and wife, have also just come in from Vienna. Mrs. M. is now confined to her bed with the indisposition under which she has suffered for a long time. He awaits advices from Washington concerning the Dr. King affair at Athens. Gen. Sumner passed through Naples a few days since, with despatches."

CHOKED TO DEATH.—A shoemaker named Isaac Shefer, who occupied with his wife and four children, a room in Lower Meidelburg, met his death, last Saturday evening, in the following singular manner. He went to the cupboard for the purpose of getting a piece of pudding to eat. While thus occupied his wife left the room for a few minutes, and on her return found him upon his knees, between the cupboard and bed, dead. He had been choked to death by a piece which stuck in his throat.—Reading Pa., Gazette.

EXPLOSION OF GUNPOWDER.—William Kent, of Ludlow, placed a couple of cans of powder in an unoccupied stove, about a year since, and forgetting that he had done so, last week kindled a fire in the stove, which he soon found blown to pieces, the windows of the room torn out, and the roof of his house started off from its position. Mr. K. was fortunately not injured, although siting beside the stove when the exposion took place.

Thermometers.
IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.

Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 398,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.

This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.

The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the market of Boston.

Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers

Coal Burners
OF a new and elegant pattern, designed for the parlor, hall, or office, may be found at CHAPMAN'S TIN WARE FACTORY.
In simplicity of construction, beauty of outline, and style of finish, it is unsurpassed by any Coal Stove in the market. It is so constructed that the entire contents of the grate can be instantly discharged into the ash-pan while the stove is closed air-tight, so that no dust can escape into the room to the annoyance of persons or damage of furniture. Its exterior model is of the most chaste and faultless character, rendering it by for the most attractive stove that can be introduced into the parlor or sitting room. For sale cheap at the sign of the Big Coffee Pot, Daniel street, where it may be seen in operation.
Also, for sale as above, one pattern of Hapgood's celebrated HOT-AIR PARLOR GRATE. f3

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE
IN FRAMINGHAM, MASS.
THE house heretofore known as the FRAMINGHAM HOTEL, situated in Framingham Centre, Mass., having been put in complete and thorough repair throughout, is now offered for sale. The main house is 100 feet on the street, 60 feet of which has a piazza, and contains 30 rooms, including a large hall; has a large and dry cellar, Ice House, and the best of water. The whole premises have been occupied the past year as a private residence, during which time many improvements have been made in and about the house and grounds, the front yard having been enclosed, set with large trees, and grassed. The house is well calculated for a genteel Boarding House or Hotel, for which it is much wanted; and the Board of Education have decided to remove the State Normal School, now located at West Newton, to Framingham, the site for which is only a few minutes' walk from the premises, makes this property particularly desirable for this purpose, as it will secure, in connection with boarders from the city, a profitable business the year round.
It is also desirable as a private residence, having every convenience as such, and being situated in close proximity to the Common, several Churches, High School, (free,) and only a few minutes' walk from the depot. The size of the House, to any one having a large family, would not be objectionable, as the hall and other parts could be fitted up in a manner which would add much to the convenience and comfort of a residence in the country; or a part of it could be so used, and the remainder let, without inconvenience. To persons, therefore, in pursuit of property for either of the above purposes, or for investment, an opportunity offers rarely to be met with. Terms of sale will be liberal, and possession given at any time.
For further information, apply by letter or otherwise, to L. WIGHT Framingham, or in Boston to J. K. PORTER & CO., 27 Water st.

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.
IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed Agent of the United States Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th section of the Act of 1837.
Having relinquished the agency for the transmission of models, and adopting a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent can be procured several weeks earlier, he continues to forward them, as before, free of expense, and to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe.
The subscriber aims to present to inventors superior facilities for obtaining patents; and is now prepared to make Specifications at rates cheaper by ten to twenty per cent. than those of other agencies. They can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.
R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any, persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skillful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"PATENT OFFICE,
"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.
"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent. I am very respectfully,
Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I STILL LIVE!"

The last words of Daniel Webster.

BY MRS. L. H. SIGOURNEY.

"Still I live?" The leaves were falling
Round the mansion where he lay;
And autumnal voices, calling,
Warned the summer's pride away;
While the sighing surge of ocean
In its crested beauty ran,
Breaking with a ceaseless motion,
Like the fleeting hopes of man.

"Still I live?" O, strong and glorious
Were those prophetic words of cheer;
For whether in truth victorious,
Greatness hath its worship here,
Patriot power its high ovation,
Eloquence its lofty birth;
He shall win from every nation,
An undying name on earth.

"Still I live?" The flesh was failing,
All in vain the healer's skill,
Light in that deep eye was paling,
And that mighty heart grew still;
Yet the soul, its God adoring,
Clad in armor, firm and bright,
O'er the body's ruin soaring,
Mingled with the Infinite.

Where he sleeps, that man of glory,
Marshfield's mournful shade can say;
And his weeping country's story,
Darkened on that funeral day;
But the love that deer est listened
Caught such balm as Heaven can give;
For an angel's pinion glistened
At the echo—"Still I live!"

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS
AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.

PATENT METALLIC
LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.

THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.
The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.
☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.
Specimens of the article may be seen at the office of the subscriber.

A CALMUC TALE, TRANSLATED FROM THE RUSSIAN.

A rich old man, who resided at the extremity of the camp, quite apart from the rest, had three daughters, the youngest, of whom, named Kookju, was as much distinguished for her beauty as for extraordinary wisdom.

One morning as he was about driving his cattle for sale to the Chan's market-place, he begged his daughters to tell him what presents they wished him to bring them on his return The two eldest asked him for trinkets; but the handsome and wise Kookju said she wanted no present, but that she had a request to make, which it would be difficult and even dangerous for him to execute. Upon which her father, who loved her more than the two others, swore that he would do her wish, though it were at the price of his life. "If it be so" replied Kookju, "I beg you to do as follows; sell all your cattle except the short tailed ox, and ask no other price for it except the Chan's left eye." The old man was startled, however remembering his oath, and confiding in his daughter's wisdom, he resolved to do as she bade him.

After having sold all his cattle, and being asked for the price of the short tailed ox, he said he would sell it for nothing else but the Chan's left eye. The report of this singular and daring request soon reached the ears of the Chan's courtiers. At first they admonished him not to use such an offensive speech against the Sovereign; but when they found that he persevered in his strange demand, they bound him and carried him as a mad man before the Chan. The old man threw himself at the Prince's feet, and confessed that his demand had been made at the request of his daughter, of whose motives he was perfectly ignorant; and the Chan, suspecting that some secret must be hidden under this extraordinary request, dismissed the old man, under the condition that he would bring him that daughter who made it.

Kookju appeared, and the Chan asked: "Why didst thou instruct thy father to demand my left eye?"

"Because I expected, my Prince, that after so strange a request, curiosity would urge thee to send for me?"

"And wherefore dost thou desire to see me?"

"I wish to tell thee a truth important to thyself and the people."

"Name it!"

"Prince," replied Kookju, "when two persons appear before thee in a cause, the wealthy and noble generally stand on thy right hand, whilst the poor and humble generally stand on thy left. I have frequently heard in my solitude that thou most frequently favorest the noble and rich. This is the reason why I pursuaded my father to ask for thy left eye; it being of no use to thee, since thou never seest the poor and unprotected."

The Chan, incensed and surprised at the daring of this maiden, commanded his court to try her. The court was opened, and the president, who was the eldest Lama, proposed that they should try whether her strange proceeding was the effect of malice or of wisdom,

Their first step was to send to Kooju a log of wood, cut even on all sides, ordering her to find out which was the root and which the top? Kookju threw it into the water, and soon knew the answer, on seeing the root sinking, whilst the top rose to the surface.

After this they sent her two snakes, in order to determine which was a male and which was a female. The wise maiden laid them on cotton, and on seeing that one coiled herself up in a ring whilst the other crept away, she judged that the latter was a male and the former a female.

From these trials the court was convinced that Kooju had not offended the Chan from motives of malice, but the inspiration of wisdom granted her from above. But not so the Chan; his vanity was hurt; and he resolved to puzzle her with questions, in order to prove that she was not wise. He therefore ordered her before him, and asked:

"On sending a number of maidens into the wood to gather apples, which of them will bring home most?"

"She," replied Kookju, "who, instead of climbing up the trees, remains below and picks up those which have fallen off from maturity or the shaking of the branches."

The Chan then led her to a fen, and asked her which would be the readiest way to get over it, and Kooju said, "to cross it would be the farthest, going round nearest." The Chan felt vexed at the readiness and propriety of her replies, and after having reflected for some time, he again inquired:

"Which is the safest means of becoming known to many?"

"By assisting many that are unknown."

"Which is the surest means of always leading a virtuous life?"

"To begin every morning with prayer, and conclude every evening with a good action."

"Who is truly wise?"

"He who does not believe himself so."

"Which are the requisites of a good wife?"

"She should be as beautiful as a pea-hen, gentle as a lamb, prudent as a mouse, just as a faithful mirror, pure as the scales of a fish; she must mourn for her deceased husband like a she-camel, and live in her widowhood like a bird which has lost its wings."

The Chan was astonished at the wisdom of the fair Kookju; yet, enraged at her having reproached him with injustice, he still wished to destroy her.

After a few days he thought he had found the means for attaining his object. He sent for her and asked her to determine he true worth of all his treasures; after which he promised to absolve her from malice in questioning his justice, and to admit that she intended as a wise woman merely to warn him.

The maiden consented, yet under the condition that the Chan would promise her implicit obedience to her commands for four days. She requested that he would eat no food during that time. On the last day she placed a dish of meat before him, and said, "Confess, O Chan, that all thy treasures are not worth as much as this joint of meat!" The Chan was so struck with the truth of her remark that he confessed the truth of it, acknowledged her as wise, married her to his son, and permitted her constantly to remind him to use his Left Eye.

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.
PORTSMOUTH:
MONDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1853.

NOTES ON NEWINGTON.—We present our readers to-day, with a brief additional article on Newington, from the pen of a descendant of "old minister Adams." This was brought out, doubtless, by the publication of our former article, and may, in its turn, bring out more anecdotes from some other quarter:

For the Chronicle.

NEWINGTON HISTORY.

Messrs. Editors:—I have been much interested in the brief sketch of Newington history with which you have recently favored your readers through the columns of the Chronicle. This ancient town being to me a very sacred ancestral place, I feel all the more obliged to you on that account, for the historical notice aforesaid.

The chief man of the town, it seems, for many years in olden time, was Rev. Joseph Adams. His ministry in Newington was a remarkably long one—about sixty-seven years. It occurs to me that I have read of but one other ministry of longer duration in New England. That was in the settlement of Rev. Nathan Buckman, a native of Malden, Mass. He was settled at Medway, Mass., the second pastor there, December 29, 1724, and died February 6, 1795, having sustained the pastoral relation to the church more than seventy years.

Mr. Adams is said to have been a man of very respectable talents. In the prime of his ministry he was the veritable guardian of his flock, and his ministerial sovereignty was quite sensibly felt and generally acknowledged. In conversation with some of the elderly people of the town, I have had his person brought very vividly before me,—his authoritative face, and white wig, and blue cloak, as he rode on horseback to meeting; and his venerable appearance in the pulpit, in the last days of his life. Some anecdotes are preserved illustrative of his self-complacency. In praying for a person dangerously sick, who had desired the prayers of the congregation, he prayed very earnestly that the man might be prepared to die; for, said he, "We, O Lord, who are skillful, know there is no possibility of his recovery."

At a meeting of the Association of Ministers, at Portsmouth, Mr. A. made the prayer, in which he took occasion to introduce the horses mentioned in the Revelation, but becoming suddenly embarrassed while speaking of the white horse, he closed the exercises abruptly. One of his brethren afterwards observed to him, that, at his time of life, he should be particularly cautious in mounting strange horses, if he would avoid a fall.

The descendants of Mr. Adams are quite numerous. Some are in Newington, others in Portsmouth, Gilmanton, Barnstead, and Seabrook; also in Massachusetts and other States. He had two sons; Benjamin, afterwards a deacon of his church, and Joseph, who studied medicine, but declined medical practice, and was invited to divinity, but declined that also. He was known by the people of his day as "Doctor Jo." He removed from Newington to Barnstead about 1792.

Sometime after the death of Mr. Adams, Rev. Mr. Langdon was settled in Newington. His ministry, for some reason, did not seem to prove so easy and successful as that of Mr. Adams. The congregations, it is said, became so exceedingly small under him, that he was known to have preached sometimes to the sexton and one other man, for an audience. He kept his place, however, doubtless considering it his duty to preach, prophet-like, "Whether men would hear, or whether they would forbear."

The old meeting house, as I remember to have seen it in my early youth, was one of the ancient monuments of New England puritanism. The present alterations of it I care not to think of. My memory plays around that old spire, standing up alone on that elevated ground, against the clear sky, and the old sounding board, and the tomb under the church in which the remains of the venerable minister Adams reposed. I have thought of that church and the grave yard near it, many a time, when I have read or called to mind the words of Gray's Elegy:

"Each in his narrow cell forever laid,
The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep."

The spot whereon the meeting house stands is one of the pleasantest in the region. That mountain scenery, stretching away to the north, is charming; and the view of those waters, too, that come rounding out of Great Bay into the Piscataqua. And the shores of that same Great Bay are among the most attractive of all places I have yet seen in New England. Were they within ten miles of Boston or New York, they would have been lined with superb dwellings before this time. My respects to old Newington, to her living and her dead!

J. G. A.

Malden, Mass.

The Saugus Branch Railroad is completed, and the cars ran on Wendesday, for the first time, from West Lynn to Boston.

A WEEK LATER FROM EUROPE.

By the steamer Canada, we have Liverpool dates to Jan. 23. The news is interesting. Cotton has advanced 1-4 to 1-8; Breadstuffs duller; Bank interest raised.

The steamship Atlantic, from New York, January 8th, arrived out at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of the 20th ultimo, and City of Manchester about an hour afterwards.

Mr. Wm. Mason of Boston, pianist, has appeared with success in London.

Nearly two million sterling in gold is reported shipped from Australia to England since previous advices.

ENGLAND.—Apprehensions are evidently felt, though not admitted, of a coup de main of Napoleon 3d against England. Among other symptoms, it appears government had been making inquiries of the various railroad companies how many men and horses and munitions of war they could carry to any specified point, in case of emergency. Arrangements are making also to have the regular troops and militia available at a moment's notice. A large military station is to be formed near Birmingham, and no more regulars are to be sent from home at present. In the navy yards the greatest activity prevails.

Robt. Ferdinand Pries, charged with the immense forgeries, has had a hearing and been remanded.

FRANCE.—The news, to the exclusion of all else, is the Emperor's marriage to Madamoiselle Montego. It has taken Paris by surprise and is unfavorably received by the Bonapartists. Mademoiselle is a Spaniard, 25 years old, a blonde, and granddaughter of the British Consul at Malaga. Her mother is an Irish woman named Fitzpatrick. Her father, a younger son of a Spanish family, who fortunately, by the death of his eldest brother, succeeded to the titles of Count Montego, and duke of Teba and Penamando. Her sister is duchess of Abba, and Mademoiselle is herself Countess of Teba. Proposals for her hand were formally made by the Emperor on Sunday last, and of course accepted. Next day the happy bridegroom communicated to his Ministers that his determination was taken and that is was a marriage of affection. One report says that the ministers, except one, resigned—but the Emperor refused to accept their resignation. The government statement is that they assented, as did the diplomatic body. It is said the civil marriage has already taken place, and that the religious ceremonies will be held on the 29th inst.—on which occasion Prince Napoleon Jerome will espouse the daughter of the Prince of Wagram, granddaughter to Marshal Berthier.

The Senate, Legislative body and Council of State are summoned to-day, (22d,) at noon, to receive a communication from the Emperor relative to his marriage. Simultaneously with these matrimonial schemes, has taken place a disastrous fall upon he Bourse, but the government organs assert there is nothing in the state of the country either financially, commercially or politically, to cause distress.—They attribute the fall solely, and probably truly, to the check put to Wild's speculation, and say that when the reaction thus caused shall have restored things to a proper level, funds will be in harmony with that which the Pays calls the general prosperity.

Nevertheless the Bourse on Wednesday (19th) was more depressed than since the December coup d'etat.

Twenty line of battle ships, (screw,) eighteen frigates, and fifteen smaller ships of war, are building in the French navy yards.

Mr. Napier, ship-builder on the Clyde, recently received orders for sixteen frigates from France, but the British Admiralty cancelled the order, and gave him similar orders for English vessels.

Government has before it proposals for three lines of transatlantic steamers—one to Brazil, another to Mexico Gulf, and the third to New York.

Accounts of the floods in the departments are deplorable. The Loire, Little Moselle, Aisle Villaine, and other rivers had overflowed, doing great injury to the towns and farms along their banks.

A severe storm happened at Dunkirk, 15th. A mast with an American flag attached, was seen floating at sea.

Paris corn market unchanged since December. Business departments quiet with barley. Rice and Oats declining.

ITALY.—The Tuscan Moniteur officially contradicts the death of Francisco Maidai, and says that every body knows that the prisoners confined in the prison of the Grand Duchy are treated with kindness, humanity and philanthropy.

AUSTRALIA.—The overland mail brings Sydney dates to October 16th, Melbourne 25th, and Adelaide to November 6th. Flour at Melbourne and Sydney 40 to £57 per ton; four-pound loaves, 2s. 6d.; gold, £3 7s. 5d. to £3 10s. 6d. per ounce.

Large emigration continues. The news from the diggings were of a mixed character, some doing well, many dissatisfied. Farm labor very scarce. Sydney papers apprehend temporary inconvenience if supplies of breadstuffs do not arrive from America and Great Britain. A steamship arrived at Port Philip November 12th, and left the Cape October 17th.

☞ Gustave Krollman, (the violinist, and husband of Miss Mary Shaw, so well known in the musical circles of New England and New York,) died at Berbice, in the West Indies, on the 20th December last. He was well and favorably known as a fine musician and a master of his instrument. Mrs. Krollman is now on her way to this country.

LICENSE LAWS.—The present Mayor of Boston, with the Aldermen, take the old ground of licensing respectable hotels and dealers in spirits for the public good. In the Common Council of that city, on Thursday, Mr. Kelley offered an order "that the Mayor and Aldermen be requested to adopt such measures for the suppression of unlicensed tippling shops in our city as will prevent our streets from being daily filled with drunken men, women and children"—which, at his request, was laid upon the table.

LOCAL.

SPIRITUAL RAPPINGS—THE PEST.—We have received a communication with this title, for which we have not room to-day,—in which the author considers the rappings a "delusion." We do not expect to discuss this subject at large; the spirits are apt to be long-winded, and some of the unbelievers also. But when we publish the communication, we have a fine article from a medium, which is to appear with it.

For the present, let us only state the fact, that the French Academy have just offered a large award for the discovery of the laws that regulate the phenomena of spiritual manifestations.

FAIR JUDGMENT.—A correspondent, himself a Protestant, sends, under this head, some remarks on the report of a Catholic Sermon, by "a Hearer,"—in which remarks he speaks of denunciations of the Catholic services, &c. But if he will give "a Hearer's" report a careful reading, he will perceive that it does not contain one word of praise or blame, applied to any person or thing whatever—but it is what it purports to be, a mere and very brief report of a few things which were said and done, put down by an eye and ear witness.

DECLINATION.—The Portsmouth Journal of Saturday, has a good story, (a true one,) about a poor man who pledged his umbrella and clothes, to pay a debt, but never paid it when winter came, the creditor, moved by pity, sent the clothes to the debtor, who very naively wrote back that he had forgotten to send the umbrella. The Journal applied this story, in a jocose way, to the free democracy, who have Tuck in the first district, and Perkins in the third, as candidates, and then say, in one of their papers,

"The whigs in the second district have nominated for Congress Aaron P. Hughes of Manchester. Should he withdraw in favor of Mr. Preston, Mr. Morrison, the hunker democratic candidate, would be allowed to stay at home."

This puts the Journal in mind of the umbrella. Now, by way of postcript, we see that Mr. Hughes has declined. So the whigs have sent home the umbrella—a very wise act indeed, in these cloudy days, when politics are about as wet and foggy as the weather.

For the Chronicle.

SANDWICH ISLANDS.

Messrs. Editors:—In reference to Mrs. Willis Parker's strictures on the Sandwich Islands, recently referred to in the Chronicle, we would say a word upon the credibility of the witness. The book was handed to us several months ago, by a friend of the lady herself, who had felt a great interest in her fortunes or misfortunes. He spoke of her as a brilliant, ambitious, disappointed woman, who left San Francisco for Honolulu in quest of employment; where not meeting with the encouragement she expected, and failing to receive all the attention and respect which she conceived due to her, returned to California and published her pamphlet, which savors more of bitterness than good will; and seems more like a petty outburst of resentful feeling than a calm portrayal of the lights and shades of society at the Islands; for life there, as well as here, has undoubtedly its shades, and faithfully to portray either the one or the other, requires a candid, discriminating and genial spirit.

NAVIGATION IN A FOG.—This is a most bewildering business: the sense of seeing leads the navigator astray. Thursday was a very foggy day here, and boats in the harbor did not in every case land in the right place at the first trial. In Boston harbor, the Courier says the harbor ferry boats were enveloped in the fog which fell upon the water, and they encountered various mishaps. The darkness upon the boats was such that persons could not see each other at a distance of a few feet. The East Boston Ferry Company kept up a noise by triangles on each slip, to direct the steersmen of the boats.

The Traveller of Thursday evening says, the passengers by the first train over the Eastern Railroad were detained at East Boston by the breaking of the piston of the Eastern car boat. One of the East Boston ferry boats, the Maverick, took the passengers and started for the Boston side. After running for some time it was found, by the sound of the cars just leaving, that the boat had got headed for East Boston again. The boat was put about, and finally made Lewis' wharf in the vicinity of the Ferry.

AMERICAN ANNEXATION.—The Liverpool Journal says—

"We see only a natural movement, the eventual successful result of which is obvious, in the cry for the acquisition of Cuba; and it is idle in England attempting to check an inevitable development of the influences created in the Union by the existence of slavery. At any rate, the history of England being a history of annexations, we, in our press and in our conversations, should be more scrupulous in our comments on the conduct of the States."

"Among other facts we have to face is this—that the United States are rapidly passing us in most things which bespeak genuine national greatness."

A STORY SPOILED.—A sentimental and religious story has been going the rounds, at intervals, for many years, of a scene between the celebrated Ethan Allen and his dying daughter, in which she is represented as asking him whether she should continue a deist, as he taught her, or become a christian according to the teachings of her departed and sainted mother, to which he tearfully replied, believe as your mother taught you.

The Biddeford Journal says, the whole story is a sheer fabrication, and as proof of it, states the fact that the old hero's daughter's all survived him,—referring to Sparks' Life of Allen, and to men who knew the family, as authority.

THE MUSICAL REVIEW.—We have received the January number of the Musical Review and Choral Advocate, published monthly, at New York, by F. J. Huntington, and Mason & Law, and edited by E. M. Cady. It is printed on new type, and very fine paper, and contains a large amount of interesting and instructive musical information. As this is the first number of a new volume, it would be a convenient time for those in want of a musical paper to subscribe. Price $1 per year, in advance.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

RUMORED STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION.—New York, Feb. 5.—A letter from Havana, of the 20th ult., to the Journal of Commerce, says it was currently reported in that city that the British screw ship of the line Highflyer blew up off Jamaica, and 400 lives were lost.

COMMODORE STOCKTON.—Washington, Feb. 5.—It is understood here that Commodore Stockton contemplates resigning his seat immediately after the passage of the navy reform bill.

U. S. SENATOR IN MAINE.—Portland, Feb. 4.—There was no choice to-day at Augusta, and further balloting was postponed to next Thursday.

ACQUITTED.—A telegraphic despatch from Albany states that Solomon, one of the Jerry rescuers, has been acquitted.

HONESTY REWARDED.—A day or two since a gentleman of Boston was so careless as to leave a package containing $5000 in a car on the Saxonville Branch Railroad. Luckily for him an honest brakeman on the train discovered it, and promptly returned it to the owner, who did not forget to present the finder with $100.

We observe by the London papers that her Majesty, Queen Victoria, is patronizing amateur dramatic entertainments at Windsor Castle. She invites an "illustrious" circle to dinner, and after this the play is performed.

SAD RAILROAD ACCIDENT—TWO LIVES LOST.—As the express train of the Harlem Railroad, which left Albany at 3 1-2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, reached the curve within a quarter of a mile of Croton Point, the engine was thrown from the track by a piece of rock, which is supposed to have fallen from a ledge. The engine was thrown landward upon the rocks, while the tender took the other direction, and was dashed into the river. Fortunately the coupling between the tender and the other cars parted, so that the passenger cars were not upset, although thrown off the track. The engineer was crushed beneath the engine. The fireman thrown under the trucks and killed. His body was shockingly bruised. The passengers escaped without serious injury, and arrived in town at midnight.—New York Times.

Week before last, a woman imposed upon Mr. Wm. H. Krouskop, at Chicago, Ill., the story that she was the wife of a wealthy manufacturer in Massachusetts, was accidentally left there without friends, and prevailed upon him and his wife to go with her to Worcester, all at his expense, and borrowed money of him, on pretence of furnishing him employ in her husband's factory. Nobody owned her when she arrived at Worcester, and Mr. Krouskop found himself without the means of punishing the lying jade unless he took her back to Illinois.

FIRE IN BOSTON.

THE BACHELORS DISTURBED.—The well known hotel on Washington street, Boston, the Adams House, caught fire on Friday evening, Feb. 4, about 10 o'clock, when the flames burnt through the roof of the rear wing or the building. The fire, which originated in a room in the fourth story, spread with great rapidity, and in a few minutes the entire roof was in a blaze. There being no yard room, the firemen were greatly embarrassed in their operations. They managed to get a hose in play in the rear of the Melodeon, which had a tendency to check the contagious element; but these efforts did little towards extinguishing it. Finally, water was conducted through the main building with more success, and after the destruction of the upper story of the wing, the fire was extinguished.

The fire commenced in one of the upper rooms, probably in consequence of a defective flue, and then, burning upwards, between the plastering, circulated among the upper timbers. The furniture was injured in hasty removal and by the water thrown upon it. The wing was occupied mostly by permanent boarders, many of whom were present and rendered assistance in extinguishing the flames.

The greatest consternation prevailed among the transient boarders; and excited women bearing in their arms their lisping infants, followed their amazed husbands to the street. For a time the utmost confusion reigned; but the encouraging voice of the firemen that there was "no danger," soon inspired confidence, and the affrighted travellers returned to their temporary home again.

The Adams house is owned by Mr. Daniel Chamberlain. The main building is insured for $40,000, and the wing in which the fire occurred is insured for $20,000, which will more than cover the loss. Mr. Chamberlain renewed his policies at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. Mr. S. B. Robbins, the landlord of the Adams house, has $12,000 insurance on his furniture.

12 o'clock. The ceilings of nearly all the rooms in the rear part of the hotel have been so loosened by water, that it will be necessary to replace them. That of the dining-hall fell in a solid sheet about 12 o'clock. The carpetings are badly damaged, and the combined loss to the building and furniture will not fall far short of $15,000.

The occupants of the portion of the house burned were mostly bachelors, and though a majority of them have passed the enticing age, all of them could have had comfortable quarters at the homes of friends and neighbors.

Thermometers.
IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.
Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 398,) and other scientific gentlemen, in giving examination this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.
This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.
The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.
Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers

ROYAL LIFE.

The Emperor Nicholas breakfasts on a cup of tea and a rusk; dines on a little fish, a cutlet or a chop, with a biscuit and a glass of sherry and water. In the evening he takes a cup of tea. He suffers from an internal disease, and is obliged to be abstemious.

Then what is the use of being an Emperor, after all? With a table loaded with every luxury, with cellars stocked with the choicest wines, he is obliged to live as moderately as a man with an income of a thousand dollars a year, and save a glass of sherry and water, he might as well be under the Maine law as to be the Emperor of all the Russias. He can make law for his subjects as he pleases; but nature has made a law that is as binding upon him as upon the meanest serf in his dominions. He may put to death those who disobey his laws, but he disobeys with equal peril those under which he lives. A good appetite and health to make its gratification safe, would be poorly exchanged for imperial honors.

The best gifts of God are free to all his creatures. The free air of heaven, the pure water that springs from the earth, taste as freshly and as sweetly to the poor man as to the rich. Exercise invigorates him, sleep refreshes him, the beauties of nature delight him as well, and in this happy country, at least, the power of intellectual improvement is as great. As humanity progresses, the difference between an Emperor and a common man grows less and less.—Providence Journal.

THE ART OF BEING BEAUTIFUL.

IT has long been a desideratum that some scientific man should apply himself to the study of the human scalp. Dr. JACOBY, the great Pathologist, from Berlin, has done this, and in this new field has attained the most brilliant results.—Satisfied by an analysis of the red colored alcohols and other washes, of their deleterious effects, he compounded his celebrated Berliner Haar Wasche, to the efficacy of which thousands of witnesses might be summoned, of the accompanying character:—

Boston, Jan 1, 1848.

This is to certify that I have had an article called the Berliner Haar Wasche applied during the past five or six weeks to my head, for the purpose of renewing and strengthening the hair. It has been very effective in producing such a result; and I can cheerfully recommend the same to those afflicted with baldness or diseases connected therewith. JONAS CHICKERING.—

It frequently happens that ladies suffer from hair eaters, and apply some of the nostrums prepared by apothecaries, who think, because they can make pretty good washes for water, they can prepare good hair wash. The effect of these is often highly injurious. Ladies, use none of them,—consult Dr. Jacoby, who will eradicate the nuisance and guarantee a beatiful head of hair. His motto is, no cure, no pay.

To those at a distance, the Champoo Washer Nos. 1 and 2, and Haar Wasche, are recommended.—There is, however, no universal specific, and all persons troubled, should if possible see Dr. Jacoby.

In the course of his scientific research, Dr. Jacoby has discovered a Hair Dye that does not stain the skin, will give any shade of color, and will stand exposure in all weather. The accompanying certificate, from a highly scientific source, must satisfy the most incredulous.

Boston, Nov. 18, 1851.

CHARLES T. JACKSON, M.D.,
Assayer to the State of Mass.

Dr. Jacoby's rooms are at No. 9 Franklin street, Boston, where he may be consulted at all hours.—There are always in attendance in both ladies' and gentlemen's rooms the most skilful hair dressers.
Boston, Dec. 16, 1852. M1aw3m

AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.

PATENT METALLIC
LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.

THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.
The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.
☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.
Specimens of the article may be seen at the office of the subscriber.

SPIRIT RAPPINGS—THE TEST.

The great dependence of the advocates of the Rapping delusion has been, and I believe still is, on the fact that after a certain (physical) process, material bodies, such as tables, &c., exhibit motion.

Now I do not know that there is a general or even partial questioning in regard to this fact; but its existence being admitted, I must allow that it proves something—and what does it prove? It proves what we all knew before in general terms, viz: that physical power is capable of producing certain physical results.

But that these operations will not bear the construction of being mediums of spiritual demonstrations, may be readily shown by the following test points, viz:

1. Miraculous spiritual demonstrations have no connection whatever with physical causes. While therefore the physical cause exists, viz: that of persons applying their hands &c., the movement of articles is no evidence of spiritual demonstration, although it may be evidence of the existence of a physical force which we may not be able to comprehend.

2. The laws of Spirit are infinitely above the laws which govern matter. If therefore it is said that a certain motion of materials is evidence of spiritual demonstration, I shall further ask the test question, why was not the motion prolonged?

The only answer that can be given, is, that the physical force being expended, the physical effect ceased. And it will also be found that this new so called "mystery" is hardly worth naming by the side of those vast physical operations which have been exhibited before mankind for thousands of years.

A few words further in relation to this "delusion." My belief is that it is one of the fruits of ignorance and weakness of mind; a want of ability to distinguish the natures and classify the different objects, causes and effects which present themselves to the mind; and to the like delusions will be perpetually exciting and swaying the minds of certain members of society until proper knowledge and discipline of mind and heart shall have become more general. Q.

As a proper accompaniment to the above, we present the following extract of an article from the Biddeford Journal, headed,

SPIRITUAL MANIFESTATIONS.

The editor expresses his opinion that many twenty-five cent mediums and their communications are unworthy of notice, and then adds:

But there are individuals, scattered through the country—people of innocent lives—men and women of high intellectual developement,—some of whom it has been our good fortune to meet, who are able quietly to pass into a state in which the ordinary activity of the corporeal faculties is slightly suspended for a time, and the internal instinct, the immaterial principle, the very soul itself, displays its untettered energies, independently of the material organs. Wordsworth, the true philosophical poet, very accurately described this mental condition. He calmly writes concerning this state, as one

In whom the burden of the mystery,
In whom the heavy and the weary weight
Of all this unintelligible world
Is lightened: that serene and blessed state
In which the affections gently lead us on,—
Until the breath of this corporeal frame,
And even the motion of our human blood
Almost suspended, we are laid asleep
In body, and become a living soul:
While with an eye made quick by the power
Of harmony and the deep power of joy,
We see into the life of things.

It is not in the "tippings" and "rappings," and like developements, that the men who have given attention to this subject, find the evidence of its spiritual origin; but it is in the character of the communications that are received through these well developed mediums, in private, quiet home circles. If you would know whether these things are from above or below, meet with the broken family about the desolated hearth-stone, and as you listen to the words of love and heavenly wisdom, with which the spirit of the departed shall console and draw upward the hearts and affections of those bereaved ones, you may be able to judge of the origin of these manifestations, and of their value to poor, doubting, shivering, troubled human hearts.

Such of these developements as would command the attention of men of reason and intelligence, rarely come to the public through the newspapers. They are kept in the bosoms of families, as among the household sanctities with which a stranger may not meddle. For this reason we may not give our readers the main facts upon which we found our belief in the spiritual origin of a portion of these developements and communications. We will give two or three facts, (not the most convincing we have noticed, but such as we are at liberty to talk about with the public,) that have fallen in our way, which are not easily to be explained on any other supposition, than that of their spiritual origin.

In the family of one of the most distinguished doctors of divinity in New England, is a little innocent, guileless grand-daughter, of thirteen years of age, who is a "writing medium." This clergyman has a brother-in law, who in his lifetime was a distinguished schoolmaster in Boston, and especially known as a very beautiful penman, as well as accomplished teacher of that branch of education. A few days ago, a son of this writing master, called at the clergyman's house to seek an interview with his father, through this little girl. The child took the pen in her hand, holding it with curled up fingers as is common with children, when presently her fingers were straightened out, and the pen held as by a master, her fingers being brought into that position, as she averred, by an unseen hand, grasping her own with a man's strength; and immediately she commenced writing, in a style of penmanship of perfect uniformity and rare beauty, and absolutely in the very style of the old master, whose name was signed to the same, it purporting to be a message from him to his son who sat by.

On one occasion, after holding on hour's intercourse through the means of the rappings, with an intelligence that purported to be the spirit of a very dear friend, we asked if the spirit would write its name, thinking if this should be done in the style with which the friend wrote in his lifetime, it would be absolute evidence to our mind of his presence.

He consented to the test. We took a sheet of paper from a ream that no man had meddled with since coming from the paper mill, laid it, with a pencil, upon an open book, and then gently pressed it against the surface of the table, the hand resting upon the outside of the book—and the name of our friend was written in the same beautiful style of his life time.

On another occasion, during an interview with this friend, still doubting if it was really our friend with whom we were conversing, we asked for some absolute demonstration of his presence, and asked that we might know that he was with us, through our sense of touch, and never did the warm grasp of that friend's hand, when it pulsated with life, send through our heart stronger sense of his presence, than did his repeated touch, at this request, upon our forehead.

A friend of ours in deep grief at the recent death of the dearest of earth, sitting with two or three friends in their little home-parlor, their thoughts upon the sad bereavement, when a pencil was seen to rise from a table in the room, and without any visible agency, moved back and forth upon a sheet of paper which without any arrangement chanced to lay in its neighborhood. Upon examining the paper, when the pencil had ceased its movements, it was found to exhibit a very affectionate and consoling message to this widowed heart, written in the husband's bold hand, and to which his name was subscribed, followed by another message from another friend in the land of spirits, full of choice words of kindness and sympathy and faith, written also in the style of this friend's peculiar penmanship, (entirely differing in its appearance from the other written upon the sheet) and to which also the friend's name was appended.

A few weeks since, among our acquaintance, was a friend suffering very severe and alarming sickness. The friends who stood about the bed, fearful for the issue, were told that the spirits of a number of friends of the sufferer were with them, to aid, by their counsels and the electrical influences they could exert upon the body and spirit of the patient, in staying the ravages of disease. A relative of the sick one, who in his life-time was a distinguished physician, announced his presence and that with him he had Priessnitz, the great German founder of the Hydropathic system of treating disease.

They took the care of the patient, ordering all the details of the treatment, instructing the nurses with a care that embraced and looked after all the minutiæ of their duties,—the treatment changing and modifying with the prognostics of the disease; until, after a few hours of this watchful treatment, disease yielded its mad sway, and

"Gentle sleep, Nature's soft nurse,"

came with rest for the weary sufferer, and in a few days health bloomed upon the faded cheek.

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH:
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1853.

MORMON DOMESTIC LIFE.

The New York Herald published recently, for the informtion of the incredulous, an official confession on Mormon polygamy, from Orson Pratt, a high priest of the Mormons, and commissioned by the Prophet Brigham Young, as the missionary apostle of the Latter Day Saints, for the conversion of the heathen, at the city of Washington. This was widely copied, and parts of it were copied here.

From the Seer, a periodical published by Elder Pratt, in the said city, we have some additional light thrown on the same subject. He says, that "Brigham Young, just now, is the only man on earth who holds the keys to minister the ceremony of marriage for time and for all eternity." He then proceeds to state, that notwithstanding a man's wife may be hostile to the introduction of another into the family, she must show good reasons for it to the Prophet, or her complaints will not pass muster. Of the various wives and children which may constitute a Mormon family, Elder Pratt says:

There is no particular rule as regards the residence of the different branches of a family. It is very frequently the case that they all reside in the same dwelling, and take hold unitedly and with the greatest cheerfulness, of the different branches of household business, eating at the same table, and kindly looking after each other's welfare, while the greatest peace and harmony prevail year after year. Their children play and associate together with the greatest affection, as brothers and sisters; while each mother apparently manifests as much kindness and tender regard for the children of the others as for her own.

And morning and evening, when the husband calls together his family to worship the Lord, and call upon his name, they all bow the knee, and, with the greatest union of feeling, offer their devotions to the Most High.

It is sometimes the case that the husband provides for his wives separate habitations, as Jacob did for his four wives, each of whom had a separate tent. (See Genesis, 31: 33.) Where all the wives are equally faithful, the husband generally endeavors to treat them all without partiality.

These statements are not made by opponents, but by Mormon apostles. What their social state will soon become, may be easily imagined, by any persons who study human nature.

The Herald "trusts that the government wil not much longer tolerate these things. They are in open defiance of the laws and social institutions of the whole country—they are an outrage upon common decency—a monstrous outrage upon woman's rights to a husband of her own—and ought to be abolished before they lead to the disasters of civil war. We trust that General Pierce will not overlook the Mormons. They must conform to the laws. It is time they were taken in hand."

The taking in hand is easier told of than done. The great error in regard to the Mormons, was committed by both Houses of Congress, when, in their zeal to make something of the omnibus bill, they erected their settlements into the Territory of Utah! And this grand error was followed up by another error, only its second in grandeur, when President Fillmore placed the civil authority in the hands of Brigham Young. By making him Governor of Utah, who was already the High Priest and Dictator of the Mormon Church, he completely united Church and State within that territory. The effects of these errors have already begun to show themselves, in the difficulty between the Judges and Gov. Young—and they will reappear in divers forms.

The mischevious union above stated, will prove an obstinate evil to deal with. Neither Mr. Fillmore nor his successor can dissolve it peaceably. Suppose some strong man not a Mormon, should be appointed, vice Brigham Young—what authority could he exercise over those besotted, priest-ridden fanatics, in any respects wherein he should oppose the rescripts of their priestly and saintly lawgivers? Just exactly so much as he had bayonets to enforce, and no more. We don't believe Gen. Pierce will stir up such a hornet's-nest, unless it should be forced upon him by some outbreak; but will slur the matter over as his illustrious predecessor has done, if he can.—That there will be trouble with the Mormons, in a few years, and bloodshed between them and their neighbors, no one can doubt, who has studied their history and character.

THE SHOOTING CASE.

A Washington despatch of Sunday says, Mr. Fuller had a favorable change to-day. His pulse yesterday rose to 140, and to-day it fell to 105. Some hopes are entertained of his recovery.

From the Washington papers it appears, that, several years since Schaumburg boarded at Fuller's, now Willard's, Hotel, kept by A. Fuller & Co. When the firm became insolvent he was indebted to it several hundred dollars, and has so continued. Applications for pay, made by the surviving partner, Edward H. Fuller, have been disregarded by him, on the ground that the debt was due, not to Mr. Fuller, but to the trustees under the insolvency. Mr. Fuller, nevertheless, pursued the claim, and in an altercation on the subject, some two years ago, with Schaumburg, personally chastised him. This circumstance was matter of general notoriety at the time, and got into the newspapers.

The immediate cause of the shooting was the appearance of large placards on Monday morning, posted in the vicinity of all the hotels, headed "James W. Schaumberg, a liar, a coward, and a swindler," and which contained a statement tending to show and prove Schaumberg to be guilty of lying, cowardice, and swindling, interspersed with many other opprobrious epithets.

A former telegram says, "public sentiment here, many think, demanded the act. Many of Schaumberg's friends were cutting his acquaintance in consequence of Fuller's unanswered publication. Both were in the prime of life, and were well known to the community."

This is a sad affair, altogether. The public sentiment which demands assassination, must be corrupt and wicked. If the charges of lying, swindling and cowardice were true, shooting the accuser does not make them false.—The proper remedy for the handbill (in any decent place) would be a libel suit, wherein the facts could be brought out.

A debtor may be so unfortunate or so improvident as to owe debts which he is unable to pay; and such an one ought not to be surprised or greatly indignant if his creditors should say unpleasant things, or even become abusive and unjust, as mean men sometimes will. Still less may the debtor shoot his creditor, as in this case. On the other hand, the creditor's conduct, in chastising the debtor, would not be deemed, in this region, a very likely way to procure a payment which the law could not enforce. But the manners and morals at Washington differ from ours.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

SATURDAY, Feb. 2.

SENATE.—The Senate Navy bill was read a third time and passed.

Mr. Davis introduced the bill to regulate the rights of fishing and the rights of disposing of the proceeds of the fisheries in and between the British North American Provinces and the United States. He said he was unwilling the Session should pass off without the introduction of some measures, and desired that the bill might be printed; it was referred.

It provides that whenever the President shall be satisfied that the American fishermen are admitted to the privileges of British residents in the Provinces, with all the incidental rights of curing and preparing for market the proceeds of such fisheries, both on water and land, then he shall issue a Proclamation, authorising fishermen of the British Provinces like privileges in the waters of the United States, together with the privilege of entering the ports of entry on payment of the same dutics which are required by law of American fishing vessels, provided that the act shall in no way affect the rights of property.

The Arkansas Rail Road bill was then taken up. Mr. Underwood moved to add Mr. Bennett's Land bill, but upon an appeal being made to him, he withdrew it, and the bill was passed.

Several bills relative to the army were taken up and made the special order for Saturday next. After some other miscellaneous proceedings, the Pacific Rail Road bill was taken up.

Mr. Butler spoke in opposition. Mr. Bell replied.

HOUSE.—The House after debate passed a resolution providing for the printing and binding of the Census report—117 to 34.

SILVER COIN.—The New York Herald remarks, that in Congress last week, another lengthy discussion came off in the House of Representatives relative to the coinage question; and adds, "There seems to be a great diversity of opinion respecting the propriety of this measure. Scarcely any three members think alike so far as regards its various features, and the probability now is that it will hardly be carried in its present shape."

Perhaps it will not pass at all. If nothing is done by Congress on the subject, silver will almost disappear from circulation as money, and be passed round among the brokers as an article of merchandize; while paper in some form or other, will do its office after a fashion. The post-office stamp, the fractional bank note, and the trader's shin-plaster, will all rush in to fill up the vacuum.

The National Intelligencer concludes an article on the two groundless rumors with regard to Sonora and Samana, which were thought to authorize a war with France, to assert the "Monroe doctrine," as follows:

The journals from Paris brought by the last steamers, contradict the Samana report in the broadest terms. Desirous of putting the matter beyond doubt, we have made inquiry in the proper quarter, and we learn that official intelligence has been received from Mr. Rives that it is utterly destitute of foundation. He has been assured by the Imperial Minister of Foreign Affairs, that it was a fable from beginning to end. Not a single French vessel-of-war was at Samana or in its neighborhood at the time of the reported occupation, and no orders or instructions had been issued to authorize such a proceeding.

☞ Hon. Richard H. Ayer, a distinguished citizen of New Hampshire, died at Manchester on Saturday evening, in the 75th year of his age.

LOCAL.

REV. THOMAS STARR KING.—It will be gratifying to the many friends of this young divine, to learn that arrangements have been made by the management of our Lyceum, to have him lecture before them this evening.—Mr. King emigrated from Portsmouth. His school education was completed at the school of W. C. Harris, Esq. He has earned his own reputation by close application and perseverance. As a preacher no one comes among us that is listened to with more profound attention, and as a lecturer there are few who can so engage attention as can he.—The older members of our community will be happy to meet him as "a worthy son of a worthy father," while the younger will greet their youthful friend and companion. *

☞ We are requested to state that unexpected pastoral engagements will prevent Rev. T. S. King from preaching at the Universalist Church on Wednesday Evening, as announced.

☞ A meeting of the Stockholders of the Portsmouth and Concord Railroad, will be held at the Court House to-day at 10 o'clock. See advertisement.

☞ Mr. Gerry's School for the instruction of a new class in the art of Two-Crayon Drawing, is to commence this day. See advertisement.

BISHOP IVES.—Some of our readers may remember that we hazarded the enquiry, a few days since, whether the Rt. Rev. gentleman were sane or otherwise. This inquiry is answered by the Churchman, which is edited by Rev. Mr. Hudson, (a gentleman who lectured in this city lately.) After announcing the secession of Bishop Ives from the Protestant to the Roman Catholic Church, the Churchman remarks: "His well-known infirmity forbids us either to wonder at the deed, or blame the man: in his case we may say with peculiar emphasis—'Forgive him, for he knows not what what he does.' Those who have known him longest and best, need not be told that his course is justly attributable to a most pitiable predisposition which renders him at times irresponsible for what he does. In his healthier periods he has himself been aware of this, and our readers will remember how, not long since, he begged and obtained that indulgence and commiseration which his constitutional infirmity would not suffer to be withheld."

COOL AND POLITE.—The Louisville Courier gives the following account of a cool transaction, which took place in that city during the height of the fire, and when all thought the entire building would be laid in ashes:

It occurred between Mr. Moore, clerk at the hotel, and one of the boarders. The latter, carpet-bag in hand, descended from the third story, which was all in flames, and, marching up to the clerk at the office, around whom the hot cinders were dropping, told him that he believed he would move his quarters, and wanted to know how much his bill was.—Moore turned to the ledger, counted it up, made out the bill, took the money, and politely bowed him out, at the same time expressing his regret at his sudden departure.

CAUSES OF INSANITY.—According to the report of the Superintendent of the Ohio Lunatic Asylum, there are at present confined in that institution, twenty-six victims of the "spirit rappings" delusion, the number being equally divided between males and females. He says they are strangely suicidal.

In the same report, seventeen men and five women are set down as insane on account of "religious anxiety."

The Bible, in the following sentiment, has a pretty good idea of that pest of society, a tale-bearer: "Set a watch over thy mouth, and keep the door of thy lips, for a tale-bearer is worse than a thief."

So says a paragraph which is going the rounds of the papers—but the Bible does not contain any such sentence. It is a fine specimen of Home Made Scripture—much better than the average.

Governor Brown of Florida, has vetoed the bill passed by the legislature of that state, providing for the removal of the Seminole Indians.

WHAT OFFAL IS WORTH.—In the case of Michael Kelly, who applied for an injunction against the Mayor and Common Council, to restrain them from enforcing an ordinance passed 12th April, 1852, relating to the removal of offal bones from the city, Judge Woodruff, in the Common Pleas, on Monday, gave an opinion, denying the application.—Plaintiff among other things, set forth that the amount paid by himself and others engaged in the business, amounts to $100,000 a year, and the proceeds of their sales to $250,000.—New York Expresss.

It is common in the East to see stout Arabs spinning and knitting, and their wives building hovels and digging canals.

☞ The Shepherd of the Valley, a Catholic paper of St. Louis, holds the following language:

"The foot of Napoleon is upon the necks of the enemies of God, and his throne crushes them. May his foot remain firm then, and his throne steady, we beseech Heaven on our knees."

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

New York, Feb. 7.—The steamship Atlantic, from Liverpool 26th ylt., arrived at this port at 10 o'clock this morning. She brings 50 passengers.

The weather in Great Britain is more settled. The rain does not appear to have much damaged the prospects of agriculture.

FRANCE.—Louis Napoleon's speech about his marriage.—Napoleon has informed the Officers of State of his approaching marriage. His speech is an able document. He says he conforms to the nation's wish and marries, but in the choice of a partner casts away old political traditions and royal alliances, and substitutes family interests for nation. Besides it is humiliating to go begging for a wife. For 700 years past, foreign princesses have ascended the French throne, only to be unhappy, except Josephine, and she was not of royal blood. He sneers at Austria jumping at an alliance with Napoleon the First, and sarcastically alludes to Louis Philippe's long chase after wives, instancing the Duchess of Orleans, a princess of third rate rank.

For himself, he says he does not want any monarch's alliance. He frankly admits he is a parvenu—but a parvenu elected by a great nation, and is therefore determined to select a wife to please himself; so being more free, he will not be less strong. The lady is a Catholic, and endowed with every virtue. He says he will soon, at Notre Dame, present her to the people and the army.

The speech made quite a sensation. The Bourse fell, but recovered. The marriage is appointed to take place on the 30th.

The Empress' name is Eugenie. She is of Scotch not Irish descent. The brothers' family name is Kirkpatrick, not Fitzpatrick.

BELGIUM.—The king has discharged all foreign officers from his army.

ITALY.—Another Madiai case has occurred at Genoa. The victim's name is Daniel Mazzinghi, a surgeon, who has been sentenced to three years imprisonment for the crime of preaching.

The Pope is reported to be seriously ill of apoplexy.

A company of Genoese merchants had been formed for the establishment of a line of steamers to sail monthly between Genoa and Montevideo. The capital is to be £10,000,000.

TURKEY.—The Turks are pursuing their operations vigorously against the Montenegroes.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.—Dates received are to Dec. 20th. Large shipments of provisions are making to Australia.

SHOCKING DEATH.—A man named Thomas Roberts, teamster in the employ of Joshua Roberts, truckman, was found dead early Monday morning in the stable of his employer, in Hudson street, Boston, nearly opposite the Engine House.

The deceased was lying immediately behind a horse standing in a stall, and his head was found split open by blows in the face, whether from kicks of the animal, or other cause, a proper investigation will determine.

One of his hands was also badly mangled, apparently from having been trodden upon by the horse, which had also partially lain upon the body during the night.

Deceased was about 35 years of age, a native of New Hampshire, and has a wife now in the country. His employer is a relative.—Transcript.

The New York papers state that a considerable reduction has taken place in the price of household provisions in that city recently.—Butter has gone down to 20 cents a pound, and poultry and game of all kinds are unusually cheap.

Littlefield, the Janitor of the Medical College at the time of the Parkman murder, has just returned from California, where he has been for the last two years. He arrived in Boston last week.—He is $25,000 richer for his trip to the land of gold.

A Havana letter, dated January 29, contains the following:

"We have a painful report that the British screw ship of the line Highflyer blew up not far from Jamacia, and that 400 lives were lost! We cannot trace the rumor to any good source, but it is very prevalent."

JESSE HUTCHINSON TURNED FLOUR DEALER.—A letter in the Tribune dated at San Francisco, Jan. 1, states "that Jesse Hutchinson has gone into the flour business, and says he is fully impressed that it is his duty to endeavor to persuade every man, woman and child in California that they should eat unbolted (or Graham) flour bread which he calls the "Bread of Life," and is so eager to fulfil his mission that I have repeatedly met him on the street with a 50 pound bag on his shoulder, on his way to some new convert."

MAN SHOT.—Samuel Roberts, of Richmond, N. H., in a fit of intoxication, attempted to force an entrance into the house of his brother, when the latter discharged a heavily loaded gun at him, so badly wounding him that he died in a few days. The deceased was fifty years old, and leaves a large family. The brother that committed this violence, was protecting the inebriate's wife from the assault of her husband.

The Montreal True Witness, (Catholic) in a selected article on the threatened invasion of Great Britain, by Louis Napoleon, makes use of the following loyal language:—"Great Britain is the main stay of the enemies of God and Christ; she is drunk with the blood of martyrs; and in the approaching contest the powers of two hundred millions of Catholics throughout the world will daily and hourly ascend for her defeat."

The Camanche Indians, according to a letter from an officer of the United States army, stationed in Western Texas, are in an extremely deplorable condition. Being hedged in by military posts, the buffalo nearly all gone, and the deer driven across the lines, they are almost in a state of starvation.—National Intelligencer.

Thermometers.
IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.
Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 398,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.
This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.
The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.
Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers

Coal Burners
OF a new and elegant pattern, designed for the parlor, hall, or office, may be found at
CHAPMAN'S TIN WARE FACTORY.
In simplicity of construction, beauty of outline, and style of finish, it is unsurpassed by any Coal Stove in the market. It is so constructed that the entire contents of the grate can be instantly discharged into the ashes, while the stove is closed air-tight, so that no dust can escape into the room to the annoyance of persons or damage of furniture. Its exterior model is of the most chaste and faultless character, rendering it by for the most attractive stove that can be introduced into the parlor or sitting room. For sale cheap at the sign of the Big Coffee Pot, Daniel street, where it may be seen in operation.
Also, for sale as above, one pattern of Hapgood's celebrated HOT-AIR PARLOR GRATE. f3

PATENTS.

American and Foreign Office.

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS

With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,

No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed Agent of the United States Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th section of the Act of 1837.

Having relinquished the agency for the transmission of models, and adopting a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent can be procured several weeks earlier, he continues to forward them, as before, free of expense, and to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe.

The subscriber aims to present to inventors superior facilities for obtaining patents; and is now prepared to make Specifications at rates cheaper by ten to twenty per cent. than those of other agencies. They can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries: besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.— Assignments recorded at Washington.

R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skillful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"PATENT OFFICE, ——

"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.

"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent. I am very respectfully, Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,
Commissioner of Patents."

HOUSE AND LIFE PROTECTORS AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.

PATENT METALLIC

LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.

THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.

The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.

☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.

Specimens of the article may be seen at the office of the subscriber.

PASSED NOVEMBER SESSION, 1852.

AN ACT to raise seventy thousand dollars for the use of the State.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c. That the sum of seventy thousand dollars shall be raised for the use of the State, and shall be assessed, collected and paid into the treasury on or before the first day of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty three; and the Treasurer is hereby directed seasonably to issue his warrants to the selectmen of the several towns and places within this State, according to the apportionment of public taxes made out at the November session, A. D. 1852, and the selectmen and assessors of such towns and places are hereby required to assess the sums specified in said warrants, and cause the same to be paid into the treasury on or before the first day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, and the Treasurer is hereby authorized to issue extents for all taxes which shall then remain unpaid. Approved, Jan. 7, 1853.

AN ACT to sever a tract of land from the town of Canterbury and annex the same to the town of Loudon.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c. That the tract of land contained within the following boundaries, to wit: beginning at the east corner of Canterbury, near the house of William G. Leavitt, thence running on the line between Canterbury and Gilmanton to the centre of Rocky pond, so called, thence on said pond and the river running out of the same to Loudon line, thence on said Loudon line four hundred and eighty-nine rods to the place of beginning, together with the inhabitants living within said limits, viz.: Elijah B. French, Joseph French, Nathaniel Pease, Dudley Pease, William G. Leavitt and James Ellise, be and the same are hereby severed and separated from said town of Canterbury and annexed to and made a part of said town of Loudon, as fully and amply to all intents as though they had been contained in and comprehended by the original grant, charter or incorporation of said town of Loudon; and the inhabitants and the estates therein contained shall be considered liable in all future assessments for all legal taxes, as fully and amply, and in the same way and manner, as though they had been comprehended and contained within such original grant or incorporation, any usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided, nevertheless, that the inhabitants and non resident owners of land in the territory hereby annexed to said town of Loudon as aforesaid, shall be liable to pay all the taxes heretofore legally assessed upon them and their property, in the same way and manner as they would have been had not this act been passed.

SEC. 2 This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved. Jan. 7, 1853.

AN ACT in amendment of chapter one hundred and forty of the Revised Statutes.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c. That the clerk of the House of Representatives shall, as soon as may be after the printing of any report of the bank commissioners by order of the House, forward one copy thereof to the solicitor of each county, and to the attorney general. And it shall be the duty of said county solicitors and attorney general to lay before the grand jury for indictment all cases of violation, by any bank director, of the provisions of the forty-fourth section of the one hundred and fortieth chapter of the Revised Statutes, limiting the amount of the indebtedness of such director to his bank to one-half the amount of his stock in such bank.

Approved, Dec. 29, 1852.

AN ACT to disannex certain tracts of land from Hooksett and annex the same to Allenstown.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c. That all the portions of the homestead farms of Sterling Sargent and Charles C. Nichols of Allenstown, in the county of Merrimack, situated in Hooksett, in said county, be and the same are hereby disannexed from said town of Hooksett and annexed to the said town of Allenstown, and shall hereafter constitute a part of said town of Allenstown to all intents and purposes whatsoever.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Approved, Jan. 5, 1853.

AN ACT in addition to and amendment of chapter eight hundred and fifty-two ot the pamphlet laws.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c. That the legal voters of any village precinct, established according to the provisions of chapter eight hundred and fifty-two of the pamphlet laws, may by a major vote adopt chapter one hundred and forty-three of the pamphlet laws instead of chapter one hundred and eleven of the Revised Statutes; and chapter one hundred and forty-three of the pamphlet laws, when so adopted, shall apply to and be in force in such village precinct.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect from and after its passage. Approved, Jan. 7, 1853.

AN ACT to disannex Jacob Gile from school district number nine in Nottingham.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c. That Jacob Gile and his taxable property in school district number nine in the town of Nottingham, in the county of Rockingham, be, and the same is hereby disannexed from school district number nine in said Nottingham, and annexed to North River school district, so called, in the town of Lee, in the county of Strafford, for the purpose of schooling; this act to take effect from and after the first day of April, A. D. 1853. Approved, Jan. 7, 1853.

AN ACT to change the time of holding the Court of Probate in the County of Sullivan.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c. That a Court of Probate for the County of Sullivan shall be holden annually at Claremont on the last Wednesday of January, March, May, July, September, and November; and at Newport on the last Wednesday of February, April, June, August, October, and December.

SEC. 2. Section eight of chapter one hundred and fifty-four of the Revised Statutes is hereby repealed. Approved, Dec. 17, 1852.

AN ACT to establish the times and and place of holding the court of probate for the county of Cheshire.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c. That the court of probate for the county of Cheshire shall be holden at Keene on the first and third Tuesdays of each month. Approved, Dec 17, 1852.

AN ACT to disannex a portion of the town of Lyndeborough, and annex the same to Mont Vernon.

SEC. 1 Be it enacted, &c. That all that portion of the town of Lyndeborough, in the county of Hillsborough, contained within the following bounds, to wit: commencing at the northwest corner of Mont Vernon on the town line of New Boston, and running thence westerly on said town line to the southwest corner of New-Boston; thence south one degree east about two hundred and ninety-four rods to corner of land of Henry Clark; thence south three degrees west seventy five rods to a stake and stones; thence west thirteen rods to a stake and stones; thence south two degrees west one hundred and eighty-six rods to a stake and stones; thence east two degrees south fifty-three rods to the road; thence south on said road seventy-nine rods; thence east seven degrees south one hundred and sixty-three rods to a stake and stones; thence north seven rods to a stake and stones; thence east two degrees south thirty rods to a stake and stones; thence south ninety-four rods by west line of lands of William Cleaves and of the heirs of James Upton to the southwest corner of land of said heirs; thence east by the south line of said last-named land and land formerly of Asa Stevens one hundred and eleven rods to Wenright brook; thence southerly by said brook fifty-one rods to the highway leading by Robert Brown's; thence southerly by land of Noah Hutchinson and the brook aforesaid, being the westerly line of lands of John Carleton, James Hopkins, and Henry C. Dodge two hundred rods to the Warren pasture, so called; thence east thirty degrees south by said pasture about twenty-five rods to the northwest corner of Jesse Trow's pasture; thence southerly by the west line of land of said Trow, Jake Wilkins, James J. Averill, James Hopkins, and the Town's Farm, so called, two hundred and fifty-six rods to the southwest corner of said Town's farm; thence southerly by the Wenright brook aforesaid one hundred and sixty-seven rods to the southwest corner of land of Noah Hutchinson; thence east one degree south one hundred and twelve rods to the town line of Milford; thence north one degree west by said town line to the southwest corner of Mont Vernon; thence northerly in a straight line thirteen hundred and ninety-two rods to the bound first mentioned, be and the same is hereby disannexed from said town of Lyndeborough and annexed to and made a part of the town of Mont Vernon aforesaid as fully to all intents and purposes as though embraced within the original charter of said town of Mont Vernon.

SEC. 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage. Approved, Jan. 5, 1853.

AN ACT to alter the names of certain persons.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, &c. PORTSMOUTH:
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1853.

PORTSMOUTH AND CONCORD RAILROAD.

A meeting of the Stockholders took place at the Court House in this city, on Tuesday. The President, on taking the chair, stated the objects of the meeting, viz: to see if the stockholders would accept the new act of the legislature, in relation to their corporation; and to see if they would authorize the Directors to issue Preferred Stock.

An act of the Legislature was read, empowering the Company to issue $750,000 in Preferred Stock, and making various other provisions in relation to the Road; whereupon it was voted that the act be accepted. A vote was then passed, empowering the Directors to issue $400,000 in Preferred Stock, allowing 12 per cent. interest on the same. Persons holding 8 shares in old stock are permitted to surrender them, and on the payment of $100 shall receive two shares in Preferred Stock, and in like proportion for less or more shares. Bonds and Coupons may also be exchanged for this Preferred Stock.

An abstract of the Records of the Directors of the Road was read by the President. It appears that the Road has cost $1,031,000; that subscriptions have been paid amounting to $375,000; and that about $400,000 have been borrowed on time; and that the present liabilities of the road are equal to the balance, which will be much reduced in case the law suits now pending, (for $60,000) should be decided in their favor.

The Road was opened in August; but the receipts are stated, from Sept. 1, to Feb. 1, at $22,6000; and the expenses about $100 per day. The business is steadily and constantly increasing; more freight is offered than with their present means can be taken; and the present furniture of the road needs repairs and additions, requiring the immediate expenditure of $15,000. The statement was on the whole somewhat encouraging.

A committee of three gentlemen, viz. Messrs. Minot of Concord, and Simes and Hatch of Portsmouth, were appointed to examine the books of the corporation from the beginning, and to make a report on the proceedings of the Directors, as thorough as possible. They were authorised to send for persons and papers, taking ample time for investigation; and were requested to report, if possible, at the adjourned meeting, March 1.

This was strictly a business meeting, of an careful scrutinizing cast, on pecuniary affairs. It was very fully attended; probably three-fourths of the stockholders present were from the country. It was adjourned to meet on the 1st day of March, at Concord.

NEW MEXICO.

Our "great country" includes all sorts of people—almost literally, we suppose, gathering together some specimens of all nations and kindred, people and tongues. Some of them are odd specimens indeed. A portion of the latter may be found in our newly acquired territory of New Mexico, which we conquered first, and then bought of Mexico in the first place, and lastly of Texas. Our readers will not fail to be interested in the following letter from Sante Fe, New Mexico, dated Dec. 31, and first published in the Columbus, Ohio, State Journal.

Soon after Gov. Lane's arrival he paid a visit to the southern part of this Territory, and was received by the citizens with the greatest kindness and hospitality.

This is probably the first time that a Governor has visited the people unattended by a military guard. Many of the Governor's friends thought he was exposing himself to danger; but the result has shown that his confidence was not misplaced.

At Limitar, he visited Gen. Armijo, who came out to meet him, with all the principal men in the place.

Gen. Armijo was Governor at the time Gen. Kearny took possession of the country, since which time he appears to have retired from public business. He lives in fine style, is very wealthy, and is undoubtedly the ablest Mexican in New Mexico.

The Governor stayed with him two days, and was delighted with his visit.

Armijo blames the priests for the ignorant condition of the people of New Mexico. He says that he will pay his own tithes, for he can afford it, as he is a good Catholic; but he tells the people they can pay or not, as they see proper; that since this country was annexed to the United States, the system of church and State was dissolved, and no one should be forced to pay; it was too heavy a tax; not only were the people forced to pay tithes, but the priests would exact other church fees till they got nearly all that the poor people possessed. He says that although the people of the United States pay taxes for religious purposes, in the shape of pew rent, yet that is paid as a voluntary offering on the part of the people.

The ambition and cupidity of the priests was the cause of the evils that existed, both here and in Old Mexico, and their power was exercised both at the confessional and in the pulpit.

As to the protection of the people, he thought the people could protect themselves if they had arms placed in their hands, but that the Governor should always keep the appointing of the officers in his own hands, and that they should be removed at his pleasure. When I was the Governor, says the General, proudly striking his breast, my will was the law. Old Mexico should by all means annex herself to the United States, at least until she became acquainted with their laws and institutions. As a Mexican, he would recommend the measure; but he knew it would be injurious to the United States, though highly beneficial to Mexico. After our people, said the General, had learned to govern themselves, by their own laws, and could see the benefits attending the system—then, said he, I won't say what I would do.

"Have you ever been a soldier?" asked the General. "I have," said the Governor. "In what capacity?" "A private; I carried a musket," responded the Governor.

"Ah!" said the General, "that is the security of the United States. When they get into trouble, the whole country makes it a common cause—every man feels as if the honor of the whole government rested upon his own shoulders, and as good men were found in the ranks as those who wore the epaulettes and the sword. In Mexico it is different. Everybody aspires to be a general, and none will serve as privates if they can help it. There were seven hundred generals under pay in 1847, and is it any wonder that the treasury is bankrupt?"

When the Governor took his leave, the General promised to visit him at Santa Fe, and they parted, mutually pleased with each other.

At one of the houses where the Governor stayed over night, he asked his host what should he tell the President of the United States was the condition of the people of New Mexico? Tell him, said the Mexican, politely bowing, that we are overflowing with pleasure and satisfaction.

By the way, to fear that any of your friends in Ohio might become ambitious, and wish to fill Governor Lane's shoes, let me give them a little information that might be useful to them. The history of the civil Governors in New Mexico, reads thus: Colonel Perez was sent out from the city of Mexico, as Governor of this Territory, in 1837. From some trifling cause the people succeeded in raising a revolution—the Puebla Indians of Santa Domigo joining in with them. The Governor was caught and put to death; his body was stripped and shockingly mangled; his head was carried as a trophy to the camp of the soldiers, and made a foot ball of.

The Secretary of State, Jesus Maria Alarid, called El Chico, was taken, stripped and scourged, and his body pierced through and through with their lances.

Don Santiago Aprien, another Governor, was butchered in a still more barbarous manner. His hands were cut off; his eyes and tongue were pulled out, and shaken tauntingly in his face, and in this most cruel manner he was murdered.

Jose Gonzales was declared Governor soon after. Our friend, General Armijo, declared against him—raised a force, defeated him at La Canada, took him prisoner, and, without even the form of a trial, shot him dead on the spot. Armijo took the reins of government into his own hands, and held them until Gen. Kearny drove him out of the country in 1846.

Governor Bent, who was appointed by General Kearny, had not been in office a year when he was dragged from his house in Taos, at midnight, and murdered by the Mexicans and Puebla Indians, before his own door in the Plaza. Governor Calhoun, the next civil Governor, worn down by the care and anxieties of his office, died on his way home to the States last summer.

What is to be the fate of Governor Lane remains to be seen. General Pierce will probably get his head, if no nobody else gets it before him.

All the Indians in the Territory are behaving well. No complaints have been made against them, and everything appears to jog along just as easy as if General Pierce was not elected.

On the 14th November last, a large number of the wild tribe of Utah assembled at Abiquie to receive the presents designed for them by the government. For the first time, the agent met them without the presence of troops. Every thing passed off quietly, and they were much pleased with the presents that the government had given them.

At this meeting Coniachi, the Captain of the Utahs, said, in reply to the agent, who urged them to quit their roving way of life, and to live in houses, the same as white people:—

"My people cannot live as the Americans live. It was never intended they should live so. Our mountains are sterile, and cannot be cultivated. Our valleys were made to feed our animals. The game in our country supplies us with food, and the skin of the deer and the buffalo keeps us warm in the winter. We do not like to work; our hands are too soft. We prefer riding our horses where we please, and we do not want to work like slaves. Our women have more work than they can do now, and why should they want any more? We cannot live in houses. When one of our people dies we burn the house in which he lived, and destroy all his property, that he may have the benefit of it in the strange land to which he has gone. If we lived in houses, we should be continually building, for many of our people die."

THE PRESIDENCY.—To day the two Houses of Congress meet in the Hall of the House of Representatives to count the votes for President and Vice President of the United States, as transmitted to the seat of government by the Electoral Colleges.

PROBABLE MURDER.—The Boston Transcript of Tuesday evening says that from the partial investigation made by the jury of inquest in the case of Thomas Roberts, who was discovered dead in a stable in Hudson street, Boston, with shocking wounds upon his head, there is a strong probability that the unfortunate man was not killed by the horse near which he was found lying, but that he was most foully and brutally murdered, and then placed in that position to ward off suspicion. Some physicians who have examined the wounds are of opinion that they were not made by the horse. The inquest stands adjourned till Thursday.

The following cases are in order for trial: Nos. 33, 47 and 49.

PORTSMOUTH LYCEUM.

The Lyceum Lecture of Rev. T. Starr King, on Tuesday evening, was one of his happiest efforts. It was the lecture on Show and Substance, which has been delivered in several places this winter—every where with the greatest satisfaction to the several audiences. In his view spirit is substantial, rather than matter—and the idea is that which gives motion and force to the muscle. He illustrated these positions in relation to organized matter of the lower forms, to chemical forces, to vegetation, to persons and governments, and finally to character—culminating in the person of the Great Teacher on the shores of Galilee; and in the sublime, simple, beautiful truths of the New Testament as the strongest and most enduring elements of civilization, improvement and life.

In the part of the lecture treating of governments, he holds a post mortem examination over the remains of ancient nations; and finds they did not perish by the might of foreign conquerers, but by their own innate corruption. Such would be their verdict, "Babylon died of delirium tremens; Ninevah, apoplexy; Persia, weakness of the spine; Greece, quick consumption; Rome, paralysis." The present characteristics of nations were hit off happily thus: "Ireland was hungry and dirty; France was troubled with neuralgia and St. Vitus's dance; Spain had the scurvy; Austria was bad off with colics and cramps that required the utmost nursing skill of the Russian Czar; Germany was subject to the gout and headache; England had a plethora—while even in our youthful nation signs of a great black ulcer might be seen on our lower limbs."

In describing defective characters, he noticed editors who did not fill their chairs, preachers who did no honor to their pulpits, and dandies who were whiskered essences, and embodied perfumes.

A fuller notice of the lecture may be expected to-morrow.

CHEMICAL LECTURES.—Prof. Erni's Fifth Lecture will take place this evening, at Hanover Street Chapel. Subject, the lighting of Cities with Gas. Evening tickets are for sale at the Bookstores and at the door.

ASH-WEDNESDAY.—To-day the Church Services of Lent commence by reading the Morning Prayer and by a Sermon. We have not known these services to fail at St. John's Church in this city for many years.

The following is an extract of a letter from a merchant in San Francisco to a friend in Boston:

"It is said that we have had a much harder winter than in 1849, yet I can hardly call it winter, as we only have a fire in our sitting-room night and morning. The flowers are blooming on the hills, and we have an abundance of green garden vegetables in our markets daily, such as cauliflowers, radishes, lettuce, &c. Fresh provisions are very high.—Beef is selling at 37 1-2c., Pork 62 1-2c., Veal 37 1-2c., Mutton 62 1-2c., Potatoes 8c., sweet do. 9c. Thus you will see it costs a man something to live in this city.

We did dare to indulge in a turkey for Thanksgiving, and it cost only $16, and weighed 11 1-2 pounds."

FRESHETS.

The rains of the past week, which we suppose may be regarded as having closed for the present, have been productive of some freshets. The rain, in connexion with the warm weather, has broken up the ice on the Mohawk and Hudson, and the ice moving downwards on Sunday afternoon, made a lodgment a little below Albany. The Argus of Monday says, the channel being thus impeded, the water commenced setting back, and in the short space of one hour it had reached a height of three feet, covering the dock, pier, and setting currents up State, Exchange, Maiden Lane, Hudson, and other streets running east and west. At 6 last evening it was rapidly reaching Dean street, and the cellars in the vicinity of the river, or the streets terminating at it were fairly filled; and the first floors on the pier, and many along the dock were inundated. Many of the merchants made preparations in the morning to rescue their goods from the waters, and the amount of property damaged is not known.

There was, on Monday, at and near Concord, N. H., a severe ice freshet on the Merrimack and Contoocook rivers, the latter of which empties into the former at Fisherville, about six miles from the State House, in Concord. There were immense blocks of ice above each of the four bridges across the Merrimack at Concord; it was piled up above the Federal and Montreal bridges, one mile north of Concord, so that the water flowed down over the interval emptying again into the river opposite the State House. The ice was nearly up to the floor timbers of the free bridge. A bridge on the Northern road, at West Concord, started, and the trains could not pass.—A culvert washed out where it crosses Horse Shoe Pond, half a mile from Concord. A car with twenty workmen ran into it and tipped up; a locomotive was behind just a few minutes. The workmen escaped with only a severe drenching.

It is estimated that the present high prices of iron will put into immediate and extensive operation at least four hundred iron forges, rolling mills, &c., which are now idle, causing also an extraordinary increase in coal mining. —Troy (N. Y.) Times.

☞ Old master Toppan, Daniel Webster's school master, died at Gloucester last Saturday night. He had a fall recently on the ice, which was the proximate cause of the illness, that has terminated thus fatally. Master Toppan was upwards of eighty years of age. He leaves a wife and several chileren.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

A SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST KOSSUTH.—New York, Feb. 8.—The Courier, of this morning, in allusion to Kossuth, asserts that previous to leaving the country, that individual signed a contract to head an expedition from this city against a country with which we are at peace, in open defiance of our neutrality laws, and says, if he ventures again among us, goverment will not hesitate to arrest and punish him. The contract is deposited in the Department of State.

Very serious if true: but it needs confirmation.

WOMAN'S TEMPERANCE CONVENTION.—New York, 8th—The Woman's Temperance meeting last evening at the Metropolitan Hall, was a brilliant affair. The hall was crowded, and the most respectful attention was paid by the vast audience to all the proceedings. Mrs. L. N. Fowler, of New York, presided. Miss Mary Rich was appointed secretary. Speeches were made by Mrs. Amelia Bloomer, Rev. Antoinette L. Brown, Dr. Susan E. Anthony, and others.

SLAVES.—Baltimore, 8th.—A letter received here from Rio Janeiro, of the 29th December, states that on the 22d one thousand slaves were landed from a slaver at Doos Ries, and sold for 800 milreis each.

A war steamer was despatched to the spot; but when she arrived the slaves had been sent into the interior, and the slaver had disappeared.

VARIOUS MATTERS AT WASHINGTON.—Washington, Feb. 8.—The new treaty with the Swiss confederacy has been sent into the Senate.

Mr. George Russell was confirmed as Postmaster at Salem, and Eldridge Gerry Fuller, Esq., as Consul at Halifax.

Mr. Fuller is improving. Lieut. Schaumburg will be brought up to-day on habeas corpus, and probably will be admitted to bail. There is a rumor that two members of the Virginia Legislature have come here to fight a duel.

Mr. Stanton, Chairman of the House Naval Committee has prepared a bill intended as a substitute for Commodore Stockton's bill for the re-organization of the Navy. It has created some excitement among the older officers.

REVOLUTION AT BUENOS AYRES.—A private letter received at New York from Buenos Ayres, dated December 8, says:

"We are in the midst of another revolution. A few restive chiefs have raised forces in the country, and surrounded the city. The Governor has resigned. The majority of the revolutionists are partizans of the late Gov. Rosas. All business is suspended, but we hope the matter will be arranged without bloodshed. I fear, however, that no arrangement can be made that will keep the revolutionists quiet for two months."

MAINE UNITED STATES SENATOR.—The Portland Advertiser of Satuaday says: "We learn from Augusta, that no further balloting was had in the House yesterday, that body having voted to postpone all further balloting until Thursday next. This move undoubtedly came from the democrats, and may be termed, in seamen's phrase, 'hauling off for repairs.'"

The Augusta Age (Democratic) in arguing for an indefinite postponement of the matter, says:—

"The result of the last vote shows there is no safety in continuing the balloting. A good general may well refuse to go into battle with troops who evince an indisposition to stand fire."

TEN HOUR LAW IN RHODE ISLAND.—The Senate of Rhode Island, on the 2d instant, passed, unanimously, a bill regulating the employment of minors and the legal hours of labor in factories. This act provides that children under twelve years of age, shall not be employed in any manufacturing establishment; that children between twelve and fifteen years of age, shall not be employed more than eleven hours in any one day, nor more than nine months in any one year; and not at all unless first producing evidence of having attended school at least three months within the year preceding. The bill further provides that ten hours shall be regarded as a legal day's work. The necessity of such an act as this, was made so obvious, that it passed without a single dissenting vote.

SUICIDE IN THE PULPIT.—The Minersville Journal of the 2d instant, says:—Just as we were going to press, we learned that a Mr. Charles Fultz, a shoemaker, resident of Schuylkill Haven, in this county, committed suicide in a rather singular manner, on Sunday evening last. It appears that for some time time past he had been an officer of the German Lutherian church of that place, and on the evening referred to had convened and opened a prayer meeting in the building belonging to that congregation. He went through the exercise in his accustomed manner, and nothing unusual was noticed about his appearance. Upon the congregation's retiring, he was seen to unbolt one of the window-shutters; he left the building with the others, and was discovered the next morning suspended lifeless above the altar. It is supposed he obtained ingress through the window referred to.

DISMISSALS FROM THE SERVICE.—President Fillmore has dismissed Major Kingsbury, of the ninth infantry, and Lieut Hawkins, of the mounted riflemen, from the service, for neglecting the settlement of their public accounts.

We understand that a grand court martial to try Gen. Nye for unsoldiery conduct, has been held at Farmington. We believe it is charged that the general, while marching, kicked some impediment out of the way. We are glad to see the military spirit kept up.—What a state we should be in case of invasion but for the discipline of our citizen soldiery. For ourselves, one of the happiest half-days of our life was when we trained half a day and got our half dollar.—Belfast Journal.

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE
IN FRAMINGHAM, MASS.
THE house heretofore known as the FRAMINGHAM HOTEL, situated in Framingham Centre, Mass., has been put in complete and thorough repair throughout, is now offered for sale. The main house is 100 feet on the street, 50 feet of which has a piazza, and contains 30 rooms, including a large hall; has a large and dry cellar, Ice House, and the best of water. The whole premises have been occupied the past year as a private residence, during which time many improvements have been made in and about the house and grounds, the front yard having been enclosed, set with large trees, and grassed. The house is well calculated for a genteel Boarding House or Hotel, for which it is much wanted; and the Board of Education have decided to remove the State Normal School, now located at West Newton, to Framingham, the site for which is only a few minutes' walk from the premises, makes this property particularly desirable for this purpose, as it will secure, in connection with boarders from the city, a profitable business the year round.
It is also desirable as a private residence, having every convenience as such, and being situated in close proximity to the Common, several Churches, High School, (free,) and only a few minutes' walk from the depot. The size of the House, to anyone having a large family, would not be objectionable, as the hall and other parts could be fitted up in a manner which would add much to the convenience and comfort of a residence in the country; or a part of it could be so used, and the remainder let, without inconvenience. To persons, therefore, in pursuit of property for either of the above purposes, or for investment, an opportunity offers rarely to be met with. Terms of sale will be liberal, and possession given at any time.
For further information, apply by letter or otherwise, to L. WIGHT, Framingham, or in Boston to J. K. PORTER & CO., 27 Water st.

Coal Burners
OF a new and elegant pattern, designed for the parlor, hall, or office, may be found at
CHAPMAN'S TIN WARE FACTORY.
In simplicity of construction, beauty of outline, and style of finish, it is unsurpassed by any Coal Stove in the market. It is so constructed that the entire contents of the grate can be instantly discharged into the ash-pan when the stove is closed air-tight, so that no dust can escape into the room to the annoyance of persons or damage of furniture. Its exterior model is of the most chaste and attractive character, rendering it by for the most attractive stove that can be introduced into the parlor or sitting room. For sale cheap at the sign of the Big Coffee Pot, Daniel street, where it may be seen in operation.
Also, for sale as above, one pattern of Hapgood's celebrated HOT-AIR PARLOR GRATE. f3

Thermometers.
IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.
Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 398,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.
This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.
The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for this order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.
Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers

AN ADDRESS in favor of the removal of certain officers therein named.

To His Excellency Noah Martin, Captain General and Commander-in-Chief of the militia of New Hampshire:

The Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened, Represent to your Excellency that Sylvanus Smith, captain, and Timothy C Gordan, lieutenant of the fourth company of infantry in the twenty-ninth regiment, and Joseph A. Jacobs, ensign of the sixth company of infantry in the third regiment of New Hampshire militia, have severally removed without the limits of their respective commands; also that Henry D Trickey, captain of the fourth company of infantry in the fourth regiment of New Hampshire militia, has, for three years in succession neglected to enrol and return said fourth company agreeably to law; for which causes the Senate and House of Representatives respectfully request your Excellency to remove the aforesaid officers from their respective commands, in conformity with the provisions of the constitution. G. W. KITTREDGE,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

JOHN S. WELLS,

President of the Senate.

The before mentioned officers, for the reasons assigned, are hereby removed from their respective offices.

PORTSMOUTH:
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1853.

AUSTRALIA.

The old mythic fable of Midas is realized in our own days, and has its counterpart in facts of actual, present occurrence. Midas, a king, had showed kindness to the preceptor of Bacchus. The grateful god proposed to reward the kind monarch by granting any favor he would ask. Midas, with an ardent thirst for riches, desired that whatever he touched might become gold: his desire was granted, his equipage glittered in the sun, and his raiment was resplendent cloth of gold; but alas, his food, and drink, as he raised them to his mouth, became gold also; and every thing around him was fast becoming splendid, comfortless, valueless gold. He now put up an ardent prayer to Bacchus, that he would take away this munificent but dangerous gift, so that he could eat bread, and drink water, and taste fruits like other men. This prayer was answered: the god commanded him to wash in the river Pactolus; he obeyed, and was relieved of his golden pestilence; but in consequence of this washing, that river rolled down golden sands ever after.

Besides these adventures of gold, Midas also dabbled in music, and presumed to say that Pan was a more delightful player on instruments than Apollo's self; which piece of presumption so enraged the latter deity, that he forthwith ornamented the king's head with a fine pair of asses' ears. These caused him much trouble, and gave rise to no little scandal. One subject in particular, was afraid to speak openly of his long-eared majesty, but could not refrain from saying something; so he opened a hole in the ground, told the story there, and replaced the earth; but speedily there sprang out of the spot a crop of reeds, which used to tell the same story every time the wind rushed through them.

Now these are myths, so absurd that no one could mistake them for any thing else. But the sober facts, to be now set beside them, are hardly less strange than the figments of the classic story.

Accounts from Adelaide, a port in Australia, to October 4, 1852, mention that the wool season was at its height, and shearing was proceeding rapidly; wages were very high; the wool was in better condition than usual. The prospects of the harvest were extremely favorable; nearly 90,000 acres were under cultivation, two-thirds of which were bearing wheat, barley, and oats. At Melbourne, (Victoria) the wool-shearing has also commenced; the wages paid were double those of former times. It was feared there would be a difficulty in bringing the wool to the seaboard, owing to the high rates of carriage.

Notwithstanding the 60,000 acres of bread corn, the Melbourne Argus says, that there is a market there for almost everything, with very high prices, and that there is little reason to fear a glut of the necessaries of life, as the market for them is continually enlarging.

The next extract, from Port Philip, Oct. 7, speaks of high prices, and apprehends famine, under the pressure of two or three tons of gold per week. The letter says:

Everything is very high here now; flour £45 per ton, beef 5d to 5 1-2d, and everything in proportion; water 22s per ton, ballast do.—There are a great many ships laid on for London, some offering £75 by the run. Capt. Nicholson, of the Calipburnia, gives from 50 to £60. Wages for mechanics, £1 to 32s per day, laborers from 10s to 12s, lightermen £15 per month and found. The yield of gold is enormous, the escorts bringing down from two to three tons a week. The influx of people still continues, and no provisions coming in. A famine, no doubt, will be the result, and an enormous amount of sickness in the hot season.

A letter from Sydney says, "the lack at present is that of labor—labor that will be content with ordinary callings, and settle itself on the soil, not for the purpose of digging the yellow metal, but for producing human sustenance. For the want of this, we are paying at Sydney £40 a ton for flour, our bread is 9d the 2lb loaf, and vegetables are retailed at an extraordinary price. Everything retailed for consumption is looking high, much higher than most persons can afford to pay. High earnings are thus often absorbed in high expenditure. The chief cause of this is the want of labor. The advantage gained by the high prices is limited to a comparatively few,—the disadvantage is broadly felt. It is indispensable to the welfare of the community that a large supply of labor should be imported, and, that when imported, it should not be employed in digging gold, but in supplying the necessaries of life and commerce.

The demand for laborers will be supplied, but whether they will consent to dig roots, when they might dig gold, remains to be seen. By the last accounts from the Cape of Good Hope, there were thirteen vessels destined for the Gold Regions of Australia, conveying emigrants from various quarters, including England, Ireland and America, and some few from the Cape of Good Hope, and large shipments were being made for Australia, not only in provisions, but in wearing apparel. An advance in price took place in many articles. Flour and brandy advanced 10 per cent. on previous rates. 2500 tons of merchandize were shipped from Cape Town for the Australian Colonies in the course of a month.

Six vessels were to sail from the Isle of France, immediately, for Australia.

Shipping from London to Australia is very brisk. During the week preceding the sailing of the Canada, 4,583 tons of shipping had left London for different ports in Australia. Freights were high and rising. £6 per ton, for measurement goods, had been freely paid, and £8 was demanded.

In these various facts, the asses' ears, as well as the golden sands and and golden food, are distinctly visible.

The last fact we shall copy, is of a redeeming character.

By the news per Atlantic, it appears that a large ship, the Caroline Chisholm was to sail from Southampton for Australia, with 900 young women of good character.

The great ship, named for that large souled woman, Caroline Chisholm, with her immense and precious living freight, accompanied by Mrs. Chisholm herself,—undertaking a voyage so long and perilous,—is an object of great interest,—and, (were it not fact) would seem to belong to a region of romance rather than fable. But the golden sands, and the female mission ship, are closely connected; and help to form a truth stranger than any fiction.

VERMONT LIQUOR LAW.—The people of Vermont voted on their new liquor law on Tuesday. The Boston Chronicle and Courier contain returns of the vote in 28 towns, giving 5058 for the law, and 3325 against it; giving the law 1733 majority. The real question submitted for decision, was, shall the new law go into operation now? If yea, it operates now, if nay, not till October. The old, or present law in Vermont, is much more stringent than any other was, before the Maine law, from which their new law is derived, as to its principal provisions.

CONGRESS.—On Tuesday, in the Senate, Mr. Seward made a speech against the Tehuantepec resolutions.

In the House, a report was received from the State Department, and a letter from Mr. Everett, strongly recommending reciprocal free trade and fishery, between the British provinces and ourselves, to the favorable notice of Congress, and urging action thereon, in season to save the spring fares of our fishermen from ruin.

☞ The Stockholders of the Cochecho Railroad, at an adjourned meeting, held on the 2d inst., authorised the Directors of the Corporation to issue 6 per cent. bonds to the amount of $450,000, payable in 1870.

REV. ALBERT BARNES.—We learn from the New York Evangelist, that a most touching and interesting scene occurred at the First Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, a few evenings since, in the congregation over which Rev. Dr. Barnes has exercised his pastoral care for more than twenty years. Dr. B., it is known, has tendered his resignation, upon the delicate ground, that from the partial loss of his eye-sight he was unable to fulfil his part of the contract between himself and the congregation, and hence that it was but just that it should end. But the members of that congregation unanimously declined accepting his resignation, and have promptly adopted resolutions by which a co-pastor is to be appointed to relieve Dr. Barnes—he still continuing to be regarded as their pastor, with no change in their relations except such as are forbidden by the calamity above referred to, and for which he should obtain the rest he needed. The congregation, it was stated, had ceased to regard their connection with their respected and beloved pastor in the light of a business contract; he had served them with all his strength and ability for more than twenty years—during the best days of his useful life—and they could not consent to separate from him now that by those very efforts he had nearly lost the inestimable blessing of sight. Such conduct on the part of the congregation is highly praiseworthy, and is an example deserving of imitation.

DEATH OF THE OLDEST INHABITANT.—The decease of the "oldest woman in the world"—Mary Benton, the well-known "old woman of Elton," took place last week.—There seems to be some dispute as to the precise age of this wonderful woman. On the coffin plate it was stated to be 117, but it is generally supposed that this is considerably beneath the fact. A correspondent states that if she had survived until the 13th February next she would have attained the unprecedented age of 122 years. Her form, as might be expected, was very much bent, but her conversation was free and lively, and her eye, though dimmed, retained much of its former lustre, and she was able to dispense with the assistance of spectacles to the last. This interesting personage was a native of Cockfield, in Durham, and resided for some time at Long Newton, previous to her coming to her daughter's house at Elton.—Halifax (Eng.) Guardian.

An editor solicited an acquaintance to subscribe for his paper, when the latter replied that he had already paid for three papers in the week, which was all he could afford. On being asked what papers he purchased, he said they were papers of chewing tobacco. We know a single man in this city who takes so many papers, together with "peeps through the glass," that it is difficult for his wages to meet his board bills.—Lowell News.

Court of Common Pleas—Feb. Term.

EXETER—WEDNESDAY.

Case No. 33—Sophia Gordon vs. Benjamin S. Clifford, Nathaniel P. Fogg, Robert M. Pike, Jas. M. Godfrey and James P. Tilton,—was commenced on Tuesday afternoon. This action has been on trial twice before—once at Portsmouth, Sept. term, 1851, when the Jury did not agree and were discharged; and afterwards last term at Portsmouth when the trial was suspended by the sudden indisposition of Mr. Wells, counsel for plaintiff. It is brought to recover damages for violently taking the plaintiff from her home in Stratham, and carrying her to Exeter Jail, and detaining her there until she was compelled to pay $100.

Part of the defendants deny any participation in the matter, and the others justify their proceedings as being legal, they being Collectors of Taxes of Epping, and having warrants of distress against the plaintiff, arrested her on the warrants, for the purpose of enforcing the payment of these taxes.

The evidence for the plaintiff was closed yesterday forenoon, and the case was still on trial last evening.

Wells and Bacon for Plaintiff, Marston and McMurphy for Defendants.

MR. TUCK DECLINED.—In a printed letter, giving his reasons for the step, Hon. Amos Tuck has declined the nomination to Congress from the first district of New Hampshire.

This step leaves the whig and free democratic parties of this district, without a candidate. Mr. Tuck's letter is addressed to both parties. He says:

"While malcontent Whigs oppose me as a Free Soiler, malcontent Free Soilers denounce me as a Whig. I am obnoxious to both charges, having labored during my services in Congress, to be the faithful representative of the true Whig sentiment and the true Free Soil sentiment of my continuents."

FREE TRADE.

Quite a significant vote was taken in Congress on Monday. On that day, in the House of Representatives, Mr. Toombs of Georgia, offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Commerce be instructed to inquire into the expediency of repealing the navigation laws of the United States, to the extent of throwing open the coasting trade to the free competition of all nations, and that the said Committee report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Stanly objected.

Mr. Toombs moved a suspension of the rules.

Mr. Brooks asked—"Does the resolution apply to the coasting trade of the Mississippi, Arkansas and Ohio rivers, as well as to the Atlantic?"

Mr. Toombs replied—"The whole coasting trade of the United States."

The question was taken on suspending the rules, and decided in the negative, by yeas 93, nays 73—not a two-thirds vote.

Messrs. Hibbard and Peaslee of New Hampshire, only, of all the New England members, voted with the yeas.

Among the nays, were the following members from New England, viz.: Messrs. Perkins and Tuck of New Hampshire, Allen and Appleton of Massachusetts, Bartlett, Duncan, Fay, Fuller, Goodenow, Ingersoll, King of Rhode Island, McDonald, Meacham, Miner, Sabine, Seymour of Connecticut, Smart, Thurston and Washburn.

The absentees from New England were Messrs. Little, Mann, Davis, Goodrich and Scudder of Massachusetts, Hebard of Vermont, Chapman and Cleveland of Connecticut, and Reed of Maine.

It will be seen, that although the resolution failed to be taken up that day, for want of a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules, yet the principles of it were endorsed by a majority of twenty.

It will be seen also, that this application of free trade doctrines, is not made to manufactures or agriculture, but to the shipping interest, and consequently to the ship builder, carpenter, sailor and rigger.

It has been sometimes supposed, or at all events it has often been said, that American protective legislation was only for manufactures, and not for agriculture or navigation. Now it is proposed, in this resolution, to make a serious inroad into a kind of protection, of which the existence has been denied. And if this vote is a test, as it seems to be, of opinion or principle, then we are to have, either this session, or the next, an opening of our ports and coasting trade to the shipping of all the world.

A gentleman of Edgartown, (a brother of Capt. Pease, late master of the ship A. H. Howland, of New Bedford,) dreamed some time since that the above ship was totally wrecked. This circumstance rather impressed his mind, and for fear that his dream might be fulfilled, he effected, upon his own responsibility, an insurance on Capt. P.'s voyage to the extent of $2000. Whether he is a believer in dreams we are not informed, but his vision, in this case at least, seems to be verified. —Edgartown Gazette.

FOUND DEAD.—The body of Miss Maria Douglass, who has been missing since Jan. 9, from the city of Lawrence, was discovered on Saturday, 20th, under the ice, by some boys skating upon the canal opposite the Atlantic Mills in that city, from which she was immediately taken. The Lawrence Courier says:—

The unfortunate Miss Douglass was born in Salem, Mass., and was only sixteen years old; she has lately been employed in the Atlantic Mills, and, so far as we can learn, has always borne an excellent reputation. Satisfactory evidence has been given that, to the last moment of her life, she was pure and virtuous in all her relations; and it is a matter of deep regret, and should serve as a warning for the future, that various persons in our midst, aided by the press, by originating and circulating base and utterly groundless rumors against the fair fame of this young lady, have added a bitterness to the grief of her widowed mother and loving friends. She had formed so strong an attachment for a young man who was very attentive to her, that when he avowed his intention of going to another town and discontinuing her aquaintance, she was temporarily deranged, and resolved on immediate death; removing all her ornaments, and assuming a simple and modest attire, she went forth in the darkness, and leaving she shawl and bonnet on the bank, and unseen, save by the eye of God, plunged beneath the waters.

Kind and appropriate hands performed the last offices, and transmitted the remains to her friends in Salem.

Mr. Esty, the wounded fireman at Charlestown, is reported in a more hopeful condition than at any time since his accident.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

WEST INDIA NEWS.—The great fire at Cardenas lasted three days, and was more destructive than at first reported.

From Jamaica.—Advices from Kingston, Ja., of the 29th report the English steam frigate Highflyer at that port. All well. [She was reported blown up.]

MEXICO.—The revolution progresses.—Matamoras, and the whole province of Tamanlipas, have declared for the revolution.

THE REVOLUTION IN BUENOS AYRES.—A private letter from Buenos Ayres, dated Dec. 10th, confirms the previous reports as to the revolutionary state of that country. Business was in a deplorable condition. Trade was stopped. The custom house was closed, and shipping detained.

THE FISPERIES AND RECIPROCITY.—The Courier and Enquirer learns from Washington that the Democratic majority in Congress have determined to pass a bill granting to the provincial vessels the privilege of fishing on the grounds of the United States, and to introduce their fish into our ports free of duty, on condition that the same privilege shall be conceded by the British Government to our fishermen.

Washington, Feb. 8th.—Lieut. Schaumberg was brought up on a writ of habeas corpus today. Mr. Fuller's physicians testified as to his condition and prospects of his recovery, in which they were divided in opinion. Lieut. Schaumberg was remanded to prison.

BUTTER.—The Boston Transcript says, the speculators in butter have had the tables turned upon them. The farmers of the West, anticipating a great rise from the sudden demand for butter last summer raised by the speculators, held on to their butter a little too tenaciously. The article is now coming into the market in quantities, which cannot fail to put down the price very materially. The Buffalo Express says: "We heard, the other day, that butter had been sold at Cleveland for one-eighth of a dollar. We notice a marked decline in the New York market; and the Albany Evening Journal, of Monday, says: "Butter speculators have the blues. Their two shilling contracts and three shilling hopes are likely to end in smoke. The very best butter brought to market sells at 20 cents.

MATS INSTEAD OF TIDIES.—We notice, says the Boston Gazette, that the ladies have given up tidies, and are now wearing their table worsted mats. It is anticipated that hearth rugs will soon be brought into requisition, by those who are unaware that nature unadorned, etc.

Uncle Ned, a miserly negro, 80 years of age, who has long lived in Louisville, was murdered, on the 3d inst., by a miserable woman throwing boiling water upon him while in bed. In his wretched hovel were found 150 pairs of old boots, and $135 in silver change, tied up in dirty rags.

LITERATURE IN FRANCE.—The London Athenæum, in an article on literaary productions of last year, remarks that France is, for the moment, blotted out of the list of literary nations. "All the muses are silent on her soil. Her poets are exiles, her wits and orators silent. Her historians, with one bold and noble exception, are abashed and idle." The Boston Journal adds that "what is true of literature in France, is true in its degree, of almost every country on the continent of Europe." So much for the triumph of despotism and animal force, over comparative liberty and freedom of thought.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat very warmly urges, through the columns of that print, the propriety of forming a new State to be called Washington, after the father of his country, with the following boundaries. He says; "Let us form beyond Missouri, a great central State. Let its boundary leave Missouri at Lort Scott and traverse west four hundred miles, along the rim of the Kansas Basin; thence north to the Platte; thence down Platte to its mouth; thence by the Missouri River to the starting point.

Sheriff Orser, of New York, has received instructions from the executive department, requiring that in the future all executions for capital offences shall be strictly private.

FOUND DEAD.—A coroner's inquest was held yesterday afternoon, by Thos. Norton, Esq., on the body of a man named Joshua Knight, of Westbrook, found on the road leading from this city to his home; the verdict of the jury was, that he died from exposure, caused by intemperance. A bottle parly filled with liquor was lying beside him. His age was about 45.—Portland Advertiser.

NAVAL.—The United States frigate Congress, Commodore McKeeven, was at Rio Janeiro Dec. 23d, to sail the same day for Montevideo. The steam frigate Saranac was also there at the same date, for Bahia—all well.]

FATAL ACCIDENT.—The floor of a store at Glen Cove, Long Island, N. Y., in which a court of trial was being held on Monday, gave way, precipitating the whole party twenty feet into the cellar. The stove went down also, and set fire to the clothes of many persons, burning them seriously. A man named Perry McKay was instantly killed; seven others had each an arm or a leg broken, and many others were seriously injured.

THE KENNEBEC.—The Augusta Journal says:—"A long thaw, followed by rain, has about used up our sleighing, and destroyed our free bridge."

The body of Orzo Curtis of Bowdoinham was picked up near Distillery wharf, Bath, on Wednesday. The jury returned the following verdict:—"He came to his death by drowning, in consequence of intoxication."

Coal Burners
OF a new and elegant pattern, designed for the parlor, hall, or office, may be found at CHAPMAN'S TIN WARE FACTORY.
In simplicity of construction, beauty of outline, and style of finish, it is unsurpassed by any Coal Stove in the market. It is so constructed that the entire contents of the grate can be instantly discharged into the ash-pan while the stove is closed air-tight, so that no dust can escape into the room to the annoyance of persons or damage to furniture. Its exterior model is of the most chaste and faultless character, rendering it by for the most attractive stove that can be introduced into the parlor or sitting room. For sale cheap at the sign of the Big Coffee Pot, Daniel street, where it may be seen in operation.
Also, for sale as above, one pattern of Hapgood's celebrated HOT-AIR PARLOR GRATE. f3

Thermometers.
IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.
Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 395,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.
This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.
The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.
Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.
IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed Agent of the United States Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th section of the Act of 1837.
Having relinquished the agency for the transmission of models, and adopting a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent can be procured several weeks earlier, he continues to forward them, as before, free of expense, and to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe.
The subscriber aims to present to inventors superior facilities for obtaining patents; and is now prepared to make Specifications at rates cheaper by ten to twenty per cent. than those of other agencies. They can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.
R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.
"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skillful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."
"PATENT OFFICE, ——.
"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.
"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent I am very respectfully,
Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,
Commissioner of Patents."

Reported for the Chronicle.

REV. T. STARR KING'S LECTURE.

PORTSMOUTH LYCEUM.

The orator announced as his theme for the evening, "Show and Substance." With an admirable discrimination and a searching wit, he exposed the popular error which prevails on this point, and taught how grievous a mistake it was to call brute matter "Substance," and all-controlling, all-upholding, all-vivifying spirit, "Show." This was the great doctrine which he proceeded to enforce: that the unseen and the spiritual pervade and direct the seen and the material. He demonstrated its truth with reference to the physical universe, and with reference to the progress of human society and government; concluding with a happy discrimination between real substance and the feigned—between the true Realist and the true Visionary.

The orator remarked that the distinction between show and substance, considering what was involved, was a thing eminently practical. Most people, he said, supposed substance to consist in length, breadth, solidity, and that every substantial thing had weight. They think there is more substance in a paving stone than in a slip of paper on which it is written that God is love. He defined substance (from sub, under, and sto, I stand) to be something which supports an object, so that whatever upholds and modifies what our senses perceive, is more truly substance than the very foundations of the earth. He ridiculed the idealism of Berkley, who maintained that there was no external world, and that a house or a tree was only an idea in our mind; expressing great doubt whether the untutored sense of men would be content when they felt the bite of a dog, or tumbled down stairs, to ascribe the sensation to a pugnacious, four footed idea in their mind, or to a mere idea of falling.

There was a good deal of truth in Byron's pun on this notion of Berkley: "When Berkley says there is no matter, it is no matter what Berkley says." Every thing around us is not matter, but a mixture of matter and spirit; there is organization in every thing; it is spirit that vivifies matter. Here the orator enlarged with splendid eloquence, on the sublime illustrations of this truth which astronomy furnishes, that, by no fabled Atlas was the system of things sustained, but that unseen and spiritual power upholds the Universe and regulates the course of ponderous worlds.—We grasp a ball and say it is hard; but without this compressing power of cohesion, this hard ball would be quickly reduced to what the Yankees call a "slump."

The pre-eminence of spirit, as an upholder and vivifier, is beautifully illustrated in the Vegetable Kingdom. Plants grow out of causes which we cannot see. We often say the substance of an oak is its bark and its wood; while the real substance is that which glues bark and wood together, and with its invisible presence brings strength and life. Were it not for this invisible essence which crouches in the acorn and lifts up at last a little grove of verdant boughs and green leaves, the oak would wither back into inorganic dust. Water, air, the electric fluid, light—all afford fine illustrations of the same. It is a work of toil for us to lay the dust of a single street, or to irrigate a single garden: nature is less severely tasked, separating for other purposes, the salt, noiselessly she lifts up into the air great tides, and lets them down again so gently as not to crush a violet. It is an imponderable bolt that splits the ash tree. Inertia even is the antagonism of several balancing forces; the stuff that we handle is only the show of unseen things. This then is the lesson which science teaches; faith in what is intangible and unseen. Substance, then, is, causal and sustaining forces.

All the varied show of nature is the shadow of an unseen substance. Jonathan Edwards thought the Almighty built the Universe to be an image of the Divine idea, and that if the Divine idea should change, the Universe would fall. He who endeavors not to understand something of the system of nature, lives in a vast baby house of show.

All the shows of social life are the representatives of an opinion. Home speaks of domestic virtue and felicity, flourishing under the eye of the household gods; a school-room, of the pricelessness of the hidden treasures of knowledge.

How great a difference would it make in the face of a country, whether Turks or Saxons went in to possess it! In the one case, we should soon behold mosques and harems; in the other, earth-imbedded coal would wait to do its master's bidding, the streams would run to meet him, the mountains would bow before him. The strength of a nation consists not in population, not in treasure, but in the hidden spiritual substance which animates the unsubstantial show of armies and a full treasury. A nation is a huge battery of spiritual forces. The oft-debated question, whether with equal treasure, France or England would be victorious in a struggle for mastery, is simply a question whether the Celtic effervescence and martial valor would prevail over Saxon stubbornness and adhesion to principle. This question was decided at Waterloo. The fire of Grecian valor wasted the Persian hosts, although Xerxes had a hundred spears to Alexander's one. So the best bayonets are those that think. Mark the superior excellence of those of Cromwell, which not only thought but prayed.

Our doctrine is shown also by the influence now wielded by the illustrious dead. What is a state? a personality enduring through centuries: its good and bad deeds make up its character. England is not made up of 15,000,000 of people alone. The number of her population is not the index of her strength. The generations which were, decide what England can do now. Let a hostile cabinet declare war, and hostile fleets darken her adjacent seas; then a Pym, a Hampden, a Cromwell, would appear to defend their imperilled country.—Thus Theseus to strengthen the struggling Greeks, came forth from the mansions of the shades.

Our national strength rests on an unseen base. Not the deadliest ravages of the pestilence, not the most extended desolations of the storm, could wound the nation so deeply, as the loss of public credit, or the decay of public morality. Our hopes of preserving the union lean on a moral bond. Of all the bonds of that union, there is one of a strength far greater there than to be derived from ever so great community of interest, or from ever so wise a constitution—that of a common language; the way in which we articulate our words and utter our thoughts—this is like a great soul breathing through the vast confederation. We have used the word civilization. Its meaning sheds light on our subject. Civilization exists independent of us. There are reverences, habits, laws. The best life of the nations that were, lives in the society of this age. Geology declares that the mountains rest on successive strata formed by the slow accumulations of age. The foundations of our society are laid on the theocracy of the Hebrews, on the democracy of Greece, on the imperial fabric of Rome. What is visible of a nation dies, what is invisible, never. It was nothing that Paul's discourse on Mar's hill fell on careless and contemptuous ears; it has never since ceased to sound in the ears of man.—Such power resides in the heroism of Huss, in the philosophy of Newton, in the piety of Augustine.

Or, where is the undisputed authority of municipal government? How are the mobs of Boston, New York, o. London, kept down? This is the mystery of civilization. The cunning Liliputians secured Gulliver by fastening down with a tiny rope every one of his hairs. We find in this no inapt illustration of the manner in which the members of a state are brought down in fealty to its laws.

The strength of a police consists not in brute force. It was not the might of their arm that made Hayes a terror to the light-fingered gentlemen of New York, or that made the appearance of Tukey, at a card table, the signal for indulging in a game of leap-frog-and all-fours. The bolt that descends from heaven to smite the oak, must be met by one from the earth that its strength may be complete. It is thus that the instinctive reverence for law within the offender unites with the authority of its ministers to assert its dignity. What are Nicholases and the Napoleons of the world, but mere bullies, destitute of moral power to control mankind?

Luther by the truths he spoke, will forever continue to exert more influence on the fortunes of humanity than Napoleon: the power of Napoleon was evanescent like the smoke which ascended from his battle-fields; the mighty truths heralded by Luther will live forever.

The downfall of nations declares that truth is the most healthful nutriment. Hostile armies seldom force a kingdom down to ruin. If coroner's verdicts should be held over the remains of the empires of antiquity, their report would not be like the words of the historians: they would declare that Babylon died of delirium tremens; Nineveh, of apoplexy; Persia, of weakness of the spine; Athens, of hectic fever; Rome, of paralysis. A sick nation must die, as well as a sick oak. There is Ireland, hungry and dirty; France, afflicted with neuralgia and St. Vitus' dance; Spain, with scurvy; Austria, with colics and cramps that have to be nursed by the Czar; Germany, with gout and headache; England, with plethora; and even our confederation has a great black cancer on its lower limbs. The salient periods of a nation's history are those in which great ideas are put forth.

As the steamship is propelled not by the dull iron which makes up its engine, so society advances by an unseen—a spiritual machinery. Battles are of no moment in fixing a nation's destiny, except where a great idea dignifies one. That was the very hinge epoch of history, when Jesus began to teach in Judea.—Whatever is precious in the condition of humanity is but an effluence from his words of truth and love. The immortality of the power of truth is well expressed in his own words —"Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my word shall not pass away."

Character is one of the great forces of the world. David was not so much alive when he swept his harp to the praise of his God, as now after his holy strains have become embalmed in the hearts of Christendom? Who can tell what we owe to Luther's rough, generic thought?

By her examples of illustrious virtue, New England has added vigor to her intelligence, and sinew to her piety. Better for our country to be despoiled of half her lands, than to lose the example of Washington. His character is as much a part of our Western world as its everlasting hills.

What is true substance in respect to character? He is a man of substance who though he may not possess a house, has humanity packed into him. Could you take a poor wretch in the last stages of consumption, and after stuffing him out with batting, call him a man of substance? Wilberforce was a man of moral substance, Fenelon and Wesley of religious substance, Howard of emotional substance. A ghost is popularly supposed to be a soul without a body; but it is in truth a body without a soul. Of all ghosts, the dandy is the most ghostly. Some men are like a distended bladder; the punch of mishap makes them collapse. Who is indeed a Visionary, but the mere worlding? And who is the Realist, but the man who lives for those things which remain forever? We always judge of ourselves by what we amount to: the scholar amounts to something in college; the fat man on the scales. There was a good deal of truth in what the Hoosier said to the Yankee—"I usually weigh 180, but when I am mad I weigh a ton!" A Wellington weighs ten pounds when he comes into the world; soon he weighs down all England and a whole continent. This is the climax of the whole matter; character weighs down every thing. In character are to be found the radical differences which exist among men; and in spiritual forces are found the upholding and vivifying power of the universe.

SPECTATOR.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 9.

The proceedings were chiefly formal—(though the form is quite necessary,) relating to the votes for President and Vice President.

After the votes had been counted in Convention, the President of the Senate read the result. He said—"I therefore declare that Franklin Pierce, of New Hampshire, having the greatest number of votes for President, and that being the majority of the whole number of electors, is duly elected President of the United States for four years from the 4th day of March next."

He made a like declaration in relation to Mr. King, for Vice President.

Both Houses passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That a Committee of one member of the Senate be appointed to join a Committee of two members of the House of Representatives to be appointed by the House to wait on Franklin Pierce, of New Hampshire, and notify him that he has been duly elected President of the United States for four years, to commence on the 4th day of March next.

The following was passed by the Senate only.

Resolved, That the President of the Senate cause William R. King, of Alabama, to be notified that he has been duly elected Vice President of the United States for four years to commence on the 4th day of March next.

A GREATER THAN ERICSSON.—The Genoa correspondent of the Newark Daily Advertiser says:—"A complete revolution in steam navigation and locomotion is anticipated here from a recent invention by Dr. Carosio, of this city. He has, it is said, succeeded in constructing an apparatus for the decomposition of water by electro-magnetism, which will introduce the gas thus generated into the engine, in a way to save all the expense of fuel! His invention has been approved by savans and practical engineers, and a company has subscribed the means of giving it a full experiment. Means have been adopted to secure patents in all other countries.—Mr. J. B. Musso, a respectable merchant of this city, has just started for the United States, with letters from our minister at Turin, to the heads of the Patent Office at Washington."

DEAF AND DUMB CONVENTION.—The deaf and dumb persons residing in Vermont, are to hold a Convention at Montpelier, on the 23d and 24th insts., to devise means for aiding in the erection of a monument to their lamented benefactor, Rev. Thomas H. Gallandet.

A SUSPICIOUS TRAVELLER.—We copy an amusing passage from Grace Greenwood's last letter;—

"In the evening we ran down to Marseilles by the railway. Our party filling a carriage, with the exception of one seat, we amused ourselves, as we approached Marseilles, by manufacturing another passenger out of our extra wraps. Stuffing an overcoat with shawls and umbrellas, we fashioned a portly little gentleman, whom we made to recline in a corner, grasping a walking-stick, and with his face shaded by a broad-brimmed hat. When the ticket master came, we had the satisfaction of seeing our foolish little joke succeed beyond our proudest hopes. After receiving and counting our tickets, he looked hard at the quiet little gentleman, and said, rather impatiently, 'Monsieur, votre billet!' 'Il dort, Monsieur,' said one of us. So, without ceremony, he seized the oblivious traveller by the arm, and shook him into shawls, overcoats, and umbrellas, amid uncontrollable bursts of laughter on our part. The official looked a little dark and suspicious at first, and made a long and careful post mortem examination of the departed; but, finding that he was composed of no contraband articles, graciously joined in the laugh, only protesting somebody must pay for 'le petit Monsieur,'"

Mr. W. Griswold of Fitchburg, was last week arrested, tried, and fined $10 and costs for assaulting O. A. Leavitt, one of the school teachers of that town.

PORTSMOUTH:

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1853.

REFORMATION IN IRELAND.

This is the outside or back title of a new book, published by Patrick Donahoe, Catholic Bookseller, of Boston, and written, or as he more modestly styles it, compiled, by Thomas Darcy McGee. The inner title, which is characteristic of the book, reads thus: "A History of the Attempts to establish the Protestant Reformation in Ireland, and the successful resistance of that People." It is a volume of 376 pages, of which we have carefully read the first half, and as its character is seen in every chapter, we will say now, that it is written by an Irishman and a Catholic, and is, as we expected to find it, one sided: but it displays the side which we never saw before! and therefore we are greatly interested in the book, and give it the more deliberate and thorough reading. We had often seen exhibitions of Irish hatred toward England—of Irish Catholic hate towards protestantism and protestants, when they were brought in question, or contrasted with Catholicity and Catholics. But we never knew before, why their hatred was so bitter, and their prejudice so enduring. But it is all plain now. The superstitions of the Irish are devout and time-hallowed. The island was peopled by an Asiatic tribe, deriving, through Spain, the character of the Scotia, or Milesians. From our author:

We know the Druidical form of paganism to have been a refined and elaborate system. Of all the false systems known to us, it approached nearest to the Greek mythology.—The elements were deified, and the hours and seasons dedicated to their appropriate gods.—The crystal wells were worshipped as the abodes of pure spirits; a future state of being was believed to exist, under the western waves, where the Tierna n'oge, or Lord of the Ever-Young, dwelt, and with him heroes, in endless enjoyment.

The winds and stars were deities, solemnly invoked and sworn by. Crom was the Jupiter, Briga, or Bridget, the Muse, and Mananan McLir (son of the sea) the Neptune of the Celtic system.

Crom, the thunderer, or fire god, is a well known character to Irish readers. The Druid's altars, throughout Ireland, are still called Crom-leachea, or Crom's stones. In the "glossary" of Cormac, Archbishop of Cashel, (a work of the tenth century) there is this Christian-like account of the son of Lir: "Mananan McLir was a famous merchant that lived in the Isle of Manan. He was the best navigator that lived in the sea, in the west of the world. He used to ascertain by heaven study, that is, observation of the heavens, the duration of calm and storm, and the duration of either of these two periods."

Annually they had two great religious festivals, at spring time and in harvest; Their ritual was preserved in obscure rhymes; their hierarchy and hereditary order, at once poets, judges of civil law, and priests. They somewhat resembled the Egyptian priesthood; they had separate estates, dedicated to their maintainance.

His account of the conversion of the island to Christianity is given in few words, but simple and satisfactory.

In the year of our Lord 431, Pope Celestine sent to Ireland St. Patrick. That wise and holy bishop knew well the people he had to teach and baptize. He adopted all their rites, which were in themselves innocent.—He blessed their worshipped wells; he permitted their spring and autumn festivals, but converted them to the honor of the saints; he followed in his ecclesiastical arrangements the civil divisions of the island; he destroyed the ceremonial, but retained the historical writings of the Druids. He made seven circuits of the island, the first six of which were on foot, and is said to have ordained three hundred bishops and seven thousand priests. The poet with his harp, and the prince with his power, he enlisted; he called, with supernatural insight, his apostles from all orders of people—the converted Druid, the peasant from the plough, the smith from the forge, and the fisherman from his boat; he found a vocation for all. He died towards the close of the century, (A. D. 493,) leaving Christianity in all the high and lowly places of Erin; having seen paganism, if not entirely destroyed, mortally wounded, and driven into solitary places where yet a while it conspired in vain for restoration.

What can be stronger than new superstitions engrafted on old stocks? The old heathen relics, baptized by christian names, grew into national treasures and national idols. What wonder was it then, that when England, in subsequent centuries, essayed not only to govern Ireland in things temporal but spiritual, and in so doing, destroyed sacred relics and broke up old observances, she should incur the hatred of a people who were superstitious almost beyond example. Here is the key to the whole mystery. Had Henry the VIII. been as wise as St. Patrick, Ireland might have been a pillar of the English Church, as well as a jewel in the British Crown. But alas he was not—and hence the sadness of the history. The popular superstitions were assailed, and the people's hatred thereby incurred. The book is full of illustrations of this principle, some of which, the most striking, may be given hereafter.

☞ Com. Stockton has resigned his seat in the U. S. Senate.

LOCAL.

City Council—Feb. 10.

In Board of Aldermen, a resolution from the Common Council in relation to petitioning the Legislature to enact a law forbidding unauthorized persons preventing pupils from attending the free schools, was taken up and concurred in; and Aldermen Knowlton and Stackpole were added to the committee.

A petition was received for a gas light at the corner of Daniel and Penhallow sts.; referred to the committee on gas fixtures.

A request for the payment of a city note of $800 was presented; voted that the Mayor be directed to pay said note, by a loan or otherwise.

A motion was made to take up the ordinances, passed by the Council, in relation to a gratuity of $50 to the Superintendant of the Alms House, and also to increase the yearly pay of the same lo $450; further time was required, and the motion negatived.

A large number of bills were passed for payment, and others referred to the committee on claims.

POLITICAL.—A correspondent who signs himself "One of the People," sends us a communication about the Congressional election, the pith of which is, that, as Hon. Amos Tuck declines the nomination of the Whig and Free Democratic parties as Representative to Congress in District No. 1, a large part of the people are without a candidate; and he therefore asks if it would not be well for the people, irrespective of party, to call a Mass Convention and nominate the Hon. John P. Hale. He thinks there would be "State pride and true patriotism" enough amongst the people of this district to elect him to Congress, as a co-worker with that "bold reformer, Thomas Hart Benton."

He closes his communication by saying, "let the people move in the matter." No doubt they will, but it is not certain they will move exactly in that direction. Yet it is not impossible: the N. H. Patriot some time ago spoke of its being quite probable that John P. Hale would be a candidate—and perhaps Mr. Tuck's declination had some looking towards such an event.

☞ Mr. Kings's Lecture, as reported by a friend, occupies a portion of our first page to-day; most our readers will consider it well occupied. It was very favorably received in the delivery.

LIGHT FROM THE SPIRIT WORLD.—This is the title of a new large weekly paper which comes to us from St. Louis, with the request to exchange. We comply with the request, although we are rather puzzled to guess what benefit the spirits can derive from such a matter-of-fact paper as the Chronicle. The number of spiritual papers is rapidly increasing.

THE RECIPROCITY TREATY, ETC.—The N. Y. Express states that there is no clause in the project of the treaty with Great Britain for granting American registers on tonnage certificates to provincial vessels. The effect of such a provision would be injurious to our navigating interests; nor has it been proposed to allow foreign owners and captains of these vessels to sail them under American licenses. The cost of clipper ships of 1000 tons and upwards, in the principal building districts, is said to be as follows:

New York and Boston,	$62 per ton.
Portsmouth, N. H.,	62 " "
Maine,	50 " "
New Brunswick,	45 " "

The naked cost of a thousand ton ship of the first class in New York, without the ornaments which are so freely lavished on them, is $62,000; but in New Brunswick it is only 45,000—that is to say, about thirty per cent. less.

Great Britain, we understand, endeavored in the draft of the treaty before the Senate, to bring down the standard of our ships to the level of the Provinces, so as to secure free trade in ships. Mr. Everett did not consent to this.

Another claim canvassed, but not agreed upon between the negotiators, was that of the Hudson's Bay Company, for the surrender of their alleged possessory rights in Oregon, under the treaty of 1843. The value of these interests, which are yet held by the company, was estimated at $1,000,000.

THE FIRST APPOINTMENT.—The Portland Advertiser says the President has appointed Mr. Wm. R. Mitchell, of Portland, who now drives for Gilson, his coachman. He is a good Whig, and as fine a fellow as ever snapped a whip. This, probably, is the President's first appointment, and if he is as fortunate in making his future appointments, people will have no cause to complain.

TOBACCO CHEWING.—During a debate in the United States House of Representatives, Tuesday, on "tobacco chewing," Mr. Stanley took occasion to say that "chewing is a vile, anti-Christian, barbarous habit, introduced into civil life for purposes of degradation. One half of the boys who grow up topers, commence their course by smoking cigars and chewing."

The publication of the Essex County Freeman, in Salem, will be resumed this week, under the charge of Mr. J. E. Pomfret, late editor of the Amesbury Villager.

LIBERAL BEQUEST.—The late Hon. Richard H. Ayer, of Manchester, N. H., has left to the Unitarian Society of that city, a handsome brick dwelling house, with three lots of land, which are valued at $7000.

2 WEEKS LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

Arrival of Steamship Philadelphia.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 9th.—The steamship Philadelphia from Aspinwall the 2d inst, has arrived at the South West Pass. She brings 180 passengers and dates from San Francisco to the 15th of January.

Left at Aspinwall steamships Uncle Sam and Ohio, for New York; the latter with 500 passengers and a million and a half of gold dust on freight.

Sacramento and San Juan Valley were still flooded, and there was much distress among the miners. The roads in many places were impassable, and flour was reported as selling at $1 per lb.

Another miners' convention had been proposed.

In the San Francisco market flour had declined. American was quoted at $34 a 36 75. Mess Pork $35. Mess Beef $25. Hams 20c. Butter had advanced to 43c. Lard 20c.

The ship Souter Johnny, in 145 days, and Zenobia, in 219 days, both from New York, had arrived at San Francisco.

The health of the Isthmus was good.

LATE AND IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.—New Orleans, Feb. 9.—The sch. Aguilla from Vera Cruz, brings us highly important intelligence to the 20th January. The city of Mexico has finally pronounced in favor of the revolution.

On the evening of the 19th, President Cevalos finding Congress refractory, played the part of Cromwell, introduced a large body of soldiers into the hall, and cleared it of the Members at the point of the bayonet. On the same evening he issued a decree calling a National Convention, to meet at the capitol on the 15th of June, to reform the Constitution, elect a new President, and exercise Legislative powers. He also gave orders to the government troops to cease hostilities against the troops of Uraja. Two new papers have been started, to advocate the return of Santa Anna.

Antoinio Leroux, for 30 years a famous guide in the Rocky Mountains has arrived at Washington. He has journeyed to California by four different routes, and is probably more familiar with the whole country than any man living. He says the route via Albuquerque, which happens to be the route selected by Mr. Gwin, is decidedly the shortest and best for a railroad to San Francisco.

A GENEROUS ACT.—In the course of an eloquent sermon, preached last Sabbath evening, upon the "Employers to the Employed," Rev. Henry Ward Beecher related an act of generosity on the part of an Insurance Company of this City, which is well worthy of consideration. He said that a young man of his congregation, living in Brooklyn, occupied a situation in an Insurance Company's Office in this city. A few months after entering upon his duties in this office he was taken sick, insomuch that he was unable to attend to business, and was compelled to be absent from the office. Now what course did the officers of said Company pursue? Did they send him word that they had filled his place, and would no longer require his services? No! They went themselves, daily, to visit him at his humble house, in Brooklyn, relieved his wants, soothed his pains, spoke consolation to his mind, and continued his salary from the day he entered their office, until he died. And was this all? No! After all these kindly acts of charity, they voted $100 to his desolate widow! 'Go thou and do likewise!'—N. Y. Tribune.

William Schlatter, whose name is attached to many of the maps and plans of the mining regions in the neighborhood of Lake Superior, undertook to walk through the forest to Quincy mine, lost his way, and becoming overpowered with the cold, laid himself down beneath a tree, folded his arms across his breast and fell asleep, and in this fatal sleep was found by a passing traveler.

COUNTERFEIT THREE CENT PIECES.—The Manchester Mirror says that counterfeit three cent pieces are quite common there.—They are clumsily executed.

VERMONT.—Thirty-two towns in Vermont give a majority of 2030 in favor of the liquor law.

The Manchester Mirror of Tuesday says that one of the piers of the bridge at the Amoskeag Falls is more than half gone, so that the bridge is impassable. If a heavy cake of ice should come in contact with the remaining part of the pier, a third part of the bridge would fall into the river.

William Skinner, Esq, of Royalton, Vt., has been appointed by Governor Fairbanks, state inspector of hogs. This office was first created by the last legislature, in view of the rapid development of this department of agriculture. Mr. Skinner has for many years been a grower of hogs on a large scale, and a dealer in them still more extensively.

SICKNESS ON SHIPBOARD.—The ship Ticonderoga, from Liverpool for Australia, put into Port Philip bay on the 3d of November with 200 passengers sick of the cholera. 150 passengers had been previously buried at sea. The Ticonderoga belongs, we believe, to New York.

The widow of the late Wilbur Fisk, first President of the Wesleyan University, is now living in poverty. A subscription has been proposed to raise two thousand dollars, of which Mrs. Fisk is to receive the interest during her life, and then the fund to go to the college.

AN ANTI-AMALGAMATION ROW.—The daughter of a clergyman in Fulton, N. Y., lately engaged herself to be married to a colored man named Allen, a "professor in Mcgrawville College." The father of the intended bride refused to have the ceremony performed in his house and the enamored couple proceeded to another dwelling, whence, however, they were driven by a mob, and the wedding was broken up.

Coal Burners
OF a new and elegant pattern, designed for the parlor, hall, or office, may be found at
CHAPMAN'S TIN WARE FACTORY.
In simplicity of construction, beauty of outline, and style of finish, it is unsurpassed by any Coal Stove in the market. It is so constructed that the entire contents of the grate can be instantly discharged into the ash-pan while the stove is closed air-tight, so that no dust can escape into the room to the annoyance of persons or damage of furniture. Its exterior model is of the most chaste and faultless character, rendering it by for the most attractive stove that can be introduced into the parlor or sitting room. For sale cheap at the sign of the Big Coffee Pot, Daniel street, where it may be seen in operation.
Also, for sale as above, one pattern of Hapgood's celebrated HOT-AIR PARLOR GRATE. f8

Thermometers.
IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.
Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 398,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.
This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.
The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.
Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers

A SOLID SPECTRE.

BY CYMON.

Tristram Triangle of Newbury, was a crusty old chap, always on the opposite side of the question of any and everything. He was a confirmed skeptic upon most topics—having no faith in anything, scarcely; and as to witches, ghosts or spirits—pugh! he repudiated that nonsense, as he called it, altogether.

"Well, uncle Tristram," exclaimed a neighbor of this erratic and crooked mortal, one day, after a hot debate upon apparitions, "I should not be surprised if some spirit did appear to you, one of these nights—just to convince you of the truth of their existence, if nothing more."

"Humph, you think so, eh? now don't be a fool, neighbor," returned the skeptic.

"Never mind, uncle Tris," returned the other, good naturedly; "perhaps you may be convinced ere long. Say, old friend, what would you do if you should see an apparition on your premises some night?"

"Do I" snapped out uncle Tristram; "why, I'd shoot it."

"Shoot at it you mean," said the other.

"Yes, I'd shoot at it, and into it, but I'd finish it, I tell you," returned the old fellow warmly. "I'd find out what the thing was made of I assure you."

The two neighbors parted upon this; uncle Tristram muttering "fools, to believe in such stuff." The other to meditate a little project, wherewith to shake the skeptic's opinion.

Everybody that ever heard anything about Newburyport, has of course heard about old Timothy Dexter and his images. The last of these effigies has now gone to oblivion. Year after year they fell and mouldered away—and now, not one is left for the curious to gaze upon. They are all gone. 'Sic transit, gloria mundi!"

A few nights after this confab between these two worthies, uncle Tristram's neighbor drew forth one of these images from its hiding place among the old rubbish of the barn of the Dexter mansion house, by permission of its accommodating proprietor, who was a jolly good fellow and a publican withal, and with his help carried it noiselessly and placed it upon the pump of uncle Tristram. This was about eight o'clock in the evening—and punctually at nine every night did uncle Tris take his pint can, and go to the pump for a draught of water, previous to his retiring to bed.

It was a bright starlight night; the moon was on its last quarter, and its pale glimmering faintly lighted up the crude outlines of the uncouth wooden figure which loomed up like a saucy spectre on the top of the pump.

"What the plague is that?" exclaimed uncle Tris to himself, as his eye caught the vision.

"Stand back!" muttered a voice, which sounded gruff and hollow in the night air, and seemed to come from the figure, but really proceeded from the life of the landlord of the old Dexter house, who was snugly ensconced behind a fence near the pump, with uncle Tristram's neighbor.

"Who in thunder are you?" again queried the proprietor of the pump.

No answer.

"Speak, I say, and tell me," again outspoke the proprietor of the pump.

"Keep off," replied the voice.

"By Jove, I'll find out who you are, though, and amazing quick, too," returned the indomitable skeptic, as he went into the house and brought forth his gun. "Now start yourself—be off quick! or I'll fire you vagabond."

The image of course heeded not the threat. There it stood, stiff and straight, as pine timber could be. O, Mr. Wilson, did you know how great a libel you were guilty of against Dame Nature, when you carved these images from harmless timber? There is however, one consolation, that if Lord Timothy ever worshipped these creatures of your early days, he did not transgress against the second commandment—for they were not "in likeness of anything in the heavens above, nor in the earth beneath, nor in the waters under the earth." *

Yes, there stood the wooden effigy, with head erect, one arm extended, the other reposing quietly by its side. It looked invulnerable, as the "pale glimpses of the moon" did reveal its military dress and martial bearing to the astonished vision of uncle Tris.

"Speak, or I'll shoot!" roared forth old Tristram, as he levelled his musket at the figure. "One, two, three."

"Shoot and be darned to you, you old fool!" growled forth the voice, grumly.

Bang! went the musket, and a shower of buck-shot rattled harmlessly at the feet of the statue.

"Try it again," yelped out the voice. Uncle Tris was astonished. However, he went into the house, loaded up again, and once more advanced. "His legs must be made of timber, surely," he muttered to himself.

"Now will you speak?" out-spoke the intrepid skeptic, spitefully. No response.

"Once, twice! Bang! again went the old King's arm, with the same result as before. The image stood unmoved, looming unaltered as before.

Uncle Tris was amazed beyond measure. He did not like to give it up so—but began to be a little frightened. He went into the house to call all hands—and presently his manservant, maid-servant, wife and all, came to the scene; for, by this time they were well aroused by the firing, as were some of the neighbors, who came to see what was the trouble.

Lights were brought out, and an investigation commenced, which soon explained affairs; for the projectors of the fun now came forth from their ambush and owned up to the trick.

A hearty laugh ensued, in which uncle Tris was forced to join, as it was in vain for him to attempt to excuse himself from being a trifle frightened, although he did not show himself much of a coward, considering circumstances. The neighbors were invited into the house, and the old railer's temper softened down to such a consistency, that he brought out a generous supply of good cider, and a right jolly time they had of it. If nothing more, it served to take off the rough corners of the old fellow's temper, and softened his harsh and crusty disposition amazingly. —American Union.

*This is not correct. For carving in wood, they were very respectably executed, and were, when we first saw them, quite ornamental.—Chronicle.

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH:
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1853.

THE UMBRELLA RECLAIMED.—Mr. Hughes, the whig candidate for Representative to Congress, in the second district in New Hampshire, as it seems by the following paragraph, is to be a candidate still: the Manchester American says:

"We have never held but one opinion on the subject, and that is that a thorough, true Whig should be nominated in the district, and run, whatever the consequence. Mr. Hughes is such a one, and we are happy that he rescinds his first determination, and "stands the fire.""

The "consequence" will be, that he will come no where near an election. A plurality makes a choice, and in that district the democratic party is supposed to be as large as both the others. It is certainly larger than either of them.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

THURSDAY, Feb. 10.

SENATE.—Messrs. Cass and Underwood presented memorials in favor of securing to American citizens abroad the freedom of religious worship.

Mr. Rusk presented the credentials of Mr. Houston, re-elected for six years to the Senate from Texas, his term to commence on the 4th of March next.

Mr. Bright offered a motion to take up the Texas debt bill. Agreed to.

Mr. Adams suggested that the Senate take up the motion to meet at 11 o'clock, and thus give an additional hour to the consideration of these bills.

Mr. Butler thought the foreign relations subject, the Pacific, Rail Road, and the Homestead bill had better be laid over for the session. He was opposed to meeting at eleven o'clock, but thought the least that was done and the sooner Congress went home the better it would be for the country.

Mr. Cass said his resolution affirming the Monroe doctrine would come up on Monday, and he hoped all who desired to speak on it would come prepared, and the vote be taken as soon as the debate was over. He supposed there would be some more jokes from the Senator from New Hampshire, and then he hoped there would be a vote.

Mr. Hale said he was serious in his reference to Canada, and if the gentleman was joking with respect to Cuba it ought to be known.

Some further remarks ensued between Mr. Cass and Mr. Hale, when Mr. Pearce got the floor and addressed the Senate at length on the Texas debt bill.

The amendment offered by him authorizes the issue of eight and one third millions of three per cent. bonds, payable in 20 years, to be paid to creditors holding bonds of Texas, to be secured by the pledge of revenue on imports in proportion to their claims.

Mr. Hunter followed in earnest opposition to the bill, contending that the United States were not legally or morally bound under any circumstances to pay the Texas debt or any part of it.

Mr. Houston got the floor when the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—The House proceeded to act on the bill to establish the Territorial Government of Washington—the qestion being on concurring in the amendments from the Committee on the whole on the state of the Union.

Mr. Jones, of Tennessee, moved to lay it on the table. Negatived—ayes 20, noes 99. The bill then passed—ayes 128, noes 29.

[This new Territory of Washington is that part of Oregon which lies north of Columbia river.]

The House then went into committee on the bill organizing the territorial government of Nebraska.

Mr. Howard opposed the bill principally because the proposed territorial limits embraced the lands of eighteen tribes of Indians, and this violated the spirit of the treaties with them.

The discussion was continued by Messrs. Hall, Sutherland, and Clingman, the latter gentleman offering an amendment, which was adopted, to the effect that the territory occupied by the Indians shall not constitute a part of the Nebraska territory.

Several other amendments were offered, when the committee rose. It was then moved to lay the bill on the table, but the motion was lost.

HERMETICALLY SEALED PROVISIONS.—The business of putting up provisions in hermetically sealed cans, (says the Portland Advertiser,) has become quite an important one in our city, and speaks well for the abundance of our market. There are five large establishments engaged in it.

Beef, mutton, lamb, lobsters, clams, neats and sheep's tongues, with green corn, green peas, green beans, in their season, &c., are put up in immense quantities.

But a small portion of the articles put up are used in the city—much the greater quantity being sent to New York and Boston, where they are sold to vessels bound to California, and on other long voyages, and likewise for home consumption.

When taken from the cans, they are generally in excellent order, and retain much of their original flavor, although months and even years may have elapsed since they were sealed up.

The Florida Legislature at its last session passed a law for the establishment of Free Banks in that State. They have now no banks there, nor have they had for some years; nearly all the notes circulating in the State being notes of Georgia and Carolina banks.

This is all quite natural—some currency the people must have.

"AN OLD DISCIPLE."—Deacon John Punchard, of Salem, Mass., on the last Sabbath completed seventy years since he made a public profession of religion in the Tabernacle Church, of which he has ever since been a most exemplary and respected member. He has been connected with that Church during the ministry of six clergymen, viz: Dr. Whitaker, Mr. Spaulding, Drs. Worcester, senior, Cornelius, Cleaveland, and the present pastor, Rev. Dr. S. M. Worcester. Mr. Punchard, during his whole life, has been remarkable for constancy and punctuality in his attendance upon public worship, and has undoubtedly listened to more sermons than any person now living, and although he has nearly completed his ninetieth year, is still regular in his attendance. Dr. Worcester in his sermon on that day, alluded to these and other like incidents.

DEATH BY FRIGHT.—Within a few days, Mr. Moon, a gentleman of Virginia, died of fright on board a steamboat, during a trip from New Orleans to Louisville. The floor of the cabin caught fire from the stove pipe, and the cry of fire was given on the instant, which greatly alarmed Mr. Moon, who rushed to his state room, and caught up his trunk, and while in the act of stepping out of the room, he fell headlong to the floor, and almost instantly expired.

THOMAS ROBERTS MURDERED.—The Jury summoned in Boston, by Coroner Pratt, to hold an inquest upon the body of Thomas Roberts, who was found dead in a stable in Hudson street on Monday morning last, rendered a verdict, that he was murdered and robbed of his money in the stable of Messrs. Roberts & Piper, the murder being committed by the infliction of wounds on the head with some instrument in the hands of some person to the jury unknow. Dr. Clark, and the other Physicians who examined the body, gave, as their opinion, that the wounds on the head could not have been caused by the kick of a horse, but by blows from some instrument with a dull edge. The last that was seen of Roberts alive, was Sunday evening about 10 o'clock, as he was going towards the stable with a lighted lantern. He had been gambling, it is said, and was probably robbed and murdered by some of his fellow gamblers.

MICHIGAN.—The legislature has just enacted a new liquor law on the Maine model, which is to be submitted to the people in May.

JOHN H. SMITH, ESQ.—The Dover Gazette contains appropriate resolutions on the death of John H. Smith, Esq. of that town, who was killed by the railroad collision at the Weirs, last October.

The resolutions were passed at the Court of Common Pleas, in session at Dover, on Tuesday, when a suitable address to the Court and Bar was delivered by Chas. W. Woodman, Esq., which was responded to by Hon. Geo. Y. Sawyer, presiding judge of the court. The resolutions were ordered to be entered on the records.

COMMERCE OF CUBA.—The value of the imports of Cuba for 1851, was $32,311,430, an increase of more than three millions over the previous year. These imports of 1851 were brought from foreign ports in the following proportions:—

Spanish,	$8,500,258 25
English,	7,874,958 25
French,	1,733,860 75
German,	1,852,576 50
Belgian,	412,283 37
Spanish American,	2,759,797 50
Danish,	596,010 94
Dutch,	540,875 95
Italian,	29,148 00
Sweden and Norwegian,	28,998 37
Brazilian,	51,365 62
Taken from bond,	570,722 62

Of the gross amount about three fifths ($19,899,196 19) were imported in Spanish bottoms, and on all others only $12,412,254 54. This excess in favor of Spanish shipping, dates from 1832, and is, in some respects, the result of our legislation, retaliating discrimination which commenced in 1832. Since that time American shipping has been decreasing, and the Spanish increasing almost uninterruptedly. The value of all the exports from Cuba during the year 1851, is stated at $31,341,685-44; of this the largest amount is taken by the United States. The next in magnitude is $7,159,896 17 taken by England.

VALENTINE'S DAY.—The New Haven Courier remarks that although some preparations for this occasion are manifest in the bookstores, the show is nothing to what it was before the sellers of Valentines almost destroyed their own business, by flooding the market with miserable, trashy carricatures, offering inducements to people of low tastes, and vulgar habits, to insult their neighbors, cheaply and anonymously. Ladies used to take pleasure in receiving the complimentary epistles that flocked in upon them on the 14th of February, and the fortunate damsel who outnumbered her friends, felt a little, a very little pride in the fact of the possession of a greater train of admirers. But now, they are almost ashamed to take the billets from the post-man, the prospect of an insult being greater than the probability of a compliment. Indeed the penny-postmen and express-men are forbidden, in many instances, to deliver Valentines. The original custom was a harmless and agreeable one, but the Valentine having degenerated into a mere vehicle for the venom, spite or anger of the envious and unfeeling, the custom has grown into disrepute, from the abuses to which it has been subjected.

Reported for the Chronicle.

Court of Common Pleas—Feb. Term.

EXETER—FRIDAY.

Case No. 33—Gordon vs. Clifford and others—was concluded in the forenoon. At half past 3 the jury came in, received fresh directions, and again retired.

No. 47—Palmer et al vs. Smith—was commenced, and is now on trial. This is a suit for diverting water from the plantiffs' works. Stickney & Frink for Plaintiff. Porter & Marston for Defendants.

This case is likely to occupy the remainder of the week.

No. 49 is the next case in order.

The Grand Jury had not come in at last advices.

A LOCAL ITEM.—The snow storm of Thursday night—which was more storm than snow, dashed a blind against the window near which we stand to cull the items from the newspapers. Half a dozen squares of glass were the sufferers, together with our pocket—but the seller and setter of the glass were made glad thereby to the amount of a few shillings—and we must have an item out of the occurrence.

The window thus broken, but now happily mended, is much older than the building which it enlightens. The sash is of oak, as are also most of the sashes in the second and third stories of the Exchange Buildings.—These windows were saved from the great fire of December, 1813, and belonged to a fine spacious old house, which stood with its back to the Brick Market, about 30 or 40 feet south of that building. This house fronted the sun; and being enclosed from the street, with a pleasant and sheltered entrance, was a desirable residence, being at once central and retired. It was formerly the property of Mr. John Fisher. It was spared by the fire of 1802, which burnt the bank and market, but destroyed in 1813, as above. The fire, which spread rapidly before the wind, progressed but moderately towards the house now under consideration, though it was seen it must go.

Some careful men removed the windows and many of the doors from this house, depositing them partly in the garden front of it, and partly in the adjoining garden of James Sheafe. They were saved in good order, and when the Exchange Buildings were erected they found their places in the block, where they are likely to endure and do duty for perhaps an hundred years.

☞ To-morrow is the first Sunday in Lent, or Quadrigesima Sunday, so called because it is from thence forty days to Easter, Quadrigesima signifying fortieth.

☞ Rev. A. G. Pease, of Waterbury, Vt., will preach at the North Church on Sunday next.

For the Chronicle.

SPIRITUAL COMMUNICATIONS.

We drew the painted curtains,
We closed and locked the door;
We pushed the oaken table
To the middle of the floor;
And round that senseless table
We six in silence sat,
Our fingers spread upon its top
Like the cat's paws on the mat.

We checked our risibilities,—
We spoke no trifling word;
"The stillness was unbroken,"
No living sound was heard,
Except the drowsy ticking
Of the clock that marked the hours;
In sympathy its leaden heart
Beat solemnly with ours.

They told us we must fix our thoughts
Upon immortal things;
Or we would never hear or feel
The rush of angel wings.
So we sat there past the midnight,
(That hour when spirits walk,)
And we waited long and patiently,
For the spiritual talk.

We called on Noah and Sampson,
And many dead of yore,
But alas, no spirits entered
Through window or through door;
The oaken table tipped not,—
No muffled raps were heard,—
So we knew that we were humbugged,
And we left, without a word.

THE NATICK MURDER.—The Boston Traveller says it is stated on the authority of the jailer where Thomas Carey is confined, awaiting his trial for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor of Natick, that the accused has confessed to his fellow prisoners that he did murder them, that he had a dispute with Mr. Taylor about a half dollar, and killed him with an axe; that Mrs. Taylor ran in to see what was the matter, and that he struck her down also.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY. — Rev. James Walker, D.D., is elected President, vice Jared Sparks, resigned. Bev. George L. Ellis of Charlestown is chosen Secretary, in place of Alexander Young, resigned. The various committees are composed of members of almost all sects and parties, and appear to have been arranged with a good degree of impartiality.

NEW JERSEY SENATOR.—The joint meeting of the Legislature have elected John R. Thompson as United States Senator, in the place of Robert Stockton resigned. The vote stood—Thompson 47, Wm. Dayton 27.

The necessity of appearing at the French court in small clothes has not only produced the greatest consternation in Paris among the slender-legged, but has demonstrated that there has been, for the last generation or two, a falling off in the phisique of the Parisians, and a growing tendency to spindleism in their shanks.

MAINE U. S. SENATOR.—On Thursday another balloting was had in the Maine Legislature for a Senator. The Senate on its part again elected Mr. Fessenden, but the House made no choice. The vote stood, for Fessenden, Whig, 70, for Dana, Democrat, 68, and there were 10 scattering.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

ACCIDENT TO THE STEAMER STATE OF MAINE.—The steamer "State of Maine" shipped a sea on Thursday night near the entrance of Narragansett bay, which stove her so badly that she was obliged to put back to Newport. A portion of her passengers came on to Boston the next morning with the passengers by the Empire State. The weather upon the Sound has been extremely rough and foggy for some days back, requiring much caution and skill on the part of the officers to take their boats through in safety.

Baltimore, Jan. 10.—Wittingham, of Maryland, leaves this city for New York this morning, en route to Italy, on account of continued ill health. He will be absent about one year.

A STRIKE IN BALTIMORE.—One thousand workmen from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad workshops, with all the conductors, brakemen and engineers of the transportation trains, struck on Friday morning for higher wages.

They marched to Monument Square, where they were addressed by Frank Gallagher, and were joined there by the machinists and workmen from all the other shops in the city, numbering in all between 2000 and 3000 men.

They demand an increase of 15 per cent on previous prices.

AUSTRALIAN GOLD.—The British ship Three Bells, of Glasgow, 56 days from Port Phillip, Australia, for London, was spoken Dec. 26 lat 26 10 S. lon 35 17, with one hundred thousand ounces of gold dust, and twenty thousand more in the hands of passengers.

THE NEW COURT COSTUME.—A Paris correspondent of the Tribune writes:—

Paris is dancing harder than ever. The balls at the Tuileries are spoken of as wonderfully brilliant—in the matter of dress. Our countrymen here show a laudable desire to attend them. There are already on the list of applicants at our Embassy more than enough names to fill out all the tickets which will be sent to the American Minister between now and Lent. Even the exposure consequent, or rather subsequent to short breeches—the threatened court costume—does not deter them, though as you may imagine, the prospect of having to appear in shorts and stockings, causes some anxiety in the thin legged circles.

DAMAGES FOR SLANDER.—In the Boston Justices Court on Wednesday, H. E. Whitney was adjudged to pay $75 damages, in a suit brought by Chester Sias for slander and false imprisonment. Sias with another person had been in the store of defendant to look at caps; and on going out he was followed and accused by Whitney of stealing the hat he had on. The accusation was denied, when the defendant insisted upon it, and had the parties arrested and imprisoned. Sias producad evidence to show that the hat was purchased by him, when he was discharged from custody.

PROVIDENCE (R. I.), Feb. 8.—Barstow's modified Maine Law bill passed the House of Representatives to-day, by twelve majority.

BUTTER.—We see it stated that butter sold last week in Cleveland for 12 1-2 cents. In Pottsdam, N.Y. it is selling for 16 cents. The editor of the Courier of that place says he knows of several farmers who brought their butter to market some time before and refused 23 and 24 cents, but who were forced to sell afterwards for from 15 to 18 cents. The Ogdensburg Republican says that 474 tons of butter were sent from the Madrid station of the Ogdensburg Railroad the present season, most of which went to Boston, and that there are yet 1000 packages for sale in that town.

FIRE AT CARDENAS.—By Cardenas dates to Feb. 1, we have further particulars of the great fire at that place.

Nearly all the warehouses and stores, in fact the whole front parts of the City were burnt to the ground. It was blowing a gale at the time from the northeast, and the fire spread so rapidly that the inhabitants had barely time to save themselves.

Capt. Brown was informed by a merchant that the probable amount of loss will be about $800,000, on which there was little or no insurance. Mr. Safford, a merchant, is the principal loser. The American Captains in port with their crews rendered very valuable service in subduing the flames and in saving property.

CALIFORNIA NEWS.

The steamship Daniel Webster from San Juan de Nicaragua, has arrived at New York, bringing 300 passengers and $90,000 in gold dust on freight, and a considerable amount in the hands of her passengers.

Her dates from California are the same as those received by the Philadelphia.

The steamship Northern Light, for New York, was to leave San Juan on the 4th inst., with over 300 passengers and a large amount of gold.

The Golden Gate arrived at Panama on the 28th ult. with $1,700,000 on freight and 600 passengers.

The British ship of war Amphytrite, had arrived at Panama from the coast of Mexico, with $800,000 in bullion for Europe.

The California market was generally much depressed. Large sales of provisions had taken place. The stock of dry goods was very large and the market was dull.

A battle had occurred at Mazatlan, Mexico, between the Government troops and the National Guards, in which the former were defeated.

THE BARBARY POWERS WANING.—From Tunis.—A letter from Tunis, dated January 3d, says that the Bey of Tunis is dangerously ill. The country is in a distressed condition, famine being threatened. The currency is being depreciated by the government, and is not worth forty cents on the dollar. The foreign merchants refuse to receive it in payment of their debts.

LYON'S KATHAIRON,
For Preserving, Restoring & Beautifying the Hair,
CAUSING it to grow luxuriantly, and giving it a soft and curling appearance, of the most delightful character. The KATHAIRON neutralizes the effects of disease, climate, and old age, in preserving and restoring the Human Hair, even after a Baldness of many years,—cleanses the scalp from Dandruff, and its natural impurities,—immediately relieves sympathetic attacks of Nervous Headache, and cures all cutaneous diseases of the skin, such as Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Itch, &c.
AS A TOILET ARTICLE,
For giving the Hair a rich, soft, glossy and curling appearance, nothing has been discovered to compare with its incontested—its incontestible virtues. It imparts the fragrance of the most delightful and exotic flowers, and is free from all mineral properties, or any substance which can color the skin, or stain a lady's hat.
FOR BALD OR GREY HEADS
It is pre-eminently beneficial. "The Kathairon restored my hair after a baldness of 12 years. A. J. COURTRIGHT, 76 Bond-st. N.Y.!!" This admirable preparation can be had of all reputable dealers, throughout North and South America, and the Islands of the Ocean, in large bottles, for 25 cents.

Coal Burners
OF a new and elegant pattern, designed for the parlor, hall, or office, may be found at
CHAPMAN'S TIN WARE FACTORY.
In simplicity of construction, beauty of outline, and style of finish, it is unsurpassed by any Coal Stove in the market. It is so constructed that the entire contents of the grate can be instantly discharged into the ash-pan while the stove is closed air-tight, so that no dust can escape into the room to the annoyance of persons or damage of furniture. Its exterior model is of the most chaste and faultless character, rendering it by for the most attractive stove that can be introduced into the parlor or sitting room. For sale cheap at the sign of the Big Coffee Pot, Daniel street, where it may be seen in operation.
Also, for sale as above, one pattern of Hapgood's celebrated HOT-AIR PARLOR GRATE. f3

Thermometers.
IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the Thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tubes; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.
Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 398,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.
This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in their possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.
The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.
Also, a few Papier Maché Mountings for Thermometers

VALUABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE
IN FRAMINGHAM, MASS.
THE house heretofore known as the FRAMINGHAM HOTEL, situated in Framingham Centre, Mass., having been put in complete and thorough repair throughout, is now offered for sale. The main house is 100 feet on the street, 50 feet of which has a piazza, and contains 30 rooms, including a large hall; has a large and dry cellar, Ice House, and the best of water. The whole premises have been occupied the past year as a private residence, during which time many improvements have been made in and about the house and grounds, the front yard having been enclosed, set with large trees, and grassed. The house is well calculated for a genteel Boarding House or Hotel, for which it is much wanted; and the Board of Education have decided to remove the State Normal School, now located at West Newton, to Framingham, the site for which is only a few minutes' walk from the premises, makes this property particularly desirable for this purpose, as it will secure, in connection with boarders from the city, a profitable business the year round.
It is also desirable as a private residence, having every convenience as such, and being situated in close proximity to the Common, several Churches, High School, (free,) and only a few minutes' walk from the depot. The size of the House, to any one having a large family, would not be objectionable, as the hall and other parts could be fitted up in a manner which would add much to the convenience and comfort of a residence in the country, or a part of it could be so used, and the remainder let, without inconvenience. To persons, therefore, in pursuit of property for either of the above purposes, or for investment, an opportunity offers rarely to be met with. Terms of sale will be liberal, and possession given at any time.
For further information, apply by letter or otherwise, to L. WRIGHT, Framingham, or in Boston to J. K. PORTER & CO., 27 Water st.

PATENTS.

American and Foreign Office.
AGENCY FOR BUSINESS
With the U. S. Patent Office, Washington,
No. 22 State Street, Boston.
IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed Agent of the United States Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th section of the Act of 1837.
Having relinquished the agency for the transmission of models, and adopting a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent can be procured several weeks earlier, he continues to forward them, as before, free of expense, and to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patents, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in Europe.
The subscriber aims to present to inventors superior facilities for obtaining patents, and is now prepared to make Specifications at rates cheaper by ten to twenty per cent. than those of other agencies. They can here avail themselves of the experience of 20 years' practice, an extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and correct accounts of patents granted in this and other countries; besides being saved a journey to Washington, the usual great delay there as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. Copies of claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar.—Assignments recorded at Washington.
R. H. EDDY,
Solicitor of Patents.

"During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents, R. H. Eddy, Esq., of Boston, did business at the Patent Office, as Solicitor of Patents. There were few, if any persons acting in that capacity, who had so much business before the Patent Office; and there were none who conducted it with more skill, fidelity, and success. I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the best informed and most skillful Patent Solicitors in the United States, and have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"PATENT OFFICE, ———
"R. H. EDDY, Esq., Boston, Mass.
"SIR:—Your facilities for the prosecution of any business connected with this Office, are equal to those of any other agent I am very respectfully,
Yours, &c. THOMAS EWBANK,
Boston, Dec. 7, 1852. Commissioner of Patents." ed1y

A MOTHER IN ISRAEL.—On Sunday, Jan. 30, Mrs. Lydia Eliot of Concord, attained the age of one hundred years. On the succeeding day, religious services were performed at at the house of her son, Mr. David Elliot, aged 75, where she resides, in commemoration of the event,—from which the following extract is given.

"LYDIA GOODWIN (now Mrs. Joseph Elliot) was born in territory once called Salisbury Newtown, (now Newton, in this State,) January 30, 1753. She married Mr. Elliot in 1773, and they removed to Concord in Feb. 1779. She was of a family of nine children; two sons and seven daughters. One of her brothers became a soldier in the French War, and died at 22 years of age, and a sister died when only four years old. Of the others, Samuel died in Northfield, when more than 97 years of age; Molly died in Concord, aged 97; Sally in Candia, aged 90 and 8 months; Elizabeth lived to be 77; Hannah died at 50, and Judith is now living in Loudon, aged 96. Of the six daughters who married, all survived their husbands, and no one married a second time. The husband of Mrs. Lydia Elliot, the subject of this notice, died about 40 years ago.

She had 11 children, all of whom reached mature years, and 10 were married. Four only are now living. Her grand-children number 70; her great-grand-children 100, and of the fifth generation there are known to be at least 8.

"How far do you want to drive this horse this evening?" said a livery stable-keeper, to three young bucks for whom he was harnessing a horse to a rockaway.

"Only seventy-five miles," was the reply.

"You can't drive this horse that far," said the keeper,

"Vy not," said the exquisites, "ain't we all got vips?"

HENRIETTA, THE BRIDE.

BY HARRIET MARTINEAU.

During the hottest weather of a summer long gone by, the dress-makers of London were in a pitiable state of worry and exhaustion. The Queen, wife of Charles II., had introduced a sort of Bloomer costume which fixed all eyes; and of course all female hearts were set on having a suit like the Queen's. Her Majesty appeared in the Park with a white laced waistcoat or jacket, and a crimson short petticoat and a little hat with a feather. After this, there was no rest for the dress makers till every lady had her short petticoat and jacket. The gentlemen professed themselves scandalized, not at the petticoat, but at the ladies buttoning their jackets up to the throat, as men button their coats in cold weather. We hear something also of perriwigs under the hats; but this, which seems to us the only objectionable part of the dress, (and it was a part not worn by the Queen,) seems to have passed without challenge in those days of frizzled pates. Amidst the pressure on the dress-makers, the brides claimed to be first served; and the claim was allowed: for it was clearly impossible for young ladies to be married till their wardrobes were prepared for the newest fashion; but it became more and more difficult to supply even the brides; for the apprentices, and the dress-makers themselves, were dying very fast, some said, with heat and fatigue, others with something worse. The fact was, the Plague was in London, and spreading fast, though nobody in the fashionable world chose to own it. The physicians, seeing what would please, and believing alarm to be dangerous, denied the fact in genteel houses, though they swallowed a lump of spicy eletuary when they rose in the morning, and went their rounds with lozenges in their mouths, and kept a flask of Canary wine handy to fortify themselves when exhausted. They let the world know of these precautions afterwards; but, at the time, they seemed to deride al apprehensions, and helped to cry "Peace!" "peace!" when there was no peace.

Miss Henrietta Holmes was one of the intended brides of that summer, and for her were needles plie , till one apprentice after another dropped from her stool, or failed to come to work in the morning. The gay girl knew nothing of this; for her lover kept from her the knowledge, all he could, of the spread of the plague; and her parents kept it from themselves. They were very happy; and they did not like to think of any disturbance. Charles Osborne, her lover, had scarcely any fear. He and his beloved were as healthful as people could well be, and everybody thought they carried long life in their faces. Unless by some accident from an over adventurous spirit, they seemed as secure as youth, strength, energy and gay hearts could make them.

The wedding day arrived. There was a great dinner at two o'clock. All the relations who were in London were present, and the clergyman, and family physician, and some intimate friends besides. Henrietta was, that day, a sight to make the most melancholy person cheerful. Her round, rosy face and dimpled chin, gave her the air of being younger than she was, and she looked too childlike to be a bride. She was rallied and toasted rather too much as a child, Charles thought, by some of her father's friends; but they had dandled her as a babe, and had forgotten the lapse of years Just before her mother and the other ladies left the table, Charles observed that Henrietta looked uncomfortable for a moment, and shivered slightly, as if from cold. He ordered the door which led down to the garden to be closed; and observed that a draught of air was more to be avoided on hot days, when it was pleasantest, than on occasions when nobody liked it. Henrietta thanked him with a smile, and presently withdrew, followed by her mother and aunts, all eager to dress her for the ceremony of the evening.

It was her mother who put the finishing hand to her dress, by fastening the embroidered jacket, and arranging the lace ruff within it. While doing this, the mother became suddenly silent, turned the girl round to face the light, unfastened a jewelled button or two, and then in a constrained voice, asked her daughter how she thought she would go through the ceremony, whether she felt strong and at ease.

"O yes," replied Henrietta, "I shall get through very well. Why not?"

"If you feel the least anxious, or faint, or weak, my dear, let me know and you shall have a cordial which will strengthen your heart."

"Talk of cordials," said an aunt, "to a girl with a cheek like this!" patting it fondly.—"She is fresh as a rose. She wants no cordials."

But Henrietta did not say so.

"Better give her a little cordial," said another aunt. "A girl may need it on such a day as this, who never did before and never may again. Besides, I saw her shiver before we left the table."

"Henrietta," said her mother, nervously fastening the buttons again, "are you well? Tell me."

"Yes mother; that is, very nearly indeed. Only just a little sick."

"Very naturally, I am sure," said everybody.

"We will ask Dr. Hodges about the cordial," and the mother was going to call him, when Henrietta stopped her, laughing. She would not have a word to say to any doctor. She was well now, quite well; the little qualm had passed, was altogether gone.

Dr. Hodges came, however. He was told that Henrietta felt slightly unwell. In spite of himself he looked grave, till he had felt her pulse, looked at her tongue and so forth.—Then with a really cheerful face—for he loved the girl as if she had been his daughter—he told her it was only a little nervousness, natural enough on such a day. She had not lost her appetite, he had observed at dinner; her pulse was steady, her complexion was natural, her breathing easy, and she had no pain; he would venture to call her perfectly well; and in this she laughingly agreed. Once more, her mother turned her towards the light, unfastened her dress, put aside the lace ruff, and watched the physician's countenance. He knew it; and he commanded his countenance well. The specks he saw were minute and few, but their character was not to be mistaken.

He wished himself a hundred miles off. He would fain have had those little marks on his own breast rather than go through what he saw must happen that night. But he would not leave the scene. He was called away to a case more advanced than hers; but he hastened back in time to witness the ceremony. He saw her married; and his composure no doubt removed the fear of the mother; for all was done cheerfully and merrily; and when the guests sat down to the evening banquet, no one but himself seemed to see that Death was of the company. As soon as the table was cleared, however, the ladies withdrew: for the bride could not conceal that she was oppressed with the headache. After that, all was gloom and terror. When the poor girl's frantic cries were heard from up stairs, the one low groan from the bridegroom sent everybody away. The young husband could not stay beside his bride; for she did not know him. While he cooled her head, she cried out for him, with so agonized a cry that he could not bear it. From the door he actually heard the palpitation of her heart. By midnight, mortification had set in on that fair breast where the small purple specks had caught her mother's eye. The first passengers in the early morning saw the house shut up, and the red cross on the door, and no one was within but the old woman who made her harvest of tending the dead. She called from the window and the dead cart came. The old woman made a plentiful morning meal of the remains of the wedding feast; made a bundle of the rich dress of the bride, holding that lace ruff to the light with admiration, before she folded it up for her bundle, locked the door after her as she went out, and left the abode where there had been so much mirth yesterday, and where nothing was now heard but the rustle of the mice, which came boldly forth to revel in the fragments of the good cheer.

The incidents of those days are immortalized by their being erected into a type of horrible and inevitable fate; and above all other incidents, that of the little purple stain on the breast. We read and talk of the Plague spot so familiarly that we have almost lost sight of what it means. It would be well to reconsider it, and dwell upon it. If there is such a thing, for instance, as a State with an established vice in it, if we know of such a thing as a Democratic Republic with a deep seated Tyranny in the midst of it, and call that tyranny a plague spot, we had better ponder what that phrase truly means, and what it certainly forebodes.

It is idle to take our eyes from it because the thoughtless exult in the vigorous youth of that State, in its bloom of promise, in the opening before it of a new and blessed career. If the plague spot is there, the bloom and the promise will vanish like the dew and the delicate beauty of the desert flower when the simoon is on the way. Decay and putrescence are at hand.

And is there no escape? There have been instances of recovery from the plague; one case among ten thousand. But in that one case, the stain has been at once recognised as a plague spot, and instant and vigorous treatment has followed. Wherever the sufferer has concealed and denied, wherever he has rushed forth into the street, declaring himself well, shouting forth his confidence, and mocking the pity and horror of the world that looked on; in every such case, perdition has overtaken him, and his self-will has been his ironical epitaph, engraved on the memories of all survivors.

Ambleside, July 8, 1852.

AGAINST FIRE AND LIGHTNING.

PATENT METALLIC

LADDER AND CONDUCTOR.

THIS new and important invention is one that should receive the attention of every person who owns a building, or who is interested in that which presents a "permanent safeguard" against lightning, and at the same time a light, strong and ornamental Ladder, which will securely warrant the inmates of any house the ready means of escape in case of fire.

The above are manufactured by Messrs. Washburn, Holland & Co. of Worcester, Mass., and have received the strongest testimonials of approval from many scientific and practical men. A moment's examination of the Metallic Ladder is sufficient to convince any person of its great utility.

☞ Price per foot, 20 cents; including Lightning Rods and Points of the most approved material.

Specimens of the article may be seen at the office of the subscriber.

DAILY
Morning Chronicle.

PORTSMOUTH:
MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14. 1853.

POLITICAL MOVEMENTS.

In Congressional District Number One, Dr. George W. Kittredge of New Market is the regularly nominated candidate for Representative to Congress. His prospects of election at the present moment seem very fair. The New Hampshire Gazette of Saturday says, in relation to his nomination, "We will not take one vote less than a thousand majority for our popular candidate in this district, if they will only support him as they have heretofore done."

It is proper to remark, that the district in which Mr. Kittredge is now a candidate is not the same in which he was defeated by Mr. Tuck's united whig and free-soil support: the district is now enlarged, so that it brings Hale and Tuck in the same district.

The declination of Mr. Tuck has thrown the whig and free democratic parties of the district into confusion. Each of these parties had another candidate: but as they both knew that without union, and in pursuing separate action, they must both be defeated, they united on him.

We have already published a sort of suggestive article from a correspondent, recommending a union convention.

Last Saturday's Portsmouth Journal says,

We have received a call for a re-assembling at Dover on the 22d inst. of the delegates to the late Whig Convention at Rochester, but a large number of the Whigs in this vicinity deeming the matter not expedient, we withhold the call this week.

The same paper, speaking of Mr. Tuck's declining, says,

"The result may be the election of Dr. Kittredge, a most bitter opponent of all the measures that the Freesoilers as well as the Whigs wish to see brought forward; but that, we hope, will not be the only result. We hope that it will open the way for the nomination of the best Whig in the district—one around whom every member of the party can rally."

Our advertising columns to-day contain a call for the Free Democracy to assemble at Dover on the 22d of this month, to make a new nomination. This convention may probably nominate John P. Hale; but it is not certain, if they do, that he can command whig strength enough to elect him.

On the whole, Dr. Kittredge's chances of election have increased greatly within the past week or two.

IGNORANCE IN CONGRESS.

The proceedings of Friday are not to be characterized as a "lame and impotent conclusion," but as a happy conclusion of a lame and impotent debate, in which some of our great speakers did not know what they were talking about. The conclusion is, as expressed by Mr. Mason in his report, that the purport of the declaration on the part of the British government, and of the reply of the Secretary of State thereto, was "nothing more than an admission on the part of the government or its functionaries at the time of the exchange, that nothing contained in the treaty is to be considered as affecting the title or existing rights of Great Britain to the English settlement in Honduras Bay."

This conclusion, says the Boston Daily Advertiser, is one which we believe almost every reader who took the pains to examine the treaty, and the correspondence in relation to the exchange of ratifications, readily came to, provided they chanced to read them before they had been mystified by the long speeches from several Senators on the subject.

They might also have been satisfied, it appears to us, that the demand of a renunciation of all territorial claim by the British government on the Honduras coast, as a condition of the Nicaragua treaty, would have been foreign to the object of that treaty, which was to secure an equal participation of all commercial nations in any privilege of transit across the Isthmus, which might be granted by the local governments to any foreign government, or company, and would have been very sure to defeat the conclusion of such a treaty.

W. W. Wilson Discharged.—In the Boston Municipal Court on Saturday morning, the Grand Jury having found no indictment against William W. Wilson, who was recently bound over on charges of making counterfeit bank plates, and having counterfeit bills in his possession. He was fully discharged.

New Opera House and Theatre in Boston.—The subscriptions for the stock for the new Opera House and Theatre amount to $233,000, and that the edifice will be erected on the Melodeon and Mason street lot this summer, and be completed by fall, ready for occupancy.

Out of Season.—The peach trees in Baltimore are in bloom. It is to be apprehended from this circumstance, that no fruit will grow thereon next summer.

For the Chronicle.

HON. CALEB CUSHING, AND GEN. PIERCE'S CABINET.

Messrs. Editors:—It seems to be a "fixed fact" in the minds of many, that Mr. Cushing is to go into Mr. Pierce's Cabinet. Will you allow one who has been long acquainted with Mr. Cushing, to say, he is a man who will do credit to the government, on the score of abilities and industry; and in my humble opinion, he is the first man, in point of talents, in New England, who gave his support to Gen. Pierce. He has, I assure you, great industry and application in business; he is clear headed and wise in council, strong in argument, and will prove a pillar of strength to Gen. Pierce's Administration. Mr. Pierce needs a man of such powers and tact, to get along comfortably to the close of his four years. His ability will be found equal to any crisis that may arise, as he possesses all the qualifications that are requisite in a Cabinet officer. Permit me to say he has done the country some service in his day and generation. He greatly aided Mr. Webster in settling our difficulties with Great Britain, by the Ashburton treaty; a blessing to this nation and the whole civilized world. His mission to China was highly successful, thereby greatly aiding our commerce in those seas. If Mr. Pierce should appoint him and others as able, for his advisers, the nation will not charge his Administration with imbecility. I have faith that Gen. Pierce will not be moved about like a foot ball, by any faction. E.

Maine Senator.—On Friday, 11th Feb. the Maine House of Representative postponed the further trial to elect a United States Senator, until the 4th day of March next.

There is something strangely out of order about the choice of U. S. Senators, in half a dozen States. Large majorities are in the hands of the Democratic party in most of the States—but subdivisions exist in the party, and prevent a choice.

The Liquor Law Vote in Vermont.—Returns from 88 towns of the vote upon accepting the liquor law of the last legislature, stand as follows: yeas, 9811; nays, 9020. Majority for the law in these towns, 791—a small moral force with which to carry a stringent sumptuary law. A great many more towns are to be heard from, but the impression appears to be that the state has voted Yea.

We regret to record the death of Mr. Jotham B. Munroe, the Alien Commissioner of Boston, which took place on Friday evening. He fell a victim to the ship fever, contracted in the discharge of his official duties.

The White Water Canal.—This work was surrendered some years since to a stock company. They completed the work, at great cost, to Hagerstown. From the commencement it has been a most ill-fated work, both to the State and to the stockholders. The stock is a total loss, and the company have not the means to repair the recent damages.—The mill-owners are trying to do something merely to secure the water for hydraulic purposes. A petition has been presented in the Senate asking the General Assembly to release the right, which the State has to the redemption of the work, by the payment of the expenses incurred, and some other minor privileges. If this is done, we are told that a company will be organized, who will construct a railroad on its bank, which is already graded. This would be a fine improvement, and we hope the Legislature will grant the prayer of the petitioners.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

The Norwegian Colony founded by Ole Bull, about ten miles from Candersport, Pa., appears from the latest accounts to be in a most flourishing state. The settlers are very much pleased with their location, are industrious, and have already made great improvements. Since the winter set in they have been very active, and they are now busily engaged in making roads, building houses, mills and other works. Several new houses have been entirely completed, and the prospect now is that preparations will be made, by spring, for receiving a large addition to their settlement. At Cartee Camp a new school-house has been erected, and school is to be opened in it in a short time. A steam saw mill and two water mills are already under way, and every thing about the settlement indicates energy and prosperity.—[N. Y. Cour. & Enq.

For Australia.—The Cincinnati Gazette announces that a company of fifty young men from that city, will leave for Australia via Liverpool on or about the 1st of March. They have made extensive arrangements for their trip. The company will have a quick despatch and good accommodations, if they will stop at Boston and take some of the conveyances which our enterprising shippers have constantly ready for the new gold regions.—Courier.

The Boston Commonwealth says, against a French invasion, England would require no aid. Although John Bull's seeming timidity and tendency to hysterics, when this matter is named, makes him rather ridiculous, he is no coward, and never shows the white feather when he fairly comes to blows with his enemy. A French invasion of England would be like a bantam cock's invasion of a bee hive.

Odd Business.—On Thursday a man applied at the City Hall for a marriage certificate, giving as his occupation, "Rat, mice and cockroach catcher." His intended, he said, followed the same business. It takes "all sorts and conditions" to make a world, and Cupid is among the whole.—Boston Bee.

The parties are English.

Dry Goods at Auction.—Mr. Laughton invites the ladies only, to attend an auction Sale of Dry Goods this afternoon, and the gentlemen this evening. See Auction head.

Joseph Clark was hung in New York at noon on Friday, in the prison yard of the Tombs, for the murder of one of the city watchmen. The execution was privately conducted—no persons being admitted except what the law required. Clark was a young English sailor, and in a drunken spree he killed a watchman, while endeavoring to rescue a shipmate from his custody.

Outrage and Murder.—At Newark N.J., on Sunday evening, a young woman, who was returnig home from her sister's house, was set upon and brutally violated, and received so much injury that she died on Tuesday morning. There is no clue to the ruffian or ruffians who performed the deadly work.

Dennis Pratt, a founder of the Shaker society at Harvard, and a peddler of "Shaker sass," has taken a Miss Lord to wife, and is now spending the honeymoon in Lowell. He has been a Shaker for twenty-seven years, and his sudden apostacy has naturally enough created quite an excitement.

The committee on pardons in Massacusetts have now before them an application to pardon young Ostinelli, sentenced to the State prison for sending threatening letters. He is the son of the late Signor Ostinelli, the accomplished violinist and leader of the old Boston Tremont theatre orchestra; and brother of Signora Biscaccianti, the eminent vocalist.—Boston Post.

"Gentlemanly" all round.—A St. Louis paper says that in that city "a gentleman cowhided another, for insulting his wife." So it goes: one gentleman insults another gentleman's wife, and that gentleman cowhides the other gentleman! Very gentle, on both sides.

Furious Driving.—At New York, on Tuesday, Mr. Bail, an old gentleman of 73, while crossing Houston street, was knocked down by a horse and cart driven at a furious rate, and the wheels passed over his body. He expired in a few hours afterwards.

A conductor of a newspaper, speaking of a contemporary, says—"He was formerly a member of Congress, but rapidly rose till he attained a respectable position as an editor—a noble example of perseverance under depressing circumstances."

A man whom Dr. Johnson once reproved for following a useless and demoralizing business, said in excuse: "You know, doctor, that I must live." The brave old hater of everything mean and hateful, coolly replied that "he did not see the least necessity for that."

At the Australian gold mines the sale of liquors is positively forbidden, and the government officials have authority to burn to the ground all shops or shanties used for the purpose of vending the interdicted article.

Frozen to Death.—Louisville. Feb. 10.—Harvey Thompson, of Independence, Ky., and his young son were found yesterday, frozen to death in a buggy five miles from this city, back of Covington.

Bishop O'Connor, the Catholic Prelate of Pittsburg, has addressed a long letter to Gov. Bigler, complaining that the present free school system is not acceptable to the Catholic population.

The Richmond Enquirer has a very able communication, signed "A Slaveholder," arguing strongly against the law now before the Virginia legislature for the forcible removal of free blacks.

A young Indian in New Jersey, lately, saved two boys, in two instances, when they had fallen through the ice while skating, and when all their other companions ran away.

A child in Lancaster county, Pa., was scalded to death last week, by being put in a tub of hot water by its grandmother, who thought it had been prepared for a warm bath.

There are three brothers in the Senate of Maine, viz:—James Lowell of Lincoln, Wm. Lowell of Cumberland, and Stephen Lowell of Piscataquis. They are all whigs.

The report that Antonio Lopez, the Spaniard who was pardoned at New York some time since, had again committed a murder in Cuba, is incorrect.

Grace Greenwood has got a veritable beau, a rich American now in Rome. The probability is, Grace will come home duplicated.

CONGRESSIONAL DIST. No. 1.

At Dover, February 22d, 1853.

WHEREAS the Delegates of the Free Democracy of Congressional District No. 1, at their Convention held at Rochester, on the 2nd day of February inst. nominated the Hon. Amos Tuck as their candidate for re-election as Representative to Congress, and as he has since declined to be a candidate, I am requested to invite the Delegates to that Convention to convene at the Town Hall in DOVER, on TUESDAY, the 22d day of February inst. at 10 of the clock, A. M. for the purpose of nominating another person as a candidate for the office of Representative to Congress of the Congressional District, No. 1. And the Free Democracy of the several towns in the District, not represented in said Convention, are requested to elect Delegates to the Convention equal to double the number of their representatives to the General Court.

LATEST NEWS!

BY MAIL, EXPRESS & TELEGRAPH.

WASHINGTON MATTERS.—Washington, Feb. 12.—Edward J. Phelps, Second Comptroller of the Treasury, resigned to-day. John M. Broadhead, formerly Chief Clerk in the Treasury, was appointed in his place, and confirmed by the Senate.

Mr. Albert Blaisdell of Boston, has received the contract to build the new Custom house at Bangor, Me. It is to be built of granite at a cost of $41,000.

It is the general belief among the Democrats that Gen. Caleb Cushing has been selected by Gen. Pierce as Secretary of State.

The vote on Mr. Badger's nomination was for a postponement till the 4th of March. It is now thought that the President will withdraw his name, and nominate Mr. Wilcox, a distinguished lawyer of New Orleans.

Messrs. Clemens and Sebastian, friends of Mr. Badger, were absent when the nomination of that gentleman was rejected. It is possible that the vote may be reconsidered at the next executive session.

RAILROAD STRIKES.—Baltimore, Feb. 11. All business except the running of the passenger trains is suspended on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in consequence of the strike. No freight trains passed over the road last evening and none to-day. A heavy premium was paid to the Engineers to run the passenger trains to-day.

The meeting in Monument square was attended by about three thousand men.

The strike has extended all along the road, and also to the Susquhanna and Philadelphia roads. It is rumored that there will be a similar strike in Philadelphia.

THE ERICSSON.—New York, Feb. 12.—The Caloric ship Ericsson, is now ready for sea and will probably start on Monday or Tuesday on a trial trip of several days duration. Yesterday and Thursday she was visited by a crowd of invited guests. Yesterday, among the distinguished persons present were Ex-President Van Buren, Abbott Lawrence, Ex-Gov. Hunt.

Mobile, Feb. 7.—There is a rumor current here that the Postmaster of this city is a defaulter to the amount of $20,000 to $25,000.

Henry T. Weightman, late a clerk in the City Post Office, at Washington, charged with robbing the mails in November last, and held to bail, attempted to commit suicide on the 9th inst., by cutting three gashes across his throat, and is said to be in a dying condition. He is of a most respectable family, and has been greatly distressed on account of the delay of his trial.

Advices from Havana state, the Captain General of Cuba had sent a message to Hon. Wm. R. King, at Key West, inviting him to make the Palace his home while stopping at Havana.

Captain King, of the steamship Washington, is on trial before the U. S. District Court in New York, on the charge of smuggling.—Indictments have also been found against the first mate and purser, on similar charges.

The receipts of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for the past month have been $129,000, an increase of $40,000 over the same month last year.

Thirty-Second Congress—Second Session.

FRIDAY, Feb. 11.

SENATE.—In the Senate, on Friday, the chair laid before the Senate a communication from the state department, giving the number of clerks in that department.

Mr. Seward presented petitions from Cornelius Vanderbilt, and from the owners of the Collins line of steamers, and from others engaged in the steamship business, for a suspension of the steamboat law of last session.—Petitions of a like nature were presented from Lake Huron, Hartford, and other places.

Mr. Mason, from the committee on foreign affairs, to which were referred the president's message on the subject of the establishment of British Colonies at Brazil; and also the resolution whether any action of the senate be necessary in consequence of the explanations made by Messrs. Bulwer and Clayton, at the exchange of the ratification of the Central American treaty, made a report accompanied by the following resolution:—

Resolved, That it is the opinion of the committee that the declaration on the part of the British government, and the reply thereto by the secretary of state, as preliminary to the exchange of ratification of the treaty concluded between the governments of Great Britain and the United States, imports nothing more than an admission on the part of the government or its functionaries at the time of the exchange, that nothing contained in the treaty is to be considered as effecting the title or existing rights of Great Britain to the English settlement at Honduras Bay, and consequently, in the opinion of the committee, no measures are necessary to be taken in reference to such declaration.

Two thousand copies of the report were ordered to be printed.

Mr. Fish introduced a bill for the better management and safe conduct of American merchant vessels, and for maintaining discipline on board the same. The bill was referred to the committee on commerce.

Mr. Miller gave notice that on to-morrow he would ask permission to address the Senate upon the subjet of recognizing the independence of Liberia.

The Texas debt bill was th n taken up. Mr. Houston addressed the Senate for an hour in opposition to the bill. It was then postponed till Thursday next. The Senate then went into executive session and while therein Mr Badger's nomination was postponed indefinitely by yeas 26, nays 25. The Senate then adjourned.

HOUSE.—Mr. Seymour introduced a bill to establish reciprocal trade with the British North American Provinces, on certain conditions.

The House passed a bill for the settling and adjusting the expenses incurred by the people of Oregon in the Cayuse war.

The House went into committee on the army bill.

LYON'S KATHAIRON,
For Preserving, Restoring & Beautifying the Hair,
CAUSING it to grow luxuriantly, and giving it a soft and curling appearance, of the most delightful character. The KATHAIRON neutralises the effects of disease, climate, and old age, in preserving and restoring the Human Hair, even after a Baldness of many years,—cleanses the scalp from Dandruff, and its natural impurities,—immediately relieves sympathetic attacks of Nervous Headache, and cures all cutaneous diseases of the skin, such as Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Itch, &c.
AS A TOILET ARTICLE,
For giving the Hair a rich, soft, glossy and curling appearance, nothing has been discovered to compare with its incomparable—its incontestible virtues. It imparts the fragrance of the most delightful and exotic flowers, and is free from all mineral properties, or any substance which can color the skin, or stain a lady's hat.
TO BALD OR GREY HEADS
It is pre-eminently beneficial. "The Kathairon restored my hair after a baldness of 12 years. A. J. COURTRIGHT, 76 Bond-st. N.Y." This admirable preparation can be had of all reputable dealers, throughout North and South America, and the Islands of the Ocean, in large bottles, for 25 cents.

Coal Burners
OF a new and elegant pattern, designed for the parlor, hall, or office, may be found at
CHAPMAN'S TIN WARE FACTORY.
In simplicity of construction, beauty of outline, and style of finish, it is unsurpassed by any Coal Stove in the market. It is so constructed that the entire contents of the grate can be instantly discharged into the ash-pan while the stove is closed air-tight, so that no dust can escape into the room to the annoyance of persons or damage of furniture. Its exterior model is of the most chaste and faultless character, rendering it by for the most attractive stove that can be introduced into the parlor or sitting room. For sale cheap at the sign of the Big Coffee Pot, Daniel street, where it may be seen in operation.
Also, for sale as above, one pattern of Hapgood's celebrated HOT-AIR PARLOR GRATE. f3

Thermometers.
IT is known to most scientific men in this country, that the late Thomas Kendall discovered a process, by which the graduation of the thermometer scales may be made accurately to correspond with variations, which unavoidably exist in the calibre of the tube; thus overcoming what has been considered the insurmountable obstacle to the construction of a perfect Thermometer.
Profs. Silliman and Fisher, Yale College, (see Journal of Science and Arts, vol. 4, p 398,) and other scientific gentlemen, having examined this process, concur in saying that it is correct on mathematical and philosophical principles, and the only known way by which the difficulty referred to can be obviated.
This method has not been disclosed to other manufacturers of Thermometers, neither is it known to be in the possession. These Thermometers, therefore, are the only ones which can be relied upon for entire accuracy.
The subscriber has just received a lot of these Thermometers direct from the manufacturer and made expressly for his order, of various sizes and mountings, for the parlor or out of door use.
Also, a few Papier Mache Mantle Thermometers
